CHINA SEA—HOSSACK AND DOROTHEA SHOALS.

Non-existence of these shoals.

THE following Notice to Mariners (No. 634 of 1894), issued by the British Admiralty, is republished for general information:—

Between the years 1857 and 1886 three reports were made respecting the existence of a shoal or breakers to the north-eastward of the Pratas.

1. DOROTHEA SHOAL reported in North China Mail of August 22nd 1857, by Captain Van den Kolk of the Netherlands barque Dorothea. The Dorothea was lost on a rock stated to be 9 or 10 feet below the surface, and with deep water around, in latitude $21^{\circ} 5' N.$, longitude $116^{\circ} 40' E.$

2. HOSSACK SHOAL reported by Captain Hossack of the British ship Cyclone, originally in the Straits Times of 1861 and subsequently in the Nautical Magazine—

Captain Hossack's report was that on the 9th August 1861 two patches were seen in latitude $21^{\circ} 31' N.$, longitude $117^{\circ} 7' E.$ The easternmost patch appeared to be very shoal, and about 400 feet in extent: it was marked by breakers, and the position was ascertained by astronomical observations.

3. ALDEN BESE SHOAL.—In Notice No. 24 of 1886, issued by the United States Bureau of Navigation, it is stated that Mr. J. A. O'Brien, Master of the barque Alden Besse, reported that on April 6th, 1886, he saw a shoal, of small extent, over which the sea was breaking, in latitude $21^{\circ} 11' N.$, longitude $116^{\circ} 24' E.$ Mr. O'Brien further stated, in answer to enquiries, that when 3 days out from Hong-Kong breakers were seen between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m.; the N.E. monsoon was blowing moderately at the time from E.N.E.; the ship's speed being about 5 knots. The sea broke heavily on one particular spot and the breakers were distinctly heard; elsewhere no breaking waves were seen. The ship passed within $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles of the breakers, which were estimated as 150 feet in extent. Good astronomical observations were obtained.

It will thus be seen that the descriptions given by Captain Hossack and Mr. O'Brien are very similar, but the positions differ widely; whilst the positions of Captain Van den Kolk and Mr. O'Brien agree fairly well, but the descriptions differ.

These reported dangers were searched for by H.M.S. Serpent, Commander Bullock, in 1866; by H.M. Surveying Vessel Rambler, Captain the Honourable F. C. P. Vereker, in 1889; and by H.M. Surveying Vessel Egeria, Commander A. M. Field, in 1891 and 1892, the latter search occupying 11 days. No danger has hitherto been discovered.

Whilst searching for these reported shoals both Captain Vereker and Commander Field report that the currents in the neighbourhood are exceptionally strong, and that tide rips are frequent. They have been occasionally seen like breakers over a shoal; in fact once on the night of the 22nd March 1889, Captain Vereker reports "Breakers were distinctly heard, with regular intervals between the breaks, and altering course I steamed towards them, carefully sounding. There was a fair amount of moonlight, and I was nearly convinced we had discovered the shoal until I obtained a sounding of 202 fathoms, muddy bottom, in the centre of the breakers, and found it was a small, but heavy tide rip travelling to the north-westward."

It seems probable that both Captain Hossack and Mr. O'Brien were deceived by appearances similar to that experienced by Captain Vereker, and that the breakers they saw were simply heavy tide rips.

With respect to the report of the Dorothea, which appeared in the China Mail, it is believed some error has been made; for enquiries addressed to the Netherlands authorities have elicited the information that Captain Van den Kolk reported on his arrival at Batavia, in 1857, that the Dorothea had been lost on the Pratas on the night of July 9th, 1857.

A careful consideration of the various reports made, respecting the existence of dangers north-east of the Pratas, combined with the reports of the surveying officers when searching the locality, leads to the conclusion that these reported dangers need no longer remain on the Admiralty charts, and they have been accordingly expunged.

EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO—SUMATRA, WEST COAST.

Reefs and shoals on the west coast of Atjeh and near Simaloer island.

THE following Notice to Mariners, issued by the Vice-Admiral Commanding the Naval Forces in Neth.—India, No. 34, dated Batavia, the 22nd November 1894, is republished:—

Information has been received from Lieutenant and Commander J. P. Van Rossum, H. M. Benkosgen, of the existence of the undermentioned rocks and shoals on the W. coast of Atjeh and near Simaloer island:—

1. The bay of Laboean Hadji is north of the line "W. extreme of the bay W. N. W.," nearly full of stones.

Ships must keep the W. extreme of the bay north of the bearing W. N. W.

2. A breaker was seen on little distance north, when the ship was in approximately lat. 2° 36' N., long. 97° 17' E.

3. A shoal with a depth of 10 fathoms hard ground on it in approximately lat. 2° 34' N., long. 96° 45' E. Westward of this shoal depths of 20 to 17 fathoms have been obtained at a distance of about 1,100 yards.

4. A shoal with a depth of 5 fathoms stones on it has been obtained on the bearings: Cape Lentang N. 9° W. and Cape Toebah S. 82° W.

A reef of great extent exists here with less water, apparently connected with the island Simaloer.

The shoal lies in approximately lat. 2° 25' N., long. 96° 25' E., and is to be known by discoloring water.

5. A depth of 8 fathoms stones has been obtained on the bearings: Cape Lentang N. 6° E. and Cape Kakat N. 70° W.

Also a reef of great extent with discoloring water exists here, apparently with less water.

Approximate position: lat. 2° 21½' N., long. 96° 23½' E.

There is a fairway between the reefs 4 and 5 with more than 20 fathoms water.

It is advisable not to approach the S. E. coast of Simaloer island within 4 sea miles.

6. A wooded island, named Sevelak, lies north, distant about 2 sea miles from Tapak island.

Approximate position: lat. 2° 29½' N., long. 96° 8' E.

7. A depth of 8 fathoms stones has been obtained on the bearings:—

N. E. extreme Tapak	S. 83° E.
S. W. extreme Tjoet (Mintjau)	S. 40½° E.
Sevelak island (centre)	N. 68° E.

Approximate position: lat. 2° 28' N., long. 96° 4½' E.

8. A shoal, on which the sea breaks, on the bearings:—

N. E. extreme Tapak	S. ½° E.

or in approximately lat. 2° 29' N., long. 96° 8½' E.

9. A reef with a depth of 5 fathoms on it on the bearings:—

Cape Lambaja	N. by W. ½° W.
S. extreme Simaloer Tjoet	W. ½° N.

or in approximately lat. 2° 29½' N., long. 96° 3' E.

In this vicinity breakers were seen, so that there is perhaps less water on the shoal.

10. A shoal with breakers lying N. W., distant about 2 sea miles from the W. extreme of Simaloer Tjoet.

Approximate position: lat. 2° 32½' N., long. 95° 55½' E.

11. A shoal with breakers, lying S. W., distant about 4 sea miles from the W. extreme of Simaloer Tjoet.

Approximate position: lat. 2° 29' N., long. 95° 54' E.

12. A reef of great extent lying W. by N. $\frac{1}{2}$ N., distant 5 sea miles from the W. extreme of Simuloor Tjoet.

The reef on which the sea always breaks is about 2 sea miles long., E. N. E. and W. S. W., and about 1 sea mile broad, N. N. W. and S. S. E.

Further deterioration of the Guptakhally Crossing.

WITH reference to Notice to Mariners No. 234, dated the 30th ultimo, issued by this office, the Port Officer, Chittagong, has given further notice that the soundings over the Guptakhally Crossing have again deteriorated, and only 10 feet reduced can be depended upon. The sand has also extended considerably into the channel between the Guptakhally buoys, and a cask buoy has been laid in 12 feet reduced to mark the same. Great caution must be used in navigating the river in this vicinity, as the sand is evidently in a state of transition.

Latitude	18° 20' 40" South.
Longitude	143° 19' 55" East,

Middle Reef Beacon bearing S.E. by S. $\frac{1}{2}$ S., distant 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles. CHINA SEA—HOSSACK AND DOROTHEA SHOALS.

Non-existence of these shoals.

THE following Notice to Mariners (No. 634 of 1894), issued by the British Admiralty, is republished for general information:—

Between the years 1857 and 1886 three reports were made respecting the existence of a shoal or breakers to the north-eastward of the Pratas.

1. DOROTHEA SHOAL reported in North China Mail of August 22nd 1857, by Captain Van den Kolk of the Netherlands barque Dorothea. The Dorothea was lost on a rock stated to be 9 or 10 feet below the surface, and with deep water around, in latitude $21^{\circ} 5' N.$, longitude $116^{\circ} 40' E.$

2. HOSSACK SHOAL reported by Captain Hossack of the British ship Cyclone, originally in the Straits Times of 1861 and subsequently in the Nautical Magazine—

Captain Hossack's report was that on the 9th August 1861 two patches were seen in latitude $21^{\circ} 31' N.$, longitude $117^{\circ} 7' E.$ The easternmost patch appeared to be very shoal, and about 400 feet in extent: it was marked by breakers, and the position was ascertained by astronomical observations.

3. ALDEN BESSE SHOAL.—In Notice No. 24 of 1886, issued by the United States Bureau of Navigation, it is stated that Mr. J. A. O'Brien, Master of the barque Alden Besse, reported that on April 6th, 1886, he saw a shoal, of small extent, over which the sea was breaking, in latitude $21^{\circ} 11' N.$, longitude $116^{\circ} 24' E.$ Mr. O'Brien further stated, in answer to enquiries, that when 3 days out from Hong-Kong breakers were seen between 2 P.M. and 3 P.M.; the N.E. monsoon was blowing moderately at the time from E.N.E., the ship's speed, being about 5 knots. The sea broke heavily on one particular spot and the breakers were distinctly heard; elsewhere no breaking waves were seen. The ship passed within $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles of the breakers, which were estimated as 150 feet in extent. Good astronomical observations were obtained.

It will thus be seen that the descriptions given by Captain Hossack and Mr. O'Brien are very similar, but the positions differ widely; whilst the positions of Captain Van den Kolk and Mr. O'Brien agree fairly well, but the descriptions differ.

These reported dangers were searched for by H.M.S. Serpent, Commander Bullock, in 1866; by H.M. Surveying Vessel Rambler, Captain the Honourable F. C. P. Vereker, in 1889; and by H.M. Surveying Vessel Egeria, Commander A. M. Field, in 1891 and 1892, the latter search occupying 11 days. No danger has hitherto been discovered.

Whilst searching for these reported shoals both Captain Vereker and Commander Field report that the currents in the neighbourhood are exceptionally strong, and that tide rips are frequent. They have been occasionally seen like breakers over a shoal; in fact once on the night of the 22nd March 1889, Captain Vereker reports "Breakers were distinctly heard, with regular intervals between the breaks, and altering course I steamed towards them, carefully sounding. There was a fair amount of moonlight, and I was nearly convinced we had discovered the shoal until I obtained a sounding of 202 fathoms, muddy bottom, in the centre of the breakers, and found it was a small, but heavy tide rip travelling to the north-westward."

It seems probable that both Captain Hossack and Mr. O'Brien were deceived by appearances similar to that experienced by Captain Vereker, and that the breakers they saw were simply heavy tide rips.

With respect to the report of the Dorothea, which appeared in the China Mail, it is believed some error has been made; for enquiries addressed to the Netherlands authorities have elicited the information that Captain Van den Kolk reported on his arrival at Batavia, in 1857, that the Dorothea had been lost on the Pratas on the night of July 9th, 1857.

A careful consideration of the various reports made respecting the existence of dangers north-east of the Pratas, combined with the reports of the surveying officers when searching the locality, leads to the conclusion that these reported dangers need no longer remain on the Admiralty charts, and they have been accordingly expunged.

EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO—SUMATRA, WEST COAST.

Reefs and shoals on the west coast of Atjeh and near Simaloer island.

THE following Notice to Mariners, issued by the Vice-Admiral Commanding the Naval Forces in Neth.—India, No. 34, dated Batavia, the 22nd November 1894, is republished:—

Information has been received from Lieutenant and Commander J. P. Van Rossum, H. M. Benkoelen, of the existence of the undermentioned rocks and shoals on the W. coast of Atjeh and near Simaloer island:—

1. The bay of Laboean Hadji is north of the line "W. extreme of the bay W. N. W.," nearly full of stones.

Ships must keep the W. extreme of the bay north of the bearing W. N. W.

2. A breaker was seen on little distance north, when the ship was in approximately lat. $2^{\circ} 36' N.$, long. $97^{\circ} 17' E.$

3. A shoal with a depth of 10 fathoms hard ground on it in approximately lat. $234^{\circ} N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 45' E.$ Westward of this shoal depths of 20 to 17 fathoms have been obtained at a distance of about 1,100 yards.

4. A shoal with a depth of 5 fathoms stones on it has been obtained on the bearings: Cape Lentang N. $9^{\circ} W.$ and Cape Toebah S. $82^{\circ} W.$

A reef of great extent exists here with less water, apparently connected with the island Simaloer.

The shoal lies in approximately lat. $2^{\circ} 25' N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 25' E.$, and is to be known by discoloring water.

5. A depth of 8 fathoms stones has been obtained on the bearings: Cape Lentang N. $6^{\circ} E.$ and Cape Kakat N. $70^{\circ} W.$

Also a reef of great extent with discoloring water exists here, apparently with less water.

Approximate position: lat. $2^{\circ} 21.5' N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 23.5' E.$

There is a fairway between the reefs 4 and 5 with more than 20 fathoms water.

It is advisable not to approach the S. E. coast of Simaloer island within 4 sea miles.

6. A wooded island, named Sevelak, lies north, distant about 2 sea miles from Tapak island.

Approximate position: lat. $2^{\circ} 29.5' N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 8' E.$

7. A depth of 8 fathoms stones has been obtained on the bearings:—

N. E. extreme Tapak	S. $83^{\circ} E.$
S. W. extreme Tjoet (Mintjau)	S. $40^{\circ}.5 E.$
Sevelak island (centre)	N. $68^{\circ} E.$

Approximate position: lat. $2^{\circ} 28' N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 4.5' E.$

8. A shoal, on which the sea breaks, on the bearings:—

N. E. extreme Tapak	S. $\frac{1}{2} E.$
Sevelak island (centre)	N. W. $\frac{1}{4} W.$

or in approximately lat. $2^{\circ} 29' N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 8.5' E.$

9. A reef with a depth of 5 fathoms on it on the bearings:—

Cape Lambaja	N. by W. $\frac{1}{2} W.$
S. extreme Simaloer Tjoet	W. $\frac{1}{8} N.$

In this vicinity breakers were seen, so that there is perhaps less water on the shoal.

10. A shoal with breakers lying N. W., distant about 2 sea miles from the W. extreme of Simaloer Tjoet.

Approximate position: lat. $2^{\circ} 32.5' N.$, long. $95^{\circ} 55.5' E.$

11. A shoal with breakers, lying S. W., distant about 4 sea miles from the W. extreme of Simaloer Tjoet.

12. A reef of great extent lying W. by N. $\frac{1}{2} N.$, distant 5 sea miles from the W. extreme of Simaloer Tjoet.

The reef on which the sea always breaks is about 2 sea miles long., E. N. E. and W. S. W., and about 1 sea mile broad, N. N. W. and S. S. E.

Approximate position: lat. $2^{\circ} 33' N.$, long. $95^{\circ} 52' E.$

CHINA SEA—HOSSACK AND DOROTHEA SHOALS.

Non-existence of these shoals.

THE following Notice to Mariners (No. 634 of 1894), issued by the British Admiralty, is republished for general information:—

Between the years 1857 and 1886 three reports were made respecting the existence of a shoal or breakers to the north-eastward of the Pratas.

1. DOROTHEA SHOAL reported in North China Mail of August 22nd 1857, by Captain Van den Kolk of the Netherlands barque Dorothea. The Dorothea was lost on a rock stated to be 9 or 10 feet below the surface, and with deep water around, in latitude $21^{\circ} 5' N.$, longitude $116^{\circ} 40' E.$

2. HOSSACK SHOAL reported by Captain Hossack of the British ship Cyclone, originally in the Straits Times of 1861 and subsequently in the Nautical Magazine—

Captain Hossack's report was that on the 9th August 1861 two patches were seen in latitude $21^{\circ} 31' N.$, longitude $117^{\circ} 7' E.$ The easternmost patch appeared to be very shoal, and about 400 feet in extent: it was marked by breakers, and the position was ascertained by astronomical observations.

3. ALDEN BESSE SHOAL.—In Notice No. 24 of 1886, issued by the United States Bureau of Navigation, it is stated that Mr. J. A. O'Brien, Master of the barque Alden Besse, reported that on April 6th, 1886, he saw a shoal, of small extent, over which the sea was breaking, in latitude $21^{\circ} 11' N.$, longitude $116^{\circ} 24' E.$ Mr. O'Brien further stated, in answer to enquiries, that when 3 days out from Hong-Kong breakers were seen between 2 P.M. and 3 P.M.; the N.E. monsoon was blowing moderately at the time from E.N.E., the ship's speed being about 5 knots. The sea broke heavily on one particular spot and the breakers were distinctly heard; elsewhere no breaking waves were seen. The ship passed within $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles of the breakers, which were estimated as 150 feet in extent. Good astronomical observations were obtained.

It will thus be seen that the descriptions given by Captain Hossack and Mr. O'Brien are very similar, but the positions differ widely; whilst the positions of Captain Van den Kolk and Mr. O'Brien agree fairly well, but the descriptions differ.

These reported dangers were searched for by H.M.S. Serpent, Commander Bullock, in 1806; by H.M. Surveying Vessel Rambler, Captain the Honourable F. C. P. Vereker, in 1889; and by H.M. Surveying Vessel Egeria, Commander A. M. Field, in 1891 and 1892, the latter search occupying 11 days. No danger has hitherto been discovered.

Whilst searching for these reported shoals both Captain Vereker and Commander Field report that the currents in the neighbourhood are exceptionally strong, and that tide rips are frequent. They have been occasionally seen like breakers over a shoal; in fact once on the night of the 22nd March 1889, Captain Vereker reports "Breakers were distinctly heard, with regular intervals between the breaks, and altering course I steamed towards them, carefully sounding. There was a fair amount of moonlight, and I was nearly convinced we had discovered the shoal until I obtained a sounding of 202 fathoms, muddy bottom, in the centre of the breakers, and found it was a small, but heavy tide rip travelling to the north-westward."

It seems probable that both Captain Hossack and Mr. O'Brien were deceived by appearances similar to that experienced by Captain Vereker, and that the breakers they saw were simply heavy tide rips.

With respect to the report of the Dorothea, which appeared in the China Mail, it is believed some error has been made; for enquiries addressed to the Netherlands authorities have elicited the information that Captain Van den Kolk reported on his arrival at Batavia, in 1857, that the Dorothea had been lost on the Pratas on the night of July 9th, 1857.

A careful consideration of the various reports made respecting the existence of dangers north-east of the Pratas, combined with the reports of the surveying officers when searching the locality, leads to the conclusion that these reported dangers need no longer remain on the Admiralty charts, and they have been accordingly expunged.

EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO—SUMATRA, WEST COAST.

Reefs and shoals on the west coast of Atjeh and near Simaloer island.

The following Notice to Mariners, issued by the Vice-Admiral Commanding the Naval Forces in Neth.—India, No. 34, dated Batavia, the 22nd November 1894, is republished:—

Information has been received from Lieutenant and Commander J. P. Van Rossum, H. M. Benkoelen, of the existence of the undermentioned rocks and shoals on the W. coast of Atjeh and near Simaloer island:—

1. The bay of Laboean Hadji is north of the line "W. extreme of the bay W. N. W.," nearly full of stones.

Ships must keep the W. extreme of the bay north of the bearing W. N. W.

2. A breaker was seen on little distance north, when the ship was in approximately lat. $2^{\circ} 36' N.$, long. $97^{\circ} 17' E.$

3. A shoal with a depth of 10 fathoms hard ground on it in approximately lat. $234^{\circ} N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 45' E.$ Westward of this shoal depths of 20 to 17 fathoms have been obtained at a distance of about 1,100 yards.

4. A shoal with a depth of 5 fathoms stones on it has been obtained on the bearings: Cape Lentang N. $9^{\circ} W.$ and Cape Toebah S. $82^{\circ} W.$

A reef of great extent exists here with less water, apparently connected with the island Simaloer.

The shoal lies in approximately lat. $2^{\circ} 25' N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 25' E.$, and is to be known by discoloring water.

5. A depth of 8 fathoms stones has been obtained on the bearings: Cape Lentang N. $6^{\circ} E.$ and Cape Kakat N. $70^{\circ} W.$

Also a reef of great extent with discoloring water exists here, apparently with less water.

Approximate position: lat. $2^{\circ} 21.5' N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 23.5' E.$

There is a fairway between the reefs 4 and 5 with more than 20 fathoms water.

It is advisable not to approach the S. E. coast of Simaloer island within 4 sea miles.

6. A wooded island, named Sevelak, lies north, distant about 2 sea miles from Tapak island.

Approximate position: lat. $2^{\circ} 29.5' N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 8' E.$

7. A depth of 8 fathoms stones has been obtained on the bearings:—

N. E. extreme Tapak	S. $83^{\circ} E.$
S. W. extreme Tjoet (Mintjau)	S. $40^{\circ} 5' E.$
Sevelak island (centre)	N. $68^{\circ} E.$

Approximate position: lat. $2^{\circ} 28' N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 4.5' E.$

8. A shoal, on which the sea breaks, on the bearings:—

N. E. extreme Tapak	S. $\frac{1}{2} E.$
Sevelak island (centre)	N. W. $\frac{1}{2} W.$

or in approximately lat. $2^{\circ} 29' N.$, long. $96^{\circ} 8.5' E.$

9. A reef with a depth of 5 fathoms on it on the bearings:—

Cape Lambaja	N. by W. $\frac{1}{2} W.$
S. extreme Simaloer Tjoet	W. $\frac{1}{2} N.$

In this vicinity breakers were seen, so that there is perhaps less water on the shoal.

10. A shoal with breakers lying N. W., distant about 2 sea miles from the W. extreme of Simaloer Tjoet.

Approximate position: lat. $2^{\circ} 32.5' N.$, long. $95^{\circ} 55.5' E.$

11. A shoal with breakers, lying S. W., distant about 4 sea miles from the W. extreme of Simaloer Tjoet.

12. A reef of great extent lying W. by N. $\frac{1}{2} N.$, distant 5 sea miles from the W. extreme of Simaloer Tjoet.

The reef on which the sea always breaks is about 2 sea miles long, E. N. E. and W. S. W., and about 1 sea mile broad, N. N. W. and S. S. E.

Approximate position: lat. $2^{\circ} 33' N.$, long. $95^{\circ} 52' E.$

Bearings true.

APPENDIX TO

The Calcutta Gazette.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1895.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL,—MARINE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 19 Marine, dated Calcutta, the 13th February 1895.

UNDER section 10 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1859, the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased, with the sanction of the Governor-General in Council, to make the following rules for the conduct of examinations for Masters and Mates of Foreign-going Ships and Home Trade Ships and as to the qualifications to be required. These rules are in supersession of the rules issued under notifications Nos. 25 and 26 Marine, dated Calcutta, the 30th and 31st January 1890, respectively, and will take effect from the 1st of May 1895.

C. W. ODLING,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

2. Every Certificate of Competency for a "Foreign-going Ship" is to be deemed to be of a higher grade than the corresponding Certificate for a "Home Trade Passenger Ship," and entitles the lawful holder to go to sea in the corresponding grade in such last-mentioned Ship; but no Certificate for a "Home Trade Passenger Ship" entitles the holder to go to sea as Master or Mate of a "Foreign-going Ship," nor does a Certificate of Service entitle the possessor to act in a Vessel of any class except that for which it is granted.

Foreign-going
superior to Home Trade
Passenger
cates.

3. Certificates of Competency will be granted to those persons who pass the requisite examinations and otherwise comply with the requisite conditions. For this purpose examiners have been appointed, and arrangements have been made for holding examinations at the ports and upon the days mentioned in Appendix A.

Certificates
granted to persons who pass
examinations.

4. The examinations will commence early in the forenoon, and will be continued from day to day until all the Candidates whose names appear upon the Port Officer's list on the day of examination are examined.

Examinations
continued till all the Candi-
examined.

5. Candidates for examination must make their application upon the appropriate form (Exn. 2) which must be filled up at the Port Office. The Exn. 2, properly filled in, together with the Candidate's testimonials and discharges, must be lodged with the Port Officer of Calcutta, not later than the day before the day of examination, and the Candidate must conform to any regulations in this respect which may be laid down by the Government, as, if this be not done, delay may be occasioned, and it is therefore desirable that the discharges and testimonials should be handed in, together with the Form, Exn. 2, as many days as possible before the date of the examination which the Candidate desires to attend, as in the absence of the necessary verification the candidate cannot be examined.

plication for examination
to be given to the Port Officer.

Sea Service
Regulations.

6. In cases where a Candidate is in doubt whether his Sea Service complies with the Regulations, and he wishes to submit his case for special consideration, all Certificates, discharges, testimonials, &c., together with the Form, Exn. 2 (which can be obtained at the Port Office) properly filled in, and a concise statement of the irregularity, should be sent to the Port Officer of Calcutta. If necessary, the Port Officer will, after seeing that the required information is clearly set forth in the papers, and making his remarks thereon, forward them to the Government who will deal with the case, or the Port Officer may transmit it to the Board of Trade for decision.

Inquiries
examinations.

7. All other Inquiries regarding examinations should be made and dealt with in the same way. The point on which information is sought should be clearly stated, and Certificates, discharges, testimonials, &c., should be forwarded when they are material to the inquiry.

Foreigners to know English.

8. Foreigners must prove, to the satisfaction of the Examiners, that they can speak and write the English language sufficiently well to perform the duties required of them on board a British Vessel (see also paras. 21 and 130). In the case of candidates for Home Trade Certificates, the Certificates of Asiatics who may not be able to speak English shall be endorsed to the effect that they are valid only for vessels manned and officered entirely by Asiatics.

to age.

9. Should any doubt exist as to the age of a Candidate, he will be required to produce a certificate of birth.

Inaccurate
of service.

10. It is provided by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (sec. 104), that every person who makes, or procures to be made, or assists in making, any false presentation for the purpose of obtaining for himself or for any other person a Certificate of Competency, shall for each offence be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour,—the punishment for which is imprisonment for any period not exceeding six months, with or without hard labour, or a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees. These provisions will be strictly enforced by the Government, and any Candidate for a Certificate of Competency as Master, or as First, or Second, or Only Mate, in the Merchant Service, who shall, knowingly and fraudulently, for the purpose of obtaining any such Certificate, present to the Port Office of Calcutta any "application to be examined for a Certificate of Competency" (Exn. 2) or statutory declaration containing any false or inaccurate statement of service, and any person who shall knowingly and fraudulently make or prepare, or assist in making or preparing, any such false or inaccurate statement, will be prosecuted.

Form Exn. 16.
examination.

11. If the Candidate passes he will receive the Form Exn. 16, which authorises the Port Officer to whom it is addressed by the Examiner to issue the Certificate to the Candidate, whose testimonials, &c., will be returned at the same time. It is therefore important that the port of destination of the Certificate should be the same on both the Form Exn. 16 and the Form Exn. 2. If circumstances should make any alteration necessary, the Examiner should see that it is made in both Forms, otherwise delay in the issue of the Certificate may be caused.

If after passing
examination
found to have
cient.

12. If after a candidate has passed his examination it is discovered on further investigation, e.g., by verification on the part of the Port Officer, that his services are insufficient to entitle him to receive a Certificate of the grade for which he has passed, such Certificate will not be granted to him; but if the Government is satisfied that the error in the calculation of the Candidate's services did not occur through any fault or wilful misrepresentation on his part, he may be granted a Certificate of such lower grade as his service entitles him to. The difference, if any, between the fee paid by him for the superior Certificate and the fee payable for the inferior Certificate will be placed to his credit. A Certificate for the higher grade will not be granted until the Candidate has performed the amount of service in which he was deficient, and has been re-examined in all the subjects.

Suspension or Cancellation of Certificates.

13. Certificates are liable to suspension or cancellation:—

- (1) On an investigation ordered by the Government under section 478 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, into the incompetency or misconduct of the possessors.
- (2) By courts of inquiry into shipping casualties under the 6th part of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894.
- (3) By the Government under section 20 of the Merchant Shipping Act V (L.C.) of 1883.

14. No Certificate which has been cancelled will be re-issued or renewed without the express sanction of the Government.

Regulations as regards Sea Service and other qualifications for Examination.

15. For Foreign-going Certificates the term "Sea Service" means, unless otherwise stated, service performed in Foreign-going Vessels. "Sea Service."

16. For Home-Trade Passenger Ship Certificates Service in the Home or Coasting Trade is regarded as equivalent to service in the Foreign Trade; but for Foreign-going Certificates it is regarded as only equivalent to two-thirds of the same time served in the Foreign Trade. Service in Home or Coasting Trade.

17. CERTIFICATE.—By "Certificate" is meant a Certificate granted by the Board of Trade under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, or the Acts amending the same, or the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894; or by the Government of a British Possession under an Order in Council issued in pursuance of sec. 8 of the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869, or sec. 102 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894; or by the Governments of Bengal, Bombay, and Madras under the Merchant Shipping Act I (L.C.) of 1859. "Certificate."

18. Officer's Service, to be recognised as such, must be performed with the requisite Certificate as specified in paras. 59, 62, and 84, and in Appendix S. The Officer's Service performed by men who have been duly promoted during the course of a voyage (see para. 24), or who in consequence of serving in vessels plying between ports abroad have been unable to obtain the necessary Certificate, may, however, be recognised, provided that it is in other respects satisfactory. Officer's service.

19. Testimonials to character and to sobriety, experience, ability and good conduct on board ship for at least the twelve months of service last preceding the date of application to be examined, will be required of all applicants, and without producing them no person will be examined. Testimonials to character, conduct, and ability required. S. 134.

20. Candidates who have neglected to join their vessels after having signed Articles, or who have deserted their vessels, after having joined, or who have been found guilty of gross misconduct on board, will be required to produce satisfactory proofs of two years' subsequent service and good conduct at sea, unless the Local Government, after having investigated the matter, should see fit to reduce the time. Desertion and gross misconduct.

21. The testimonials of service of Foreigners and of British Officers and Seamen serving in foreign vessels, which cannot be verified by the Port Officer, must be confirmed either by the Consul of the country to which the ship in which the Candidate served belonged, or by some other recognised official authority of that country, or by the testimony of some credible person on the spot having personal knowledge of the facts required to be established. The production, however, of such proofs will not of necessity be deemed sufficient. Each case will be decided on its own merits, and if the sufficiency of the proofs given appears to be at all doubtful, it must be referred to the Government. Service in Foreign Vessels.

22. The time for which length of service as Seaman or Officer in the Mercantile Marine is to be reckoned in all cases referred to in the following paragraphs is from the commencement to the termination of the voyage. The Verification of services.

Certificates of Discharge for service in the Foreign Trade will generally be accepted as proof of such service, but Certificates of Discharge for service in the Home or Coasting Trade must always be sent to the Superintendent, Mercantile Marine, for verification. Great care must be exercised by the Port Officer and Examiners so as to detect any tampering with the information contained in these Discharges; any suspicious cases must be reported at once to the Government. If a Candidate has apparently sufficient service to qualify him for Examination for a Certificate of Competency, but some part of such service requires verification, he should fill up the Form (Exn. 2) of Application to be examined, pay the Examination Fee, and forward the Form, together with all his discharges and testimonials, to the Port Officer of Calcutta, who will then make any necessary verification without further charge.

Articles.

23. Services which cannot be verified by proper Entries in the Articles of the Ships in which the Candidates have served cannot be counted. For instance, a man will state his service to have been as Second or Only Mate, and to support his assertion will produce a Certificate of Discharge or of employment by the Master, to the effect that he served as Mate, when on reference to the Articles it appears that he has actually been rated as Boatswain; the service in such a case will not be regarded as having been in the capacity of Mate.

Promotion
during Voyage.

24. Whenever a man has, from any cause, been regularly promoted, on the occurrence of a vacancy in the course of the Voyage, from the rank in which he first shipped, and such promotion, with the ground on which it has been made, is properly entered in the Articles and in the Official Log Book, he will receive credit for his service in the higher grade for the period subsequent to his promotion.

Service in Trawlers, &c.

25. Service performed exclusively in Trawlers and other deep sea-fishing vessels will not qualify a Candidate for examination. He must in addition prove the following service:—

- (1) For a Foreign-going Certificate, service for at least eighteen months in an ordinary trading vessel in the Foreign Trade, or the equivalent period (27 months) in the Home or Coasting Trade.
- (2) For a Home Trade Passenger-ship Certificate, service for at least twelve months in an ordinary trading vessel in the Foreign, Home, or Coasting Trade.

Service in Pleasure Yachts.

26. Service in Pleasure Yachts will be accepted as qualifying service under the following conditions:—

- (a) Service in Pleasure Yachts must in all cases be verified by satisfactory proofs, which must set forth clearly and in detail the nature and duration of the service claimed, and it must be distinctly understood that only actual sea service will be accepted, service in harbour or port being inadmissible.
- (b) Service in Foreign-going Yachts will be accepted in full; and service performed within Home Trade limits in Sailing Yachts of not less than 50 tons net register or in Steam Yachts of not less than 80 tons gross register will be accepted in the proportion stated in para. 16; but candidates must also show (1) For a Foreign-going Certificate, service for at least eighteen months in an ordinary trading vessel in the Foreign Trade, or for the equivalent period (27 months) in an ordinary trading vessel in the Home or Coasting Trade. (2) For a Home Trade Passenger-ship Certificate, service for at least twelve months in an ordinary trading vessel in the Foreign, Home, or Coasting Trade.
- (c) Service within Home Trade limits in Sailing Yachts of under 50 tons and not less than 20 tons net register, or in Steam Yachts of under 80 tons and not less than 40 tons gross register, will be accepted towards qualifying a candidate for a Foreign-going Certificate as equivalent to half the same time served in the Foreign Trade, but no amount of such service shall count as more than two years' service in the Foreign Trade, and no such service shall count as Officers' Service to qualify Candidates for Foreign-going Certificates.

- (d) Service within Home Trade limits in Sailing Yachts of not less than 20 tons net register, or in Steam Yachts of not less than 40 tons gross register, will be accepted at the ordinary rate as qualifying service for Home Trade Passenger-ship Certificates, but Candidates must prove that they have in addition served for at least twelve months in an ordinary trading vessel in the Foreign, Home, or Coasting Trade.
- (e) Service within Home Trade limits in Sailing Yachts of less than 20 tons net register, or in Steam Yachts of less than 40 tons gross register, will not be accepted as qualifying service for any class of Certificate.

27. Service performed in Tug Boats employed in Channel Service or outside partially smooth water limits (see Appendix R) may be accepted as Sea Service qualifying for a Mate's or Master's Certificate for Home Trade Passenger Ships. Service in Tug Boats.

28. Service in Steam Hopper barges may (subject to para. 30) be allowed to count towards qualifying a Candidate for a Mate's Certificate of competency for Home Trade Passenger Ships, provided he can prove at least two years' service in an ordinary trading vessel in either the Home, Coasting, or Foreign Trade. Service in these Steam Hoppers will not be accepted as Officer's service towards qualifying a Candidate for a Master's Certificate. Service in Steam Hopper Barges.

29. Service in Light-ships or in an Engine-room will not be accepted as sea service. Service in Light-Ships and Engine-room.

30. Service performed on rivers, no matter of what size, and service performed within smooth or partially smooth water limits (see Appendix R.), will not be accepted. Service on rivers and in smooth waters.

Where any doubt whatever exists on this point, the Candidate must be required to produce a Certificate from the Master or Owner of the vessel in which the service was performed, before the service can be accepted.

31. In the case of service on board Excursion Steamers only such service as can be proved to have been performed actually at sea can be accepted. Service in Excursion Steamers.

32. Service in Auxiliary Screw Whaling Ships and other Vessels with auxiliary steam power, which use their screws only in calms or during light winds, is considered as service performed in Sailing Vessels. Service in Auxiliary Screw Whaling Ships.

33. Service in a lower grade than First or Only Mate in the Home or Coasting Trade will not be recognised as Officer's Service towards qualifying a Candidate for examination for a Foreign Trade Certificate. Only Mate, Home, or Coasting Trade.

34. Service as Additional or Auxiliary First Mate, or as Auxiliary Second Mate (when a Third Mate is carried) in large Foreign-going vessels will count as First Mate's or Second Mate's service, as the case may be, provided that the Candidate was entered on the Articles in one of these capacities, and that he was, during the whole time claimed, in charge of a Watch or Watches. Auxiliary Mate.

35. When service "in charge of a Watch" in either the Foreign or Home Trade, is specified in the Regulations, the Candidate will have to prove that during the whole of the time claimed he had the regular charge of a Watch or Watches, which, if in the Foreign Trade, must amount to not less than 8 hours of each 24 hours of service. It must be distinctly understood that occasional service in charge of a Watch will not be accepted as Mate's service under the Regulations. Service "in charge of a Watch."

Great care must be exercised by the Port Officer in regard to such service, and unless the Candidate produces a clear and satisfactory Certificate, specially setting forth the above facts, from the Master or Owner of the Vessel in which the service was performed, it must not be accepted.

Pilot. 36. The term "Pilot" in these Regulations (see paras. 59 and 84, and Appendix S.) means a pilot who is employed in general pilotage, and holds a First Class Pilot's Certificate from some competent authority authorising him to pilot vessels outside Harbour and partially smooth water limits. A Hooghly Master Pilot is for the purpose of this rule to be considered as First Class Pilot.

Service in capacities other than as Apprentice, Midshipman, or Seaman. 37. Candidates whose services have been in capacities other than Apprentice, Midshipman, Ordinary Seaman, or Able Seaman, e.g., Cook (when it is performed in small vessels, where cooking is only a part of a man's duty), Carpenter, or Sailmaker, will be required to satisfy the Port Officer that they have, during the whole time claimed, performed deck duties in addition to their own particular work, and that they have a good knowledge of Seamanship. These facts may possibly be proved by the production of satisfactory Certificates from the Masters with whom the Applicant has served; but such service will only be accepted as equivalent to two-thirds of the same time served as ordinary deck hand. Failing satisfactory evidence, the Applicant will be required to perform additional service in the capacity of Seaman. Service as Cook (under other conditions than the above), or as Steward, will not be accepted.

Service on board a Training Ship. 38. Half the time served on board a training ship will be allowed to count as service at sea up to a limit of one year (i.e., no length of service will be allowed to count as more than one year at sea), provided that the Candidate can produce a Certificate from the Committee that he has conducted himself creditably and passed a good examination in seamanship, so far as it is practised in the training ship, as well as in other matters, down to the time of his leaving the ship, but this service will not be regarded as equivalent to service in square-rigged vessels.

Apprentices. 39. The whole of the time served under Indentures of Apprenticeship (unless the same are cancelled through some fault of the Candidate) will be accepted as actual Sea Service under the Regulations, provided that the Applicant has served at sea four-fifths of the time claimed as Apprentice (i.e., that he has not spent more than one-fifth of the time claimed in Home Ports), and provided also that his Indentures are endorsed by the Owner or Master to whom he has been bound, to the effect that he has performed his service faithfully during the time he remained Apprentice. In cases where an Apprentice may be qualified for examination before the expiration of his Indentures (or for any other satisfactory reason), a letter from the Owner or Master will be accepted in place of this endorsement.

In the event of the Candidate being short of the required four-fifths of his Apprentice's time out of the United Kingdom, he will be required to show sufficient additional sea service, either as seaman or junior officer, to make up the four-fifths of the time claimed as Apprentice.

Midshipmen in the Mercantile Marine. 40. The whole of the time served as Midshipman in the Mercantile Marine will be accepted, subject to the same conditions as those laid down for Apprentices, provided the Candidate has been bound by Indentures during the time claimed as Midshipman, but not otherwise.

Apprentice in Trinity House Vessels. 41. Five years completed service as Apprentice in a Trinity House Steam Vessel will be allowed to count as three years service at sea towards qualifying a Candidate to be examined for a Second Mate's Certificate for Foreign-going Steamships, and the remaining twelve months' service required by the Regulations must be performed in a Foreign-going Trading Vessel, either steam or sailing; or, seven years' completed service in a Trinity House Steam Vessel will be allowed to count as three and-a-half years at sea, while the remaining six months must be performed in a Foreign-going Trading Vessel, either steam or sailing.

Five or more years completed service as Apprentice in a Trinity House Steam Vessel will be allowed to count as two and-a-half years service at sea towards qualifying a Candidate to be examined for an Ordinary Certificate as Second Mate; the remaining 18 months service required by the Regulations to be performed in a Foreign-going (Trading) Sailing Vessel.

Service in the Royal Navy, Royal Indian Marine, and Royal Naval Reserve.

42. Officers of the Royal Navy are at liberty to apply for Certificates of Service and to be examined for Certificates of Competency in the Mercantile Marine, but the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty have directed that the applications of officers on the active list should be made through their commanding officers, and that the applications of officers on half-pay should be made to the Secretary of the Admiralty, who, in either case, will forward the application to the Government. In the case of Royal Indian Marine officers' applications to be made through the Government of India.

Royal Navy.*

43. The conditions on which Certificates of service are issued are stated at page 40.

44. Officers of the Royal Navy or Royal Indian Marine desirous of being examined for Certificates of competency in the Mercantile Marine will be required to prove the following service, and if the officer wishes to obtain an Ordinary Certificate he must prove that at least twelve months of this required period was served under sail alone.

45. For Second Mate.—A Candidate must produce satisfactory evidence of four years' service at sea, or that he has attained the rank of Acting Sub-Lieutenant.

46. For Only Mate.—A Candidate must prove five years' service at sea.

47. For First Mate or Master.—A candidate must show that he has attained the rank of Sub-Lieutenant.

48. Officers of the Royal Naval Reserve who perform sea service on board Her Majesty's ships in the capacity of Lieutenant or Sub-Lieutenant, will be allowed to count such service as if it had been performed on Foreign-going Merchant Ships; and the service will rank according to the Certificate of Competency held by the Candidate at the time.

49. If accompanied by a good report, half the time spent in Drill in the Royal Naval Reserve, and in Harbour Ships of the Royal or Colonial Navies, will be allowed to count as sea service, subject to the limit that no such service must amount to more than one-fourth of the time required for the particular grade of Certificate applied for.

*Drill in Royal Naval Reserve,
&c.*

‡ See Appendix G. The terms "true" and "magnetic" are used throughout the Regulations for the sake of brevity and convenience, for indicating charts that have compasses engraved upon them showing the "true" or "magnetic" points of the compass respectively.

§ See Appendix H.

|| For convenience of calculation the service required is stated in a tabular form in Appendix B.

- (b) or, he must have served six years at sea, of which one year and-a-half must have been in a capacity not lower than Only Mate of a Home Trade or Coasting Vessel whilst holding a Certificate not lower than an Only Mate's Certificate for Foreign-going Vessels, and, unless this service as officer was performed whilst holding a First Mate's Certificate for Foreign-going Vessels, he will also be required to prove the officer's service prescribed for that grade (para. 59);

Examinations for Extra and Honorary Certificates.

CERTIFICATES OF COMPETENCY AS EXTRA MASTER.

87. An Extra Master's Certificate will entitle the holder to go to sea as Master of any vessel, sailing or steam.

88. An EXTRA MASTER'S EXAMINATION is voluntary and intended for such persons as wish to prove their superior qualifications and are desirous of having Certificates of the highest grade granted by the Board of Trade.

89. The Extra Examination may take place when the Applicant is qualified to go up for Examination for an Ordinary Master's Certificate, or at any time subsequent to his having passed as Master Ordinary.

90. EXAMINATION IN NAVIGATION.—In addition to the qualifications required for an Ordinary Master's Certificate, the Candidate will be required to work a lunar observation by either sun, star, or planet; to compute the altitudes for the same when they are not given; to determine the latitude by the meridian altitude of the moon, and by an altitude of the Polar star at any time. He will be required to find the latitude by double altitudes of the sun, or of a star, and to verify the result by Sumner's method. He must find the error of a watch or chronometer from equal altitudes of the sun, and must be able to correct altitudes observed by means of an artificial horizon. He will be required to show a thorough knowledge of the laws of the deviation of the compasses in iron ships.† He must be acquainted with the leading principles of the construction of the sextant and of the "Vernier." He must explain the nature of great circle sailing, and show how to apply practically that knowledge; and must have a more extensive knowledge of the subject of the law of storms than that required by an Ordinary Master.

91. EXAMINATION IN SEAMANSHIP, &c.—In addition to the qualifications required of an Ordinary Master, the Extra Master will be expected to give satisfactory answers to any questions in practical seamanship that the Examiners may think proper to put to him; and to show a more extensive knowledge and aptness in the Civil Duties of a Shipmaster than would be expected from a Candidate for an Ordinary Master's Certificate.

Certificates of Competency as Extra Master for Foreign-going Steamships only.

92. Extra Certificates for Steamships only will also be issued, subject to the examination hereinafter described to Officers who can show the necessary service in Steamships. The Certificates will be marked "For Steamships only," and will only entitle the holders to go to sea as Masters of Steamships.

* See Appendix M.

† See Appendix L.

93. The Examination is open to all who are qualified to go up for a Master's Certificate for Foreign-going Steamships, or who have already obtained such a Certificate. It is open also to men who have failed in the Examination for an Extra Master's Certificate to show the requisite knowledge of the management of square-rigged sailing vessels, provided they can prove the necessary amount of Officer's service in Steamships. (See para. 181.)

94. EXAMINATION IN NAVIGATION.—The examination in navigation, &c., will be precisely the same as that prescribed for the Extra Master's Certificate. (See para. 90.)

95. EXAMINATION IN SEAMANSHIP, &c.—In addition to the qualifications required of a Master for Foreign-going Steamships only, the Extra Master will be expected to give satisfactory answers to any questions appertaining to the management of a Steamship that the Examiner may think proper to put to him, and to show a more extensive knowledge and aptness in the Civil Duties of a Shipmaster than would be expected from a Candidate for a Master's Certificate for "Foreign-going Steamships only."

Certificates of Competency as Masters of Pleasure Yachts.

96. The examination is purely voluntary, and is to be confined to persons who command their own Sea-going Pleasure Yachts, which Yachts must not be employed in trading. A Master of a Yacht who is not also the sole owner, or who is under 21 years of age, is not eligible for examination.

97. Only one description of Certificate will be issued, whether the Yacht is Foreign-going or only cruises within the Home Trade limits.

98. The Certificate will not entitle the holder to command any vessel except the Pleasure Yacht of which he was owner at the time he passed his examination.

99. If the holder changes or disposes of his Yacht, the Certificate should be surrendered to the Port Officer of Calcutta for transmission to Government. If a fresh Certificate is required, application should be made on Form Exn. 23, which can be obtained at the Port Office. If a fresh Certificate is granted it will bear the name of the new Yacht, and a fee of Rs. 6 will be charged for it.

100. Candidates are not required to have served any specified time afloat, as it is believed that their sea knowledge will be sufficiently tested by the examination they will have to pass in seamanship.

101. Testimonials of service need not be produced.

102. In other respects the Regulations framed for the conduct of the examinations of Masters Ordinary will apply to these cases, but applications will have to be submitted to Government before authority for examination is granted.

103. EXAMINATION IN NAVIGATION, &c.—He will be required to give in writing (vide also supplementary rule voce test, page 38) definitions of various astronomical and other terms used in navigation.* He must have a competent knowledge of the first five rules of arithmetic and the use of logarithms. He must be able to work a day's work complete, correcting the courses for deviation, leeway, and variation. He will be required to find the latitude by meridian altitude of the sun, and the difference of longitude from a given departure by parallel sailing; also to find the course and distance from one position to another by Mercator's method. He must be able to find the daily rate of the chronometer from error observed, and to find the longitude from altitude of the sun by the usual methods. He will be required to find the true bearing of the sun, and the error of the ship's compass from an observed azimuth of

He must construct a deviation curve upon a "Napier's" diagram which will be furnished by the Examiner, and must understand the practical application of the same, and give satisfactory written (and oral) answers to certain practical questions on the effect of the ship's iron upon the compasses, and the method of determining the deviation, showing how to compensate same by magnets and soft iron, by aid of Beall's Compass Deviascope.† He will also be required to answer certain questions, in writing (and orally), relating to cyclones or revolving storms.‡ He must understand the use of the sextant with its adjustments, and be able to observe with it, and find the index error by the horizon, also by the sun, and read off and on the arc.§ He must also be conversant with the use of Mercator's chart, and be able to find, on either a "true" or "magnetic" chart,|| the course to steer and the distance from one given position to another; and find the ship's position on the chart from cross bearings of two objects; from two bearings of the same object, the course and distance run between taking the bearings being given; and the distance of ship from the object at the time of taking the second bearing. Voluntary Examination in the Laws of the Deviation of the Compasses of Iron Ships.

105. Any person holding a Certificate of any grade, whether for the Foreign or Home Trade, or as Master of his own Pleasure Yacht, who wishes to pass a voluntary examination in the Syllabus* of examination on the Laws of the Deviation of the Compasses of an Iron Ship, &c., can at any time be examined upon filling up the usual form of application, and paying to the Port Officer the fee of Rs. 12. If the Candidate passes the examination successfully, a note to that effect will be duly made upon the Certificate held by him.

Voluntary Examination in Steam.

106. These examinations are provided for the purpose of giving Masters and Mates who are possessed of Certificates of Competency an opportunity of undergoing a voluntary examination as to their practical knowledge of the use and working of the steam-engine. They are conducted on the premises, and under the superintendence, of the Port Officer at such times as he may appoint for the purpose; and the Examiners are selected by the Government from the Engineer Surveyors appointed under the Indian Steam Ships' Act, 1884.

Voluntary Examination in Steam.

107. Any person holding a certificate, of any grade, whether for the Foreign or Home Trade, or as Master of his own Pleasure Yacht, who desires to be examined in Steam must deliver to the Port Officer a statement in writing to that effect, upon the Form of Application (Exn. 2), and the Applicant's Certificate of Competency must be delivered to the Port Officer along with his statement.

Application how to be made. Exn. 2.

108. A fee of Rs. 12 must be paid by the Applicant, and the Port Officer will thereupon inform him of the time and place at which he is to attend to be examined, and the examination will then and there proceed in the same manner as the other examinations. If the Applicant fails, his Certificate will be at once returned to him.

Fee to be paid. Conduct of examination, &c.

109. If the Applicant passes, the Report (Exn. 14) and the Certificate of Competency, together with the Form (Exn. 2), will be sent to the Government; the words "Passed in Steam," with the date and place of examination, will then be entered on the Certificate and its counterpart, and the Certificate will be sent to the Port Officer and be delivered to the Applicant in the usual manner.

Record of Certificate. Exn. 14.

110. If the Applicant fails he may not present himself for re-examination until the expiration of three months from the date of failure.

Failure.

111. The examination is for the most part visd voce, and extends to a general knowledge of the practical use and working of the steam-engine, and of the various valves, fittings, and pieces of machinery connected with it. Intricate theoretical questions on calculations of horse-power or areas of cylinders and valves, or any of the more difficult questions which appertain to steam-engines and boilers, will not be asked. The examination will in fact be confined to the duties which a Master of a steam-vessel may be called upon to perform in the case of the death, incapacity, or delinquency of the engineer.

Extent of examination.

112. Examiners are to be careful in their examinations to satisfy themselves that Applicants really do know the names and uses of the various parts of engines and boilers, and their connecting pipes, valves, cocks, &c. Practical knowledge, as distinguished from theories, abstruse calculations, and book learning, is to be the test of the Applicant's fitness to have his Certificate endorsed.

113. The Examiner should arrange to conduct part of the examination in the engine-room of a Steamship, unless from circumstances he finds it impossible to do so; and if an opportunity offer, the Applicant should be permitted, under the guidance of the Examiner, to start and stop the engine of some vessel which may have her steam up.

Where examination to be conducted.

114. The Examiner, in sending in his report of examinations of Masters and Mates in steam, should state where the examination has been held.

Examination
questions.

115. Candidates will be required to give written answers to sixteen out of twenty questions taken from a book of Elementary Questions published by the Government.* These questions will be altered from time to time without notice. The twenty questions are not to be difficult, theoretical, or book questions, but are to be such as any man of ordinary capacity who has any practical knowledge of the use and working of the steam-engine ought to answer.

ment.

116. These questions, with the Candidates' answers, should be sent to the Government, with the reports, after each examination.

117. These answers will also assist in enabling the Government to decide any question that may hereafter arise in cases where it is alleged that Applicants have been improperly passed, or improperly rejected.

Candidates
to books, &c.
to be put
as failed.

118. If a Candidate refers to any book or paper or memorandum, or obtains information from another Candidate during the examination, he will be treated as having failed, will forfeit his fee, and will not be allowed to be re-examined for a period of three months.

In cases of failure
Examiner to report ques-
decided it.

119. The Examiners will report, in the case of failure, the nature of the question or questions that decided the failure, or the point in the management of the engine in which the Candidate was deficient.

Service on board Steam-
sary.

120. There is nothing in the Regulations requiring that Applicants for the voluntary examination shall have served on board Steamships; all that is required is that they shall have a "practical knowledge." Examiners will of course not fail to appreciate the fact, when passing Applicants, that practical knowledge is best gained in the engine-room; and the examination of an Officer who does not produce official evidence of service in Steamships, and of experience of engines, must necessarily be more searching than in the case of one who produces evidence of such service and experience.

Provisional Certificates as First Mate and Master for Royal Naval Reserve purposes only.

121. Provisional Certificates (either Ordinary, or for Foreign-going Steamships, according to the Applicant's qualifications) are granted on the conditions stated below to any officer of the Mercantile Marine who may require such a Certificate to qualify him for appointment to or promotion in the Royal Naval Reserve. They are only available for purposes of the Royal Naval Reserve, and do not authorise the holders to go to sea as First Mate or Master.

122. Candidates for these Certificates must apply to the Port Officer of Calcutta, fill up the form of application (Exn. 2), and pay the usual fee. They must also produce their First or Second Mate's Certificates of Competency, and an authority from the Government or the Admiral Superintendent of Royal Naval Reserves before they can be examined. This authority should be obtained through the Port Officer.

123. Provisional Certificates as First Mate.—Provisional Certificates as First Mate are granted to Candidates who can prove that they have served five years at sea, and that during one year of this period they have served in a capacity not lower than Fourth Mate while holding a Second Mate's Certificate. They must pass the usual examination for First Mate and pay the usual fee. These Certificates are exchangeable for the proper formal Certificate as First Mate, without further payment or examination, on production to the Port Officer of satisfactory proofs that the holder has served at sea not less than 12 months in a Foreign-going

* See Appendix O.

Vessel in a capacity not lower than Fourth Mate, and that during the whole of that period he has been in regular charge of a Watch and in possession of a proper formal Certificate of Competency as Second Mate.

124. Provisional Certificates as Master.—Provisional Certificates as Master are granted to Candidates who can prove not less than six and-a-half years' service at Sea, and who pass the usual examination for Master, and pay the usual fee. Of this service two and-a-half years must have been served in a capacity not lower than Fourth Mate of an Ocean-going Steamship, during the last 12 months of which the Applicant must have been in possession of a proper formal First Mate's Certificate of Competency (not a Provisional Certificate) authorising the holder to go to Sea as First Mate. These Certificates are exchangeable for the proper formal Certificate as Master, without further payment or examination, on production to the Port Officer of satisfactory proofs that the holder has served at Sea not less than two and-a-half years in a Foreign-going Vessel in charge of a Watch in a capacity not lower than Fourth Mate, and that during 12 months of this period he has served as Second Mate while in possession of a proper formal Certificate of Competency as First Mate.

Failure in Examination.

125. In all cases of failure the Candidate must be examined de novo. If a Candidate fails in Seamanship he will not be re-examined until after a lapse of six months. Re-examination in case of failure. Whether the whole or part of this period must be served at sea must depend upon the subjects in Seamanship in which the Candidate failed, but what amount (if any) of sea service will be required will be left to the discretion of the Port Officer, subject, however, to revision by the Government, should they see fit.

126. The Examiners in making out their Report on Form Exn. 14, should state what amount (if any) of further sea service the Candidate must perform, and they should also insert this information under Division II. in Form Exn. 2.

127. If a Candidate fails three times in Navigation within three months, he will not be re-examined until after a lapse of three months from the date of the last failure. Certificate of lower grade.

128. If a Candidate has failed in his examination, but the subjects in which he has failed are not included in the subjects required for a Certificate of a lower grade, he may, if he desires it, receive a Certificate of such lower grade.

129. No part, however, of the fee he has paid will be returned to him, and on presenting himself, when qualified, for re-examination for the higher grade of Certificate he will be required to pay a further full fee.

130. If a Candidate fails for bad spelling or writing, he will not be re-examined until after a lapse of at least three months. If he fails for ignorance of the English language, he will not be re-examined until after a lapse of six months.

131. If a Candidate fails in Seamanship so far as regards the management of square-rigged Sailing Vessels in his examination for an Ordinary Certificate, he may, if qualified as to service, without further formal application, or further payment of fee, proceed with the examination for a Certificate of Competency for Foreign-going Steamships, or for Fore and Aft rigged vessels. And if a Candidate fails in the same manner in his examination for an Extra Master's Certificate, he may, under the same conditions as above, proceed with the examination for an Extra Certificate for Steamships only.

Fees for Examination.

132. Candidates for examination, in making their application on Form Exn. 2, will be required to pay the examination fee before any step is taken in the way of inquiring into their services or testing their qualifications, &c.

Should it be found that their service is not sufficient to entitle them to be examined, or should their testimonials be unsatisfactory, or should they from any other cause, except failure to pass the Colour Vision test (see Appendix T.) not be examined, no part of the fee will be returned to them, but when they have fulfilled the requisite service, or are able to produce satisfactory testimonials, as the case may be, they will be allowed to again present themselves for examination for a Certificate of the same grade without paying any further fee.

Fees to be paid by applicants for examination. S. 133.

133. The fee for examination must be paid to the Port Officer in the cash office. In any case in which a Candidate offers money to any other officer than the Port Officer or in any place but in the cash office, the Candidate so offering money will be regarded as having committed an act of misconduct, and will be rejected, and not allowed to be again examined for twelve months either at the port where the offence was committed, or at any other port.

134. If a Candidate fail in his examination, no part of the fee will be returned to him.

General Instructions to Examiners and Candidates.

135. All instruments necessary for use in the examinations are supplied by the Government. Instruments used in examinations.
136. A Candidate will not be allowed to undergo examination twice in the same week, unless under very special and urgent circumstances the Port Officer should see fit to relax this rule. Candidates not to be examined twice in same week.
137. Before commencing the examination, the tables or desks must be cleared of all scraps of paper or books that are not used in the examination, and care should be taken that the Candidates do not bring into the examination room any book, paper, document, or memoranda of any description whatever. No person whatever should be allowed in the room during the time of examination, but those whose duties require them to be present. Prohibited books and papers.
138. No instructors will be allowed on the premises.
139. Candidates will under no pretence whatever be allowed to leave the premises while the examination is proceeding. If a Candidate has occasion to visit the retiring room he will only be allowed to do so on the completion of the paper on which he may be engaged, when he will be required to enter in a book, kept for the purpose, the exact time of his leaving and returning to the examination room. When only a few Candidates are under examination, two persons will not be allowed to leave the room at the same time. Candidates not to leave premises during examination.
140. Candidates should be so placed as to prevent one copying from the other, and no communication whatever between the candidates should be allowed. Position of Candidates at examination.
141. A sheet of blotting paper should be issued to each Candidate with the first examination paper, and it must be returned to the Examiner when the last paper is completed each day. The examiner will be careful to see that the blotting paper has not been used by the Candidate in solving his problems, or for conveying information to other Candidates (see para. 175). Blotting paper.
142. The examination papers should be issued to the Candidates in half sheets only, and one at a time. This will prevent a Candidate from spreading out the sheets on the table so as to enable his nearest neighbour to look over and copy or examine the problems. It will also enable the Examiner to look over and report upon the work on one half sheet while the Candidate is at work upon another, and so on. When the errors are not too numerous, or when they do not arise from ignorance of the subject, the incorrect problems may be returned to the Candidate for correction, but in no case should the errors be pointed out by the Examiner, neither should any marks be made on the correct work of the problem, which would at once indicate how far or to what extent the work is correct. Should the problems be returned to the Examiner the second time incorrect, this would be a failure; and as the time allowed is considered ample for working out the papers carefully, this rule is expected to be strictly observed.

In certain cases problems may be corrected on morning following examination day.

143. When from the large number of the Candidates, it may sometimes be found impossible to look over the work on the day of examination during the office hours, an hour in the morning of the following day may be allotted for the purpose of correcting the problems, but in no case should a Candidate have his problem returned to him for correction after he has made the second attempt.

Exn. 4a. Definitions.

144. The paper (Exn. 4a) is only for those Candidates who present themselves for examination for the first time for a Foreign-going Certificate. It is intended not only to insure on the part of the Candidate a knowledge of the meaning of a variety of terms of great use to the Navigators, respecting which much ignorance exists at present, but, at the same time, to test his handwriting and spelling.

145. In using this paper, the Examiner will place a mark against the numbers of the particular questions which he selects for answers, and not less than ten questions should be selected. The Candidate will then write against the questions so marked his definition of the terms in a clear and legible hand, so as to prevent the possibility of any letter being mistaken. Attention must be paid to the spelling and writing of all grades of Candidates. The supplementary vivâ voce test should also be applied as usual.

Questions on Deviation of the Compass. (Exn. 7, Appendix I.)

146. In the questions on Deviation of the Compass (Exn. 7, Appendix I) the Examiner should mark at least twelve of the questions, and those indicated must be correctly answered. The selected questions should be varied frequently, and no two Candidates should have precisely the same questions. The Candidate should be furnished with sheets of the blank ruled paper which is supplied for that purpose, with instructions that he is to write only on one side of the paper, and to answer in a clear and legible hand each of the questions against which a mark is placed, and to commence each answer by writing down the number of the question to which it relates in the margin left for that purpose. In answering Question 39 on the tentative method of compass adjustment, the Candidate will be tested by "Beall's Compass Deviascope," and it will not therefore be necessary for him to give the written answer and sketches. A Candidate for an Extra Master's Certificate will not be required to answer the questions on the Deviations of the Compass on "Exn. 7," but will be examined by the Syllabus (Appendix L) and "Compass Deviascope."

Vivâ voce examination.

147. In the vivâ voce examination a reasonable time should be allowed for the Candidate to give his answers. No assistance should be given or leading question put.

Adjustment of sextant.

148. Particular attention should be paid to the adjustments of the sextant, and the written answers should be given on the ruled paper in the same manner as the answers to the questions on Exn. 7, and the supplementary vivâ voce test should be applied as usual. Every Candidate should have a practical knowledge of what is known as the first three adjustments, and be able to read correctly off the arc a supposed index error to be given by the Examiner as additive, as well as reading on the arc in the usual way.

Minor corrections.

149. All outstanding or minor corrections should appear in the margin of each problem paper; also on the chart papers Exn. 9C. and Exn. 9D.; and unless all these corrections appear on the papers of the Candidate they will not be considered complete.

Examination to commence with that for Second Mate.

150. In every case the examination, whether for Only Mate, First Mate, Master, or Master Extra, is to commence with the problems for Second Mate.

151. Examiners should bear in mind that the problems to be solved are required as tests, and for the purposes of an examination, and not for sea-going or practical purposes alone. Problems required as tests.

152. The Candidates will be allowed to work out the various problems according to the method and the tables they have been accustomed to use.

Time allowed for Problems and Writings.

153. Candidates for Second Mates' Ordinary Certificates of Competency must complete the whole of their Examination in Navigation in eight hours, including the time allowed for writing the definitions (Exn. 4a), the paper on the adjustment of the sextant, and the correction of all errors and oversights; but the nautical problems on Forms "Exn. 4" and "Exn. 5" must be completed within six hours, and without the Candidates leaving the premises during that period. Time allowed for problems and writings.

154. Candidates for Only and First Mates' Ordinary Certificates must complete the whole of their Examination in Navigation in twelve and-a-half hours,* including the time allowed for the papers on the sextant; the chart; cyclones or revolving storms; and for the correction of all errors and oversights; but the nautical problems on Forms "Exn. 4," "Exn. 5," and "Exn. 6" must be completed within six hours, and without the Candidates leaving the premises during that period.

155. Candidates for Ordinary Certificates as Masters must complete the whole of their Examination in Navigation in fifteen hours, including the time allowed for the papers on the sextant; the chart; compass deviation; cyclones or revolving storms; and for the correction of all errors and oversights; but the problems on Forms "Exn. 4," "Exn. 5," and "Exn. 6" must be completed within six hours, and without the Candidates leaving the premises during that period.

156. Candidates, after finishing the problems required in the various grades on the first day of examination, should proceed, until the end of that day, with such subjects as the definitions, sextant, chart, &c.

157. The Sumner Problem (Exn. 6a.) must on no account be given out to any Candidate on the first day of the Examination, but should form the commencement of the Candidate's work on the second day, and on completion of this problem the Candidates for Masters' Certificates should proceed with the problems on paper "Exn. 7."

158. Candidates for Home Trade Mates' Certificates must complete the whole of their arithmetical, chart, and other papers within eight hours, and Candidates for Certificates as Masters of Home Trade Passenger Ships within ten hours.

159. Candidates for Foreign-going Steamships Certificates of Competency will be allowed the same amount of time to perform their navigation, &c., as hereinbefore laid down for the respective grades for the Ordinary Foreign-going Certificates.

160. Candidates for Certificates as Masters of Pleasure Yachts will be allowed the same amount of time for completing their Examination as the Candidates for Ordinary Masters' Certificates.

161. Extra Masters' Certificates.—The time allowed Candidates for Examination for Certificates of Competency as Extra Master, and for Extra Master for Steamships only, to complete the whole of the problems and writings (including the Compass Syllabus and the correction of all errors and oversights), must not exceed 26 hours.

162. Deviation of the Compass.—A period not exceeding eleven hours will be allowed to Candidates for the completion of the whole of the examination in the Syllabus, including the correction of all errors and oversights in both the problems and writings.

* A Candidate (other than Second Mate) who may not previously have passed an examination, may be allowed the time occupied in writing his definitions on Exn. 4a, in addition to the above.

Additional
cases.

163. Punctually at the expiration of the prescribed time all the papers should be called up, whether completed or not, and if not completed, the Candidate will be declared to have failed, unless the Port Officer see fit to lengthen the period in any special case. If, however, the period is lengthened in any case, the special circumstances of that case, and the reasons for lengthening the period, together with the time allowed, must be reported to the Government by the Port Officer in the column for "remarks" on the Form Exn. 14. It should be noted that the periods prescribed in the foregoing paragraphs are not intended to include the time occupied by the vide, voce part of the examination.

164. It is anticipated that but few of the Candidates for Certificates of Competency will require the whole of the time herein allowed for completing their examination in Navigation; and ample time has been prescribed, so that Candidates may perform their work in a careful, clear, and legible manner, and to the entire satisfaction of the Examiners.

Degree of Precision required in the Solution of the Problems.

165. In order to prevent any misapprehension as to the degree of precision required by the Regulations in working out the various problems in the examinations for Masters' and Mates' Certificates, the attention of Examiners and Candidates is particularly directed to the following instructions:—

- (a) Candidates are expected to work out their answers to all problems within or not to exceed a margin of 1' of position from a correct result (e.g., in problems where the answer required is a latitude, longitude, or distance); in finding the ship's position by "Sumner's" method a margin of 2½' will be allowed.
- (b) In such problems as the "Amplitude" and "Alt-Azimuth," where the bearings, deviation, &c., only are required, a margin of 2', or 3', from a correct result will be sufficiently accurate.
- (c) In no problem is the Candidate for an Ordinary Certificate required by the Regulations to correct for second differences in taking out the quantities from the Nautical Almanac.
- (d) In solving the "Time Azimuth" problem an answer not exceeding half a degree from the exact result will be sufficiently near. But in all cases the actual latitude, declination, and time used, together with the exact bearing (from the North or South) as given in the tables, must be clearly shown by the Candidate on his papers.
- (e) In interpolating for the correct deviation to be applied in solving the Chart questions (Paper "Exn. 9 C." and "Exn. 9 D.") it will usually be sufficiently near if the Candidate works throughout with the nearest degree of deviation taken from the "Deviation Card"; and even in cases where the deviations may vary but little, the nearest half degree used throughout will be sufficiently precise, and will at the same time prove whether the Candidate understands the method of arriving at the amount of deviations and applying them. It is not necessary that the Candidate should waste his time in solving the course to odd minutes, as is sometimes done.
- (f) In calculating the correction to apply to the Soundings (Question 5 of Paper "Exn. 9 D."), the Candidate is not required to work out to the exact inch, as is sometimes done. It will be sufficiently near if he brings his answer within half a foot or so of a precise result.

It must be clearly understood in reading the foregoing Instructions as to the precision required, that they only apply when the work of the Candidate is correct in principle.

Supplementary vivâ voce Examination on the written Papers.

166. An impression prevails in regard to the examination of Masters and Mates, that so long as a Candidate can commit to paper correct answers to the various questions in the examinations requiring written answers, no matter how indicative the answers may be of their having been learnt off by rote only, the duty and responsibility of the local Examiners are at an end, and that they have no power or authority to reject a Candidate should his written answers be correct.

167. It is therefore to be noted that Candidates for Certificates of Competency are not only expected to give correct written answers, which may merely be learnt off by rote, but are also expected to possess an intelligent knowledge of the various subjects, including the problems, prescribed in the Regulations, particularly as regards the important subject of the Deviation of the Compass.

168. The Government are of opinion that this result may be easily attained by the local Examiner putting a few vivâ voce questions to the Candidate as the papers are brought up for inspection, or at any subsequent time if more convenient. The oral questions (suggested by the printed questions and the answers given) should be such that the Examiner may satisfy himself that the candidate possesses a real knowledge of what he has written, and should be confined strictly to the subjects of the printed questions. Should the Candidate then exhibit ignorance of the subjects, the Examiner (who is in a position to judge of the real knowledge the man before him possesses) should deal with him at his discretion, notwithstanding that the Candidate may have written all the answers correctly by rote.

169. When an Examiner finds it necessary to fail a Candidate in this Supplementary vivâ voce test, a statement to that effect must be made on the Candidate's examination papers, when forwarded, in the usual course, to the Port Officer.

Special Notice to Candidates.

170. The attention of Candidates is specially called to the following Regulations :—

171. Candidates are required to appear at the examination room punctually at the time appointed.

172. Candidates are prohibited from bringing into the examination room books, paper, or memoranda of any kind whatever. The slightest infringement of this regulation will subject the offender to all the penalties of a failure, and he will not be allowed to present himself for re-examination for a period of three months.

173. In the event of any Candidate being detected in defacing, blotting, writing in, or otherwise injuring any book or books or any of the forms belonging to the Government, the papers of such Candidate will be detained until the book or books so defaced are replaced by him. He will not, however, be at liberty to remove the damaged book, which will still remain the property of the Government. He will further subject himself to all the penalties of a failure.

174. In the event of any Candidate being discovered referring to any book or memoranda, copying from another, or affording any assistance or giving any information to another, or communicating in any way with another, during the time of examination, or copying any part of the problems for the purpose of taking them out of the examination rooms, he will subject himself to all the penalties of a failure, and will not be allowed to be examined for a period of six months.

175. No Candidate will be allowed to work out his problems on a slate or on waste paper, or to write on the blotting paper supplied for his use in the examination. Violation of this rule will subject the Candidate to all the penalties of a failure.

176. No Candidate will be permitted to leave the examination room without permission and until he has given up the paper on which he is engaged. Violation of this rule will subject the Candidate to all the penalties of a failure.

177. Candidates will find it more convenient, both here and at sea, to correct the declination and other elements from the Nautical Almanac by the "hourly differences" which have been given in that work in order to facilitate such calculations; they will thereby render themselves independent of any proportional or logarithmic table for such purpose.

178. The corrections by inspection of tables given in some of the works on navigation will not be allowed (see Tables IX, XI, and XXI in Norie's Epitome, &c.); every correction must appear on the papers of the Candidates.

179. Perfect silence is to be preserved in the examination room, and any Candidate violating any of the regulations, or being guilty of insolence to the Examiner, or of disorderly or improper conduct in or about the room, will render himself liable to the postponement of his examination, or, if he has passed, to the detention of his Certificate for such period as the Government may direct.

180. For rules as to amount of time allowed to perform the work, see page 35.

APPENDIX D.

EXAMINATION OF MASTERS AND MATES IN THE INTERNATIONAL CODE OF SIGNALS.

Instructions to Examiners.

The Government desire to direct the attention of the Examiners to the principal points connected with the International Code of Signals (which is to be treated as a subject in Navigation) as to which Candidates for Examinations should be questioned in order to qualify for Certificates of Competency.

The Government would recommend to the Examiners a perusal of the Report of the Signal Committee of 1856 (which will be found at the commencement of the Signal Book), and also the first few pages of the Book. The information therein given will be found sufficient to make the Examiners theoretically acquainted with the characteristics of the Code, and the advantages it claims to possess over other Codes, and will enable them to appreciate and urge upon Candidates for Examination the facilities which this System of Signalling affords for easy and rapid communication.

The "comprehensiveness" and "distinctness" of the International Code are its chief recommendations.

The form of the Hoist generally indicates the nature of the Signal made, so that an observer can at sight understand the character of the Signal he sees flying.

The annexed plate gives examples which illustrate this.

The Examinations should tend to elicit a knowledge of the distinctive features of the Code above alluded to.

With this object the Examiners should make the 2, 3, and 4 Flag Signals on the Frame Board which is furnished for the purpose (always taking care first to show the Ensign and the Code Pennant at the Gaff),* questioning the Candidates as to the distinguishing Forms of the respective Hoists (see Plate annexed), which will be indicated according as a Burgee, or a Pennant, or a Square Flag, is uppermost.

The Candidate ought to know how to find in the Signal Book the communication or the enquiry he desires to make, and how to make the Signal. The Signal to be made should invariably be sought for by the Candidate in the Vocabulary and Index, Part II, and never in Part I.

The Candidate ought to know how to interpret a Signal.

* The object of this is, of course, to distinguish the Signals from those of another Code.

The Examiner should place a Signal on the Frame Board, and vary the Signal by showing a 2 or 3 Flag Signal, or a "Geographical" or a "Vocabulary" Signal, or the name of a Merchant Ship or a Ship of War.

The two latter Signals would not of course be found in the Signal Book. The Candidate ought to point them out in the Code List of Ships.

A Candidate ought to be able to read off a Signal at sight, so far as to name the Flags composing the Hoist.

He ought to know the use of the Code Pennant, and of the Pennants C. and D., "Yes" and "No."

The Candidate should be practised in the use of the Spelling Table, by being made to spell his own name, or some word not in the Vocabulary of the Code.

A knowledge of the Distant Signals should be required of the Candidate, their object and the mode of signalling by the Distant Code, which will be found at the end of the Signal Book and also of Morse Code.

For this purpose two Black Balls, two Black Square Flags, and two Black Pennants will be furnished with the Frame Board, and the Candidate should be required to make one or two Distant Signals, and to read off one or two made by the Examiners.

The Ball being the distinguishing symbol of the Distant Signal, any Pennants or Flags of the Code may be employed in conjunction with it, irrespective of colour. The Black Pennants and Flags are merely sent as showing best in the light background of the Frame Board.

The Examiners should be careful to ascertain that the Candidate possesses a knowledge of the Distress Signals.

SEMAPHORES.

We have as yet no Semaphores on our coasts. The French however, have a considerable number of such stations established on their coasts, and there are also similar stations on the coasts of Portugal, Italy, and other countries, at which the International Code of Signals only is used.

A plate at the end of the Signal Book explains the method by which the arms of the Semaphore are made to represent by their position (up, down, or horizontal) the three symbols used for Distant Signalling, viz., a Flag, a Ball, or a Pennant. Before making Signals with the Semaphore, the Black Disc with the white rim should be placed on the top of the Semaphore Mast, as it properly forms a part of the Mast itself.

The International Code is used on board Her Majesty's Ships, and it has been adopted by all the principal Maritime Powers for their Imperial as well as for their Mercantile Navies.

Note.—The International Code of Signals, with the Code List, is prepared by the Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen, and may be had of the Publishers, Messrs. Spottiswoode & Co., 64, Gracechurch Street, London, and the principal Booksellers at the various ports.

The Official Mercantile Navy List and Maritime Directory, published for the use of Merchants, Shipowners, Shipbrokers, and others, may be obtained in like manner, price 12s.

APPENDIX E.

REGULATIONS FOR PREVENTING COLLISIONS AT SEA.

NOTICE.

The Board of Trade have had their attention drawn to the necessity of a more strict examination of Applicants for Certificates of Competency in their knowledge of the regulations for preventing collisions at sea.

In order that the rule of the road at sea may be better understood, and that a uniform system of examination may prevail, the Board of Trade have issued the following catechism.

This catechism has received the approval of the Trinity House and Admiralty in England, and of the Council of the Admiralty of France.

The Board of Trade attach very great importance to a thorough knowledge of the steering and sailing rules on the part of every Applicant for a Certificate of Competency, and a thorough examination on the part of the Examiners.

All Applicants for examination, whether for Certificates as Masters or Mates, are to be examined as to their knowledge of the steering and sailing rules each time they present themselves for examination.

Questions suggested by the following heads of examination are to be asked in addition to, and are not to supersede, any other questions proper and necessary to be asked by the Examiner.

The following questions need not be adhered to literally by the Examiner, and are not all to be asked; but the substance of the leading questions should be asked, and all that are asked should be satisfactorily answered, before an Applicant is reported to have passed his examination. The Examiner should make such a selection of the questions as each case appears to him to require.

HEADS of EXAMINATION in the REGULATIONS for Preventing COLLISIONS at SEA.

1. What light or lights are required by the regulations to be exhibited by sailing vessels at anchor?
One light only; viz., a white light.
2. What light or lights are required by the regulations to be exhibited by steamships at anchor?
The same as for sailing vessels.
3. Where is the anchor light to be exhibited?
Where it can best be seen. It must of course be placed where there is the least possible chance of obstruction from spars, ropes, &c., &c.
4. To what height may the anchor light be hoisted?
It may be exhibited at any height where it can best be seen, not exceeding 20 feet above the deck.
5. What is the description of the lantern containing the anchor light required by the regulations?
A globular lantern of not less than 8 inches in diameter.
6. In what direction or directions must the anchor light show?
It must show a clear, uniform, and unbroken light, visible all round the horizon.
7. At what distance must it be visible?
At least one mile.
8. What is the number of lights required by the regulations to be carried by sailing ships when under way at night?
Two side lights, and to have in readiness a white light or a flare-up light to show from their stern to any vessel overtaking them.
9. Of what colour are these lights, and how are they to be placed on board the ship?
A green light on the starboard side, and a red light on the port side.
10. What description of light must be shown from the sides of sailing vessels under way; and over how many points of the compass, and in what directions, and how far, are they required to show?
Each light must be so constructed as to show a uniform and unbroken light over an arc of the horizon of 10 points of the compass; so fixed as to throw the light from right ahead to two points abaft the beam on the starboard and port sides respectively; and of such a character as to be visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, at a distance of at least two miles.
11. What lights are they to carry when being towed at night?
The same.
12. Are the side lights required to be fitted with screens; and if so, of what length, and how?
Yes, on the inboard side; at least 8 feet in length, measuring forward from the light. They are to be so fitted that a line drawn from the outside edge of the wick to the foremost end of the inboard screen shall make an angle of four degrees, or as near thereto as may be practicable, with a line drawn parallel with the keel of the ship from the outside edge of the wick.
13. What is the number of lights required by the regulations to be carried by steamships when under steam at night?
Three lights, and to have in readiness a white light or flare-up light to show from their stern to any vessel overtaking them.
14. Of what colour are these lights, and how are they to be placed on board the ship?
A white light on or in front of the foremast at a height above the hull of not less than 20 feet, and if the breadth of the ship exceeds 20 feet, then at a height above the hull not less than such breadth. A green light on the starboard side, and a red one on the port side.
15. Over how many points of the compass, in what direction and how far, is the foremast-head light of a steamer required to show?
Over 20 points, viz., from right ahead to two points abaft the beam on both sides. It must be of such a character as to be visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, at a distance of at least five miles.
16. Are the side lights required to be fitted with screens; and if so of what length?
The green and red lights are to be fitted with screens on the inboard side, extending at least 8 feet forward from the light. They are to be so fitted that a line drawn from the outside edge of the wick to the foremost end of the inboard screen shall make an angle of four degrees, or as near thereto as may be practicable, with a line drawn parallel with the keel of the ship from the outside edge of the wick.
17. Over how many points of the compass, in what directions, and how far, are the coloured side lights of steamers required to show?
The side lights must be so constructed as to show a uniform and unbroken light over an arc of the horizon of 10 points of the compass, on each side of the ship, i.e., from right ahead to two points abaft the beam on the starboard and port sides respectively, and of such a character as to be visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, at a distance of at least two miles.
18. What description of lights are steamers required by the regulation to carry when they are not under steam, but under sail only?
Side lights only, the same as sailing vessels.

19. What exceptional lights are to be carried by small sailing vessels in certain cases?

Whenever, as in the case of small vessels during bad weather, the green and red side lights cannot be fixed, these lights shall be kept on deck, on their respective sides of the vessel, ready for use; and shall, on the approach of or to other vessels, be exhibited on their respective sides in sufficient time to prevent collision, in such manner as to make them most visible, and so that the green light shall not be seen on the port side, nor the red light on the starboard side.

To make the use of these portable lights more certain and easy, the lanterns containing them shall each be painted outside with the colour of the light they respectively contain, and shall be provided with proper screens.

20. What description of lights are pilot vessels required to carry when on their stations on pilotage duty?

A pilot vessel, when engaged on her station on pilotage duty, shall not carry the lights required for other vessels, but shall carry a white light at the masthead, visible all round the horizon, and shall also exhibit a flare-up light or flare-up lights at short intervals, which shall never exceed fifteen minutes.

21. What description of lights are steam pilot vessels required to carry when on their stations on pilotage duty in British waters, and not at anchor?

A steam pilot vessel, when engaged on her station on pilotage duty and in British waters, and not at anchor, shall, in addition to the lights required for all pilot vessels, carry at a distance of 8 feet below her white masthead light a red light visible all round the horizon on a clear night for at least two miles, and also the coloured side lights required to be carried by vessels under way.

22. What description of lights are steam pilot vessels required to carry when on their stations on pilotage duty in British waters, and at anchor?

A steam pilot vessel, when engaged on pilotage duty in British waters and at anchor, shall carry, in addition to the lights required for all pilot vessels, the red light 8 feet below her white light, but not the coloured side lights.

23. What description of lights are pilot vessels required to carry when not on their station on pilotage duty?

A pilot vessel, when not engaged on her station on pilotage duty, shall carry lights similar to those of other ships.

24. What lights are open boats and fishing vessels of less than 20 tons net register required to carry when under way and not actually engaged in fishing?

Open boats and fishing vessels of less than 20 tons net registered tonnage, when under way and when not having their nets, trawls, dredges, or lines in the water, shall not be obliged to carry the coloured side lights; but every such boat and vessel shall in lieu thereof have ready at hand a lantern with a green glass on the one side and a red glass on the other side, and on approaching to or being approached by another vessel, such lantern shall be exhibited in sufficient time to prevent collision, so that the green light shall not be seen on the port side nor the red light on the starboard side.

25. What lights are fishing vessels and fishing boats of 20 tons net register, or upwards, required to carry when under way and not actually engaged in fishing?

They must carry similar lights to those of other ships when under way.

26. What lights are steam trawlers of 20 tons gross register, or upwards, whilst actually engaged in trawling, and not being stationary, required to carry?

All steam vessels engaged in trawling must carry either one of the two following arrangements of lights, whichever of the two may be the more convenient:—

(a) The usual green and red side lights, and foremast head light, similar to those carried by other steamships; or

(b) They must carry on or in front of the foremast head, and in the same position as the white light which other steamships are required to carry, a lantern showing a white light ahead, a green light on the starboard side, and a red light on the port side; such lantern shall be so constructed, fitted, and arranged as to show an uniform and unbroken white light over an arc of the horizon of four points of the compass, an uniform and unbroken green light over an arc of the horizon of 10 points of the compass, and an uniform and unbroken red light over an arc of the horizon of 10 points of the compass, and it shall be so fixed as to show the white light from right ahead to two points on the bow on each side of the ship, the green light from two points on the starboard bow to four points abaft the beam on the starboard side, and the red light from two points on the port bow to four points abaft the beam on the port side; and (2) a white light in a globular lantern of not less than eight inches in diameter, and so constructed as to show a clear, uniform, and unbroken light all round the horizon; the lantern containing such white light shall be carried lower than the lantern showing the green, white, and red lights as aforesaid, so, however, that the vertical distance between them shall not be less than 6 feet nor more than 18 feet.

27. What lights are sailing trawlers whilst actually engaged in trawling, and not being stationary, required to carry?

All sailing vessels, of whatever tonnage, whilst engaged in trawling must carry either one of the three following arrangements of lights, whichever of the three, (a), (b), or (c), may be the most convenient:—

(a) They may carry the green and red side lights similar to those of other sailing ships; or

(b) They may carry on, or in front of the foremast head, a lantern having a green glass on the starboard side and a red glass on the port side, so constructed, fitted, and arranged that the red and green do not converge, and so as to show an uniform and unbroken green light over an arc of the horizon of 12 points of the compass, and an uniform and unbroken red light over an arc of the horizon of 12 points of the compass, and it shall be so fixed as to show the green light from right ahead to four points abaft the beam on the starboard side, and the red light from right ahead to four points abaft the beam on the port side; and (2) a white light in a globular lantern of not less than eight inches in diameter, and so constructed as to show a clear, uniform, and unbroken light all round the horizon; the lantern containing such white light shall be carried lower than the lantern showing the green and red lights as aforesaid, so, however, that the vertical distance between them shall not be less than 6 feet and not more than 12 feet; or

(c) They may carry a white light in a globular lantern of not less than eight inches in diameter, and so constructed as to show a clear, uniform and unbroken light all round the horizon, and visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, for a distance of at least 3 miles; and also a sufficient supply of red pyrotechnic lights which shall each burn for at least 30 seconds, and shall, when so burning, be visible for the same distance under the same conditions as the white light. The white light shall be shown from sunset to sunrise, and one of the red pyrotechnic lights shall be shown on approaching, or on being approached by, another ship or vessel in sufficient time to prevent collision.

28. What lights are vessels whilst actually engaged in drift net fishing required to carry?

All vessels when engaged in fishing with drift nets shall exhibit two white lights from any part of the vessel where they can be best seen. Such lights shall be placed so that the vertical distance between them shall be not less than 6 feet and not more than 10 feet; and so that the horizontal distance between them measured in a line with the keel of the vessel shall be not less than 5 feet and not more than 10 feet. The lower of these two lights shall be the more forward, and both of them shall be of such a character, and contained in lanterns of such construction, as to show all round the horizon, on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, for a distance of not less than three miles.

29. What lights are vessels whilst actually engaged in line fishing required to carry?

A vessel engaged in line fishing is required to carry the same lights as a vessel engaged in drift net fishing.

30. If a vessel, when fishing, becomes stationary in consequence of her gear getting fast to a rock or other obstruction, what signal must she make?

She must show the same light, and if a fog, mist, or falling snow prevail, she must make the same fog signal as if she were at anchor.

31. What lights are fishing vessels and open boats required to exhibit when at anchor?

Between sunset and sunrise they must exhibit a white light, visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least one mile, the same as any other vessel.

32. What sound signals are fishing vessels required to make whilst engaged in fishing in thick weather?

In fog, mist, or falling snow, a drift net vessel attached to her nets, and a vessel when trawling, dredging, or fishing with any kind of drag net, and a vessel employed in line fishing with her lines out, shall at intervals of not more than two minutes make a blast with her fog horn and ring her bell alternately.

33. May fishing vessels and open boats use flare-up lights, and if so at what part or parts of the vessel should they be exhibited?

Yes. Fishing vessels and open boats may at any time use a flare-up in addition to the lights which they are by this article required to carry and show. All flare-up lights exhibited by a vessel when trawling, dredging, or fishing with any kind of drag net shall be shown at the after part of the vessel, excepting that if the vessel is hanging by the stern to her trawl, dredge, or drag net, they shall be exhibited from the bow.

34. Do these regulations referring specially to fishing vessels and boats apply in all parts of the world?

No; with the exception of the first paragraph of Article 10 of the regulations, they apply only to fishing vessels and boats when in the sea off the coast of Europe lying north of Cape Finisterre.

35. What lights are steam ships required to carry when towing other ships?

A steam ship, when towing another ship, shall in addition to her side lights carry two bright white lights in a vertical line one over the other, not less than three feet apart, so as to distinguish her from other steam ships. Each of these lights shall be of the same construction and character, and shall be carried in the same position as the white light which other steam ships are required to carry.

36. What light is a ship which is being overtaken by another required to show?

A ship which is being overtaken by another shall show from her stern to such last-mentioned ship a white light or a flare-up light.

37. Describe the lights, and the day signals, that vessels employed in laying or picking up a telegraph cable are required to carry.

A ship, whether a steam ship or sailing ship, employed in laying or in picking up a telegraph cable, shall at night carry in the same position as the white light which steam ships are required to carry, and if a steam ship, in place of that light, three lights in globular lanterns each not less than 10 inches in diameter, in a vertical line one over another not less than 6 feet apart; the highest and lowest of these lights shall be red and the middle light shall be white, and they shall be of such a character that the red lights shall be visible at the same distance as the white light. By day she shall carry in a vertical line one over the other not less than 6 feet apart, in front of but not lower than her foremast head, three shapes not less than 2 feet in diameter, of which the top and bottom shall be globular in shape and red in colour, and the middle one diamond in shape and white.

38. Describe the lights and the day signals that vessels which from any cause are not under command, are required to carry?

A ship, whether a steam ship or a sailing ship, which from any accident is not under command, shall at night carry, in the same position as the white light which steam ships are required to carry, and if a steam ship, in place of that light, three red lights in globular lanterns, each not less than 10 inches in diameter, in a vertical line one over the other, not less than 3 feet apart, and of such a character as to be visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, at a distance of at least two miles; and shall by day carry in a vertical line one over the other, not less than 3 feet apart, in front of but not lower than her foremast head, three black balls or shapes, each 2 feet in diameter.

39. Are the above mentioned ships to carry side-lights?

The above ships when not making any way through the water shall not carry the side-lights, but when making way shall carry them.

40. What are the previous mentioned shapes and lights intended to indicate to approaching ships?

These shapes and lights are to be taken by approaching ships as signals that the ship using them is not under command and cannot therefore get out of the way.

41. Do these rules prevent squadrons and convoys from carrying special lights?

No. Nothing in these rules shall interfere with the operation of any special rules made by the Government of any nation with respect to additional station and signal lights for two or more ships of war, or for ships sailing under convoy.

42. What sound signals are steam ships and sailing ships required by the regulations to be provided with?

A steam ship shall be provided with a steam whistle or other efficient steam sound signal, so placed that the sound may not be intercepted by any obstructions, and with an efficient fog horn to be sounded by a bellows or other mechanical means, and also with an efficient bell. A sailing ship shall be provided with a similar fog horn and bell.

43. When are these signals to be used?

In fog, mist, or falling snow, whether by day or night.

44. What sound signal is to be made by steam ships and sailing ships when not under way?

A steam ship and a sailing ship when not under way shall, at intervals of not more than two minutes, ring the bell.

45. What sound signal is required to be made by a steam ship when under way?

A steam ship under way shall make with her steam whistle, or other steam sound signal, at intervals of not more than two minutes, a prolonged blast.

46. What sound signals are required to be made by sailing ships when under way?

A sailing ship under way shall make with her fog horn, at intervals of not more than two minutes, when on the starboard tack one blast, when on the port tack two blasts in succession, and when with the wind abaft the beam three blasts in succession.

47. Do the regulations require ships to take any other precaution during thick weather?

Yes. Art. 13 says every ship, whether a sailing ship or steam ship, shall, in a fog, mist, or falling snow, go at a moderate speed.

48. Is it optional for a steam ship to make any other signals with her steam whistle?

Yes, but only to vessels in sight, i.e., not to vessels which are so obscured by fog, mist, or falling snow, that they cannot be seen though their whistles may be heard.

Art. 19 provides that in taking any course authorised or required by the regulations, a steam ship under way may indicate that course to any other ship which she has in sight by the following signals on her steam whistle, viz. :—

One short blast to mean "I am directing my course to starboard."

Two short blasts to mean "I am directing my course to port."

Three short blasts to mean "I am going full speed astern."

The use of these signals is optional; but if they are used, the course of the ship must be in accordance with the signal made.

49. What precaution is to be taken by steamers approaching another vessel?

If there is risk of collision, the steamer is to slacken speed, or, if necessary, stop and reverse.

50. If you see two white lights in a vertical line one over the other, what do they denote as regards the vessel carrying them?

They denote the presence of a steamer towing with her side lights not within sight on account of distance, fog, &c.; or a vessel end on to me engaged in drift net fishing, or in line fishing; or it may be a steam trawler end on, or within two points of being end on, to me.

51. If you see a green, or a red, light with a white light below what do they denote?

They denote the presence of either a sailing or a steam vessel engaged in trawling.

52. If you see both the green and the red lights with a white light below them, what do they denote?

They denote the presence of a sailing trawler coming end on to me.

53. If you see a white light alone, what does it denote as regards the ship carrying it?

It denotes the presence of a vessel or boat at anchor; or a pilot vessel on her station; or the mast-head light of a vessel, under steam, with her side lights not within sight on account of distance, fog, &c.; or a fishing vessel stationary through her gear getting fast to some obstruction, or a sailing trawler engaged in trawling (1) under one arrangement of lights heading so that her side lights are obscured, (2) under another arrangement from the red pyrotechnic light not having been exhibited; or it may be a light shown from the stern of a vessel which is being overtaken.

54. If you see a green or a red light without a white light, or both a green and a red light without a white light, is the vessel carrying the light or lights seen, a vessel under steam or a vessel under sail?

A vessel under sail.

55. How do you know?

Because there is no white mast-head light.

56. If you see a white light over a coloured light, is the vessel a vessel under sail or a vessel under steam?

A vessel under steam. The mast-head light denotes that the vessel is under steam.

[The Examiner will then take one model of a vessel, which he will place on the table, and call it A. He will then take the mast or stand with a white and red ball on it, and place it at the other end of the table, and call it B. The Examiner should be careful that the model of one vessel only is used when the questions numbered 57 to 65 are asked.]

57. A is a steamer going north, seeing a white light and red light right ahead at B. Are A and the vessel B showing the two lights meeting end on, or nearly end on, or is B passing A, or is B crossing the path of A, and in what direction, and how do you know?

Passing to port, because if I see a red light ahead I know that the head of the vessel carrying that red light must be pointing away in some direction to my own port or left hand. The ship showing the red light has her port or left side more or less open to A.

58. If A is going north, within what points of the compass must the vessel B showing the white and red lights be steering?

B must be going from a little W. of S. to W.N.W.

59. How do you know this?

Because, the screens being properly fitted, I could not see the red light of B at all with the vessel's head in any other direction.

60. A is a steamer going north, and seeing a white and green light ahead. Are A and B meeting, or is B passing A, or is B crossing the course of A, and in what direction; and how do you know?

B is passing to starboard of A, because if I see a green light ahead I know that the head of the vessel carrying that green light must be pointing away in some direction to my starboard or right hand.

The ship showing the green light has her right or starboard side more or less open to me.

61. As A is going north, within what points of the compass must the vessel showing the white and green lights be steering?

B must be going from a little E. of South to E.N.E.

62. How do you know?

Because, the screens being properly fitted, I cannot see the green light at all with the vessel's head in any other direction.

63. If a steamer A sees the three lights of another steamer B ahead or nearly ahead, are the two steamers meeting, passing, or crossing?

Meeting end on, or nearly end on.

64. Do the regulations expressly require the course of a ship to be altered to starboard in any case; and, if so, when?

Yes; in the case of two steamers meeting end on or nearly end on.

65. Do they expressly require the course of a ship to be altered to starboard in any other case; and, if so, in what other?

No. It is not in any other case expressly required by the regulations.

[The Examiner should see that the Candidate puts the models in the positions indicated by the question 66, and following.]

66. If a steamer A sees another steamer's red light B on her own starboard side, are the steamers meeting, passing, or crossing, and how do you know?

Crossing, because the red light of one is opposed to the green light of the other; and whenever a green light is opposed to a red light, or a red light to a green light, the ships carrying the lights are crossing ships.

67. Is A to stand on, and if not, why not?

A has the other vessel B on her own starboard side. A knows she is crossing the course of B because she sees the red light of B on her (A's) own starboard side. A also knows she must get out of the way of B, because Article 16 expressly requires that the steamer that has the other on her own starboard side shall keep out of the way of the other.

68. Is A to starboard or to port in such a case?

A must do what is right so as to get herself out of the way of B; it is generally preferable to pass under a ship's stern rather than attempt to cross her bows, but it depends entirely on the position and relative speed of the two ships, and therefore the regulations wisely leave the giving way ship to get out of the way in any manner that may be most desirable, so always that she does get out of the way.

69. If A gets into collision by porting, will it be because she is acting on any rule?

No; the rule does not require her either to port or to starboard. If she ports, and gets into collision by porting it is not the fault of any rule.

70. If a steamer A sees the green light of another steamer B on her own (A's own) port bow, are the two steamers meeting, passing, or crossing; and how do you know?

Crossing, because the green light of one ship is shown to the red light of the other.

71. What is A to do, and why?

By the rule contained in Article 23 of the Regulations, A is required to keep her course, subject only to the qualification that due regard must be had to all dangers of navigation; and that due regard must also be had to any special circumstances which may exist in any particular case rendering a departure from that rule necessary in order to avoid immediate danger. The crossing ship B on A's port side must get out of the way of A, because A is on B's starboard side.

72. A, a steamer, sees the green light of another steamer, B, a point on her, A's port bow. Is there any regulation requiring A to port in such a case, and if so, where is it to be found?

There is not any.

73. Are steam ships to get out of the way of sailing ships?

If a steamer and a sailing ship are proceeding in such direction as to involve risk of collision, the steamer is to get out of the way of the sailing ship unless the sailing ship is overtaking the steamer.

74. What is to be done by A, whether a steamer or a sailing ship, if overtaking B?

A is to keep out of the way of B.

75. When by the rules one of two ships is required to keep out of the way of the other, what is the other to do?

To keep her course. This is absolutely necessary to enable the commander of a ship required by the regulations to keep out of the way, to act with decision and promptitude, which he cannot possibly, unless he knows what the other vessel is going to do.

76. Is there any qualification or exception to this?

Yes. Due regard must be had to all dangers of navigation, and to any special circumstances which may exist in any particular case, and require a departure from the regulations to avoid immediate danger.

77. Is there any general direction in the steering and sailing rules, and if so, what is it?

Yes, it is this: that nothing in the rules shall exonerate any ship, or the owner, master, or crew thereof, from the consequences of any neglect to carry lights or signals, or of any neglect to keep a proper look-out; or of the neglect of any precaution which may be required by the ordinary practice of seamen, or by the special circumstances of the case.

78. Can you repeat article (—) of the regulations? I refer to the article containing the rule for (—).

[The Examiner should repeat this question, naming a different article each time.]

79. What does the Act of Parliament provide as to the obligation of owners and masters in obeying the regulations respecting lights, fog signals, and steering and sailing?

Section 419 of "The Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1894," provides that owners and masters shall be bound to obey the regulations, and it also provides that in case of wilful default by the master or owner he shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor for each infringement.

80. What do breaches of the regulations imply?

If an accident happens through non-observance of the regulations, it implies wilful default on the part of the person in charge of the deck at the time, unless it is shown to the satisfaction of the court hearing the case that the special circumstances of the case rendered a departure from the rules necessary.

81. If collision ensues from a breach of the regulations, who is to be deemed in fault for the collision?

The person by whom the regulations are infringed, unless the court hearing the case decides to the contrary.

82. Is there any special rule for steam ships navigating narrow channels?

In narrow channels every steam ship shall, when it is safe and practicable, keep to that side of the fairway or mid-channel which is on the starboard side of such ship.

83. Do the regulations apply to sea-going ships in harbours and in rivers?

Yes; unless there is any rule to the contrary made by a competent authority.

84. Do they apply to British ships only?

No, to foreign ships as well, with the exception of the Orders in Council of August 1892 and January 1893, which apply only to British Vessels.

85. Do you know where the present regulations are to be found?

Yes, in the Orders in Council of the 11th August 1884, 30th December 1884, 24th June 1885, 18th August 1892 and 30th January 1893. Copies are given away on application to the Board of Trade.

86. Is one ship bound to assist another in case of collision?

Yes.

87. What is the penalty for default?

If the master or person in charge of the ship fails to render assistance without reasonable excuse, the collision is, in absence of proof to the contrary, to be deemed to be caused by his wrongful act, neglect, or default.

88. Is there any other penalty attached to not rendering assistance?

Yes. If it is afterwards proved that he did not render assistance, his certificate may be cancelled or suspended by the court investigating the case.

89. Is it not expected that you should understand the regulations before you take charge of the deck of a ship?

It is.

90. Why?

If I do not understand them and am guilty of default, the consequences will be very serious to me.

91. What would be a serious offence?

To cause a collision by porting the helm or doing anything not required by the regulations and without due consideration.

REGULATIONS FOR PREVENTING COLLISIONS AT SEA.

ORDER IN COUNCIL, OF 11TH AUGUST 1884.

Preliminary.

Art. 1. In the following rules every steam ship which is under sail and not under steam is to be considered a sailing ship; and every steam ship which is under steam, whether under sail or not, is to be considered a ship under steam.

Rules concerning Lights.

Art. 2. The lights mentioned in the following Articles numbered 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11, and no others, shall be carried in all weathers, from sunset to sunrise.

Art. 3. A sea-going steam ship when under weigh shall carry—

- (a) On or in front of the foremast, at a height above the hull of not less than 20 feet, and if the breadth of the ship exceeds 20 feet then at a height above the hull not less than such breadth, a bright white light, so constructed as to show an uniform and unbroken light over an arc of the horizon of 20 points of the compass, so fixed as to throw the light 10 points on each side of the ship, viz., from right ahead to two points abaft the beam on either side, and of such a character as to be visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, at a distance of at least five miles.
- (b) On the starboard side, a green light so constructed as to show an uniform and unbroken light over an arc of the horizon of 10 points of the compass, so fixed as to throw the light from right ahead to 2 points abaft the beam on the starboard side, and of such a character as to be visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, at a distance of at least two miles.
- (c) On the port side, a red light, so constructed as to show an uniform and unbroken light over an arc of the horizon of 10 points of the compass, so fixed as to throw the light from right ahead to 2 points abaft the beam on the port side, and of such a character as to be visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, at a distance of at least two miles.

(d) The said green and red side lights shall be fitted with inboard screens projecting at least 3 feet forward from the light, so as to prevent these lights from being seen across the bow.

Art. 4. A steam ship, when towing another ship, shall, in addition to her side lights, carry two bright white lights in a vertical line one over the other, not less than 3 feet apart, so as to distinguish her from other steam ships. Each of these lights shall be of the same construction and character, and shall be carried in the same position, as the white light which other steam ships are required to carry.

Art. 5. (a) A ship, whether a steam ship or a sailing ship, which from any accident is not under command, shall at night carry, in the same position as the white light which steam ships are required to carry, and if a steam ship, in place of that light, three red lights in globular lanterns, each not less than 10 inches in diameter, in a vertical line one over the other, not less than 3 feet apart, and of such a character as to be visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, at a distance of at least two miles; and shall by day carry in a vertical line one over the other, not less than 3 feet apart, in front of but not lower than her foremast head, three black balls or shapes, each 2 feet in diameter.

(b) A ship, whether a steam ship or a sailing ship, employed in laying or in picking up a telegraph cable, shall at night carry in the same position as the white light which steam ships are required to carry, and if a steam ship, in place of that light, three lights in globular lanterns, each not less than 10 inches in diameter, in a vertical line one over another, not less than 3 feet apart; the highest and lowest of these lights shall be red, and the middle light shall be white, and they shall be of such a character that the red lights shall be visible at the same distance as the white light. By day she shall carry in a vertical line one over the other, not less than 3 feet apart, in front of but not lower than her foremast head, three shapes, not less than 2 feet in diameter, of which the top and bottom shall be globular in shape and red in colour, and the middle one diamond in shape and white.

(c) The ships referred to in this Article, when not making any way through the water, shall not carry the side lights, but when making way shall carry them.

(d) The lights and shapes required to be shown by this Article are to be taken by other ships as signals that the ship showing them is not under command, and cannot therefore get out of the way. The signals to be made by ships in distress and requiring assistance are contained in Article 27.

Art. 6. A sailing ship under way, or being towed, shall carry the same lights as are provided by Article 3 for a steam ship under way, with the exception of the white light, which she shall never carry.

Art. 7. Whenever, as in the case of small vessels during bad weather, the green and the red side lights cannot be fixed, these lights shall be kept on deck, on their respective sides of the vessel, ready for use; and shall, on the approach of or to other vessels, be exhibited on their respective sides in sufficient time to prevent collision, in such manner as to make them most visible, and so that the green light shall not be seen on the port side nor the red light on the starboard side.

To make the use of these portable lights more certain and easy, the lanterns containing them shall each be painted outside with the colour of the light they respectively contain, and shall be provided with proper screens.

Art. 8. A ship, whether a steam ship or a sailing ship, when at anchor, shall carry, where it can best be seen, but at a height not exceeding 20 feet above the hull, a white light in a globular lantern of not less than 8 inches in diameter, and so constructed as to show a clear, uniform and unbroken light visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least one mile.

Art. 9. A pilot vessel, when engaged on her station on pilotage duty, shall not carry the lights required for other vessels, but shall carry a white light at the masthead, visible all round the horizon, and shall also exhibit a flare-up light or flare-up lights at short intervals, which shall never exceed fifteen minutes.

A pilot vessel, when not engaged on her station on pilotage duty, shall carry lights similar to those of other ships.

Art. 10. Open boats and fishing vessels of less than 20 tons net registered tonnage, when under way and when not having their nets, trawls, dredges, or lines in the water, shall not be obliged to carry the coloured side lights; but every such boat and vessel shall, in lieu thereof, have ready at hand a lantern with a green glass on the one side and a red glass on the other side, and on approaching to or being approached by another vessel such lantern shall be exhibited in sufficient time to prevent collision, so that the green light shall not be seen on the port side nor the red light on the starboard side.

The following portion of this Article applies only to fishing vessels and boats when in the sea off the coast of Europe lying north of Cape Finisterre:—

(a) All fishing vessels and fishing boats of 20 tons net registered tonnage, or upwards, when under way and when not required by the following regulations in this Article

- to carry and show the lights therein named, shall carry and show the same lights as other vessels under way.
- (b) All vessels when engaged in fishing with drift nets shall exhibit two white lights from any part of the vessel where they can be best seen. Such lights shall be placed so that the vertical distance between them shall be not less than 6 feet and not more than 10 feet; and so that the horizontal distance between them measured in a line with the keel of the vessel shall be not less than 5 feet and not more than 10 feet. The lower of these two lights shall be the more forward, and both of them shall be of such a character, and contained in lanterns of such construction, as to show all round the horizon, on a dark night with a clear atmosphere, for a distance of not less than three miles.
 - (c) A vessel employed in line fishing with her lines out, shall carry the same lights as a vessel when engaged in fishing with drift nets.
 - (d) If a vessel when fishing becomes stationary in consequence of her gear getting fast to a rock or other obstruction, she shall show the light and make the fog signal for a vessel at anchor.
 - (e) Fishing vessels and open boats may at any time use a flare-up in addition to the lights which they are by this Article required to carry and show. All flare-up lights exhibited by a vessel when trawling, dredging, or fishing with any kind of drag net shall be shown at the after part of the vessel, excepting that, if the vessel is hanging by the stern to her trawl, dredge, or drag net, they shall be exhibited from the bow.
 - (f) Every fishing vessel and every open boat when at anchor between sunset and sunrise shall exhibit a white light visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least one mile.
 - (g) In fog, mist, or falling snow, a drift net vessel attached to her nets and a vessel when trawling, dredging, or fishing with any kind of drag net, and a vessel employed in line fishing with her lines out, shall at intervals of not more than two minutes make a blast with her fog horn and ring her bell alternately.

Art. 11. A ship which is being overtaken by another shall show from her stern to such last-mentioned ship a white light or a flare-up light.

Sound Signals for Fog, &c.

Art. 12. A steam ship shall be provided with a steam whistle or other efficient steam sound signal, so placed that the sound may not be intercepted by any obstructions, and with an efficient fog horn to be sounded by a bellows or other mechanical means, and also with an efficient bell.* A sailing ship shall be provided with a similar fog horn and bell.

In fog, mist, or falling snow, whether by day or night, the signals described in this Article shall be used as follows; that is to say:—

- (a) A steam ship under way shall make with her steam whistle or other steam sound signal, at intervals of not more than two minutes, a prolonged blast.
- (b) A sailing ship under way shall make with her fog horn, at intervals of not more than two minutes, when on the starboard tack one blast, when on the port tack two blasts in succession, and when with the wind abaft the beam three blasts in succession.
- (c) A steam ship and a sailing ship, when not under way, shall at intervals of not more than two minutes ring the bell.

Speed of Ships to be moderate in Fog, &c.

Art. 13. Every ship, whether a sailing ship or steam ship, shall, in a fog, mist, or falling snow, go at a moderate speed.

Steering and Sailing Rules.

Art. 14. When two sailing ships are approaching one another, so as to involve risk of collision, one of them shall keep out of the way of the other, as follows, viz:—

- (a) A ship which is running free shall keep out of the way of a ship which is close-hauled.
- (b) A ship which is close-hauled on the port tack shall keep out of the way of a ship which is close-hauled on the starboard tack.
- (c) When both are running free with the wind on different sides, the ship which has the wind on the port side shall keep out of the way of the other.
- (d) When both are running free with the wind on the same side, the ship which is to windward shall keep out of the way of the ship which is to leeward.
- (e) A ship which has the wind aft shall keep out of the way of the other ship.

* In all cases where the regulations require a bell to be used, a drum will be substituted on board Turkish vessels.

Art. 15. If two ships under steam are meeting end on, or nearly end on, so as to involve risk of collision, each shall alter her course to starboard, so that each may pass on the port side of the other.

This Article only applies to cases where ships are meeting end on, or nearly end on, in such a manner as to involve risk of collision, and does not apply to two ships which must, if both keep on their respective courses, pass clear of each other.

The only cases to which it does apply are, when each of the two ships is end on, or nearly end on, to the other; in other words, in cases in which, by day, each ship sees the masts of the other in a line, or nearly in a line, with her own; and by night, to cases in which each ship is in such a position as to see both the side lights of the other.

It does not apply by day, to cases in which a ship sees another ahead crossing her own course; or by night, to cases where the red light of one ship is opposed to the red light of the other, or where the green light of one ship is opposed to the green light of the other, or where a red light without a green light, or a green light without a red light, is seen ahead, or where both green and red lights are seen anywhere but ahead.

Art. 16. If two ships under steam are crossing, so as to involve risk of collision, the ship which has the other on her own starboard side shall keep out of the way of the other.

Art. 17. If two ships, one of which is a sailing ship, and the other a steam ship, are proceeding in such directions as to involve risk of collision, the steam ship shall keep out of the way of the sailing ship.

Art. 18. Every steam ship, when approaching another ship, so as to involve risk of collision, shall slacken her speed or stop and reverse, if necessary.

Art. 19. In taking any course authorised or required by these Regulations, a steam ship under way may indicate that course to any other ship which she has in sight by the following signals on her steam whistle, viz.:—

One short blast to mean "I am directing my course to starboard."

Two short blasts to mean "I am directing my course to port."

Three short blasts to mean "I am going full speed astern."

The use of these signals is optional; but if they are used, the course of the ship must be in accordance with the signal made.

Art. 20. Notwithstanding anything contained in any preceding Article, every ship, whether a sailing ship or a steam ship, overtaking any other shall keep out of the way of the overtaken ship.

Art. 21. In narrow channels every steam ship shall, when it is safe and practicable, keep to that side of the fairway or mid-channel which lies on the starboard side of such ship.

Art. 22. Where by the above rules one of two ships is to keep out of the way, the other shall keep her course.

Art. 23. In obeying and construing these rules due regard shall be had to all dangers of navigation, and to any special circumstances which may render a departure from the above rules necessary in order to avoid immediate danger.

No Ship, under any Circumstances, to neglect proper Precautions.

Art. 24. Nothing in these rules shall exonerate any ship, or the owner, or master, or crew thereof, from the consequences of any neglect to carry lights or signals, or of any neglect to keep a proper look-out, or of the neglect of any precaution which may be required by the ordinary practice of seamen, or by the special circumstances of the case.

Reservation of Rules for Harbours and Inland Navigation.

Art. 25. Nothing in these rules shall interfere with the operation of a special rule, duly made by local authority, relative to the navigation of any harbour, river, or inland navigation.

Special Lights for Squadrons and Convoys.

Art. 26. Nothing in these rules shall interfere with the operation of any special rules made by the Government of any nation with respect to additional station and signal lights for two or more ships of war or for ships sailing under convoy.

Art. 27. When a ship is in distress and requires assistance from other ships or from the shore, the following shall be the signals to be used or displayed by her, either together or separately; that is to say,—

In the daytime—

1. A gun fired at intervals of about a minute;
2. The International Code signal of distress indicated by NC;
3. The distant signal, consisting of a square flag having either above or below it a ball, or anything resembling a ball.

At night—

1. A gun fired at intervals of about a minute;
2. Flames on the ship (as from a burning tar barrel, oil barrel, &c.);
3. Rockets or shells, throwing stars of any colour or description, fired one at a time, at short intervals.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL OF 30TH DECEMBER 1884
AND 24TH JUNE 1885.

1884—PART II—SAILING VESSELS OF 20 TONS NET REGISTER
TONNAGE OR UPWARDS.

(1) On or in front of the foremast head a lantern having a green glass on the starboard side and a red glass on the port side, so constructed, fitted, and arranged that the red and green do not converge, and so as to show an uniform and unbroken green light over an arc of the horizon of 12 points of the compass, and an uniform and unbroken red light over an arc of the horizon of 12 points of the compass, and it shall be so fixed as to show the green light from right ahead to four points abaft the beam on the starboard side, and the red light from right ahead to four points abaft the beam on the port side: and (2) a white light in a globular lantern of not less than 8 inches in diameter, and so constructed as to show a clear uniform and unbroken light all round the horizon; the lantern containing such white light shall be carried lower than the lantern showing the green and red lights as aforesaid; so, however, that the vertical distance between them shall not be less than 6 feet and not more than 12 feet.

1885.—SAILING TRAWLERS OF ANY TONNAGE.

A white light in a globular lantern of not less than 8 inches in diameter, and so constructed as to show a clear, uniform and unbroken light all round the horizon, and visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, for a distance of at least 2 miles; and also a sufficient supply of red pyrotechnic lights which shall each burn for at least 30 seconds and shall, when so burning, be visible for the same distance under the same conditions as the white light. The white light shall be shown from sunset to sunrise, and one of the red pyrotechnic lights shall be shown on approaching, or on being approached by another ship or vessel in sufficient time to prevent collision.

ORDER IN COUNCIL OF 18TH AUGUST 1893.

MODIFYING THE REGULATIONS CONTAINED IN THE ORDER IN COUNCIL OF THE 11th AUGUST 1884, AS REGARDS THE LIGHTS TO BE CARRIED BY STEAM PILOT VESSELS.

Addition to Article 9:—

A Steam Pilot Vessel exclusively employed for the service of Pilots licensed or certified by any Pilotage Authority or the Committee of any Pilotage District in the United Kingdom, when engaged on her station on pilotage duty, and in British waters and not at anchor, shall, in addition to the lights required for all pilot boats, carry at a distance of eight feet below her white masthead light a red light visible all round the horizon, and of such a character as to be visible on a dark night, with a clear atmosphere, at a distance of at least two miles, and also the coloured side lights required to be carried by vessels when under way.

When engaged on her station on pilotage duty and in British waters and at anchor, she shall carry, in addition to the light required for all pilot boats, the red light above mentioned, but not the coloured side lights.

When not engaged in her station on pilotage duty, she shall carry the same lights as other steam vessels.

ORDER IN COUNCIL OF 30TH JANUARY 1893.

SCREENING OF SIDE LIGHTS.

Addition to Article 3:—

(c) To ensure that the red and green side lights shall show an uniform light from right ahead of the ship to two points abaft the beam on the port and starboard sides respectively, and shall not show across the bow of the ship itself, the said lights must be fixed and the screens fitted so that the rays from the red and green lights shall cross the line of the ship's keel projected ahead of the ship at a reasonable distance ahead of the ship.

With regard to all vessels whose lights are inspected by the officers of the Board of Trade, the red or green side light will not be deemed to be fixed and fitted in accordance with the Regulations unless it is so fixed and screened that a line drawn from the outside edge of the wick to the foremost end of the inboard screen of such light shall make an angle of 4 degrees, or as near thereto as may be practicable, with a line drawn parallel with the keel of the ship from the outside edge of the wick.

AIDS TO MEMORY in four verses, by the late Mr. THOMAS GRAY, C.B.

1. Two Steam Ships meeting.

When both side lights you see ahead—
Port your helm and show your RED.

2. Two Steam Ships passing.

GREEN to GREEN—or, RED to RED—
Perfect safety—Go ahead!

3. Two Steam Ships crossing.

Note.—This is the position of greatest danger: there is nothing for it but good look-out, caution, and judgment.

If to your starboard RED appear,
It is your duty to keep clear!
To act as judgment says is proper—
To port—or Starboard—Back,—or, Stop her.

But when upon your Port is seen
A Steamer's Starboard Light of GREEN
There's not so much for you to do,
For GREEN to Port keeps clear of you.

4. All Ships must keep a good look-out, and Steam Ships must stop and go astern, if necessary.

Both in safety and in doubt
Always keep a good look-out;
In danger, with no room to turn,
Ease her, stop her, go astern.

APPENDIX F.

DISTRESS AND PILOT SIGNALS.

The following sections of the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894," M. S. Act, relate to Signals of Distress and Signals for Pilots. (See also 1894.
Order in Council of 11th August 1894—Regulations for preventing Collisions at Sea. Article 27, page 63.)

434.—(1) Her Majesty in Council may make rules as to what Signals of signals shall be signals of distress, and the signals fixed by those distress rules shall be deemed to be signals of distress.

(2) If a master of a vessel uses or displays, or causes or permits any person under his authority to use or display, any of those signals of distress, except in the case of a vessel being in distress, he shall be liable to pay compensation for any labour undertaken, risk incurred, or loss sustained in consequence of that signal having been supposed to be a signal of distress, and that compensation may, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recovered in the same manner in which salvage is recoverable.

615.—(1) Her Majesty may by Order in Council make rules as to the signals to be used or displayed where the services of a pilot are required on any vessel, and those signals are in this Act referred to as pilot signals. Signals to be displayed by ships requiring a pilot.

(2) If a vessel requires the services of a pilot, the master of that vessel shall use or display the pilot signals.

(3) If a master of a vessel uses or displays, or causes or permits any person under his authority to use or display, any of the pilot signals for any other purpose than that of summoning a pilot, or uses or causes or permits any person under his authority to use any other signal for a pilot, he shall for each offence be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS.

(As subsequently amended by Order in Council of 11th August 1884.)

When a ship is in distress and requires assistance from other ships or from the shore, the following shall be the signals to be used or displayed by her, either together or separately; that is to say,—

In the daytime—

1. A gun fired at intervals of about a minute;
2. The International Code Signal of distress indicated by NC;
3. The distant signal, consisting of a square flag having either above or below it a ball, or anything resembling a ball.

At night—

1. A gun fired at intervals of about a minute;
2. Flames on the ship (as from a burning tar barrel, oil barrel, &c.);
3. Rockets or shells, throwing stars of any colour or description, fired one at a time, at short intervals.

SIGNALS TO BE MADE BY SHIPS WANTING A PILOT.

In the daytime.—The following signals, numbered 1 and 2, when used or displayed together or separately, shall be deemed to be signals for a pilot in the daytime, viz.:—

1. To be hoisted at the fore, the Jack or other national colour usually worn by merchant ships, having round it a white border, one-fifth of the breadth of the flag; or
2. The International Code pilotage signal indicated by PT.

At night.—The following signals, numbered 1 and 2, when used or displayed together or separately, shall be deemed to be signals for a pilot at night, viz.:—

1. The pyrotechnic light commonly known as a blue light every fifteen minutes; or
2. A bright white light, flashed or shown at short or frequent intervals just above the bulwarks, for about a minute at a time.

EXAMINATION IN CHART.

For all Grades where the Chart is used (including Examinations for Home Trade Passenger Ship Certificates).

[The Candidate will be required to work out the following questions on either a "true" or "magnetic" chart,* whichever may be handed to him by the Examiner; and also determine whether the chart is a "true" or "magnetic" one, and whether it is for the northern or southern, and eastern or western hemisphere.]

1. Using deviation [card] [curve]† No. find the course to steer by compass from to ; also the distance.

Answer.—Compass course
Distance
Variation
Deviation

2. With the ship's head on the above-named compass course, a [point] [lighthouse] bore by compass and bore by the same compass, find the ship's position.

Answer.—Latitude
Longitude

3. With the ship's head above, a [point] [lighthouse] bore by compass, and after continuing on the same course miles it bore, find the position of ship and her distance from at the time of taking the second bearing.

Answer.—Latitude
Longitude
Distance

* The terms "true" and "magnetic" are used for the sake of brevity and convenience, to indicate charts that have compasses delineated upon them showing the "true" or "magnetic" points of the compass respectively.

† A Candidate for an Ordinary Master's Certificate is expected to use either a card of deviations, or a curve of deviations on a Napier's diagram, which ever the Examiner may think proper to put before him.

All the foregoing questions must be answered, but this does not preclude the Examiner from putting any other questions of a practical character or which the local circumstances of the port may require.

Additional questions for Masters (including Candidates for Home Trade Passenger Ship Certificates).

4. Find the course to steer by compass from _____ to _____ (see Question 1) to counteract the effect of a current which set _____ at the rate of _____ miles per hour, the ship making by log _____ miles per hour; also the distance the ship would then make good in _____ hours towards _____

Answer.—Compass course _____
Distance _____

5. On _____ being off _____ took a cast of the lead, required the correction to be applied to the depth obtained by the lead line before comparing it with the depth marked on the chart.

6. What do you understand the small numbers to indicate that you see placed about the chart, and at what time of tide?

7. What do the Roman numerals indicate that are occasionally seen on the chart near the coasts and in harbours?

8. How would you find approximately the time of high water at any place, the Admiralty tables not being at hand, nor any other special tables available?

All the foregoing questions, and those on Form Exn. 9 C., must be answered, but this does not preclude the Examiner from putting any other questions of a practical character or which the local circumstances of the port may require.

APPENDIX H.

QUESTIONS RELATING TO CYCLONES OR REVOLVING STORMS COMMON IN TROPICAL SEAS.

The Candidate must answer in writing, on paper supplied to him by the Examiner, the following questions, numbering the answers to correspond with the questions:—

Question—

1. The direction of the wind in a cyclone being*, _____, state the probable bearing of its centre from the ship in the* _____ Hemisphere.

APPENDIX I.

On and after the 1st of May 1895, the following questions on the Deviation of the Compass will be substituted for those on Form Exn. 7 at present in use, in the examination of Candidates for Certificates as Masters of Foreign-going Ships:—

DEVIATION OF THE COMPASS.

The applicant is to answer correctly at least 12 of such of the following questions as are marked with a cross by the Examiner.

The Examiner's attention is specially called to the importance of Questions 11, 12, 13, 14, and 39, which must be marked in all cases—

1. State briefly the essentials of an efficient Compass.
2. State briefly the chief points to be considered when selecting a position for your Compass on board ship, and what should be particularly guarded against.

* These spaces to be filled in by the Examiners, and frequently varied.

† The Examiners to fill in whether North Atlantic, Bay of Bengal, China Seas, Indian Ocean, &c., &c.

3. What do you mean by Deviation of the Compass, and how is it caused?
4. Describe how you would determine the deviation of your compass—(1) by reciprocal bearings; (2) by figures on the dock walls; (3) by bearings of a distant object; (4) by the bearings of the sun or other celestial body.
5. Having determined the deviation with the ship's head on the various points of the compass, how do you know when it is Easterly and when Westerly?
6. Why is it necessary, in order to ascertain the deviations, to bring the ship's head in more than one direction?
7. For accuracy, what is the least number of points to which the ship's head should be brought for constructing a curve or table of deviations?
8. How would you find the deviation when sailing along a well-known coast?
9. Name some suitable objects by which you could readily obtain the deviation of the Compass when sailing along the coasts of the Channel you have been accustomed to use.
10. Supposing you have no means of ascertaining the magnetic bearing of a distant object when swinging your ship for deviations, how could you find it, approximately from equi-distant compass bearings; and at what distance as a rule should the object be from the ship?
11. Having taken the following compass bearings of a distant object, find the object's magnetic bearing, and thence the deviation—

MAGNETIC BEARING REQUIRED:—

Ship's Head by Standard Compass.	Bearing of distant object by Standard Compass.	Deviation required.	Ship's Head by Standard Compass.	Bearing of distant object by Standard Compass.	Deviation required.
1	2	3	4	5	6
North	S. 4° E.		South	S. 15° E.
N. E.	South		S. W.	S. 23° E.
East	S. 4° W.		West	S. 21° E.
S. E.	S. 1° W.		N. W.	S. 11° E.

12. With the deviation as above, construct a curve of deviations on a Napier's diagram, and give the courses you would steer by the Standard Compass to make the following courses, correct magnetic:—

Magnetic courses—S.S.W., W.N.W., N.N.E., E.S.E.
Compass courses required.

13. Supposing you have steered the following courses by the Standard Compass, find the correct magnetic courses made from the above curve of deviations:—

14. You have taken the following bearings of two distant objects by your Standard Compass as above; with the ship's head at W. $\frac{1}{4}$ S., find the bearings, correct magnetic:—

Compass bearings—W. by S. and N. $\frac{1}{4}$ W.
Magnetic bearings required.

15. Do you expect the deviation to change; if so, state under what circumstances?
16. How often is it desirable to test the accuracy of your table of deviations?
17. What is meant by variation of the Compass; what is it caused by; and where can you find the variation for any given position?
18. The earth being regarded as a magnet, which is usually termed the blue, and which the red magnetic pole?
19. Which end of a magnet (or compass needle) is usually termed the red or "marked" end, and which the blue?
20. What effect has the pole of one magnet of either name on the pole of another magnet?
21. What is meant by transient induced magnetism?
22. Which is the red and which is the blue pole of a mass of soft vertical iron, by induction, and what effect would the upper and lower ends of it have on the compass needle (a) in the Northern hemisphere, (b) in the Southern hemisphere, (c) on the magnetic Equator?
23. Describe what is usually termed the sub-permanent* magnetism of an iron ship, and state when and how it is acquired, and which is the red and which is the blue pole, and why it is called sub-permanent magnetism?
24. Describe the meaning of the expression co-efficient A.
25. Describe the meaning of the expression co-efficient B: its sign and effects.

* The term sub-permanent magnetism in these questions is used in the original sense as proposed by the late Sir G. B. Airy, to denote the character of the permanent magnetism of an iron ship as distinguished from the permanent magnetism of a magnetised steel bar. The terms "sub-permanent" and "permanent" throughout these questions may, therefore, be considered as synonymous.

26. Describe the meaning of the expression co-efficient C; its signs and effects.
27. Describe the meaning of the expression co-efficient D; its signs and effects.
28. Describe the meaning of the expression co-efficient E; its signs and effects.
29. Would you expect any change to be caused in the error of your Compass by the ship heeling over either from the effect of the wind or the cargo, &c.?
30. The compasses of iron ships being more or less affected by what is termed the heeling error, on what courses is this error usually at its minimum, and on what courses at its maximum?
31. Describe clearly the three principal causes of the heeling error on board ship.
32. State to which side of the ship in the majority of cases is the North point of the Compass drawn when ship heels over in the Northern hemisphere.
33. Under what conditions (that is, as regards position of ship whilst building, and the arrangement of iron in the ship) is the North point of the Compass needle usually drawn to windward or the high side of the ship in the Northern hemisphere, and if not allowed for, what effect has it on the assumed position of the ship when she is steering on Northerly, also on Southerly courses in the Northern hemisphere?
34. Under what conditions (as in question 33) is the North point of the Compass needle usually drawn to leeward or the low side of the ship in the Northern hemisphere, and, if not allowed for, what effect would it have on the assumed position of the ship when she is steering on Northerly, also on Southerly courses in the Northern hemisphere?
35. The effects being as you state, on what courses would you keep away, and on what courses would you keep closer to the wind in the Northern hemisphere in order to make good a given Compass course (a) when North point of Compass is drawn to windward or the high side of ship; and (b) when drawn to leeward or the low side?
36. Does the same rule hold good in both hemispheres with regard to the heeling error?
37. State clearly how that part of the heeling error due to the permanent part of the magnetism of the ship varies as the ship changes her position on the globe, and what is the reason of this?
38. State clearly how that part of the heeling error due to the induction in transverse iron (which was horizontal when ship was upright) and iron vertical to the ship's deck, varies as the ship changes her position on the globe.
39. Your steering compass having a large error, show by "Beall's Compass Deviascope" how you would correct it by compensating magnets and soft iron (as usually practised by Compass adjusters in the Mercantile Marine) in order to reduce the error within manageable limits. Show also how the heeling error can be compensated.
40. As the co-efficient B (capable of being corrected) usually consists of two parts—one due to the permanent magnetism of the ship, and the other to vertical induction in soft iron, how should each of the two parts, strictly speaking, be corrected when compensating the Compass?
41. If the whole of co-efficient B be corrected by a permanent magnet, as is usually done, what is likely to ensue as the ship changes her magnetic latitude?
42. Provided the needles of your Compass are not so long and powerful, and so near, as to cause the soft iron correctors to become magnetised by induction, would the co-efficient D if properly compensated be likely to remain so in all magnetic latitudes and both hemispheres? If so, state the reason why.
43. State at what distance, as a general rule, the magnets and soft iron correctors should be placed from the Compass needles, and what will be the consequence if they are placed too near the needles?
44. Is it necessary that the magnets used for compensating co-efficients B and C should be placed on the deck? If not, state where they may also be placed, and the rules to be observed in placing them into position.
45. Can the compensation of the heeling error be depended upon when the ship changes her latitude? If not, state the reason.

APPENDIX K.

COMPASS ADJUSTMENT.

Instruction to Examiners.

The Board of Trade are advised that it is of the utmost importance that masters of ships should thoroughly understand the tentative method of Compass Adjustment as generally practised in merchant ships, and Examiners are therefore directed to fully satisfy themselves that all Candidates for Masters' Certificates have this particular knowledge. It should be tested in connection with the Form of Examination ("Exn. 7") by aid of Captain Beall's "Deviascope," by which they will be required to prove—(1) their knowledge of the laws of deviation, and the tentative method of Compass Adjustment; (2) that they understand the practical application of the answers given by them to any of the other questions on Form "Exn. 7" that the Examiner, in the course of the examination, may think fit to touch upon.

A concise statement of the present method of tentative Compass Adjustment is forwarded for the use of Examiners. The Board of Trade wish them, however, distinctly to understand that the Board are not in any way advocating the correction of that part of co-efficient B which arises from vertical induction in soft iron by a permanent magnet instead of by a soft iron bar. The Board have no authority to interfere with the methods in use amongst Compass adjusters for the adjustment of Compasses in iron ships, but instruct the Examiners to satisfy themselves that masters are acquainted with the ordinary method as at present practised.

THE TENTATIVE METHOD OF COMPASS ADJUSTMENT AS GENERALLY PRACTISED BY COMPASS ADJUSTERS IN SHIPS OF THE MERCANTILE MARINE.

Before describing the practice, it will be as well to briefly state the co-efficients used to express the different magnetic forces:—

Co-efficient A	represents a constant quantity.
" B	" semicircular deviation due to fore and aft magnetic forces.
" C	" semicircular deviation due to transverse magnetic forces.
" D	" quadrantal deviation due to horizontal induction in soft iron.
" E	" quadrantal deviation due to horizontal induction in soft iron unsymmetrically distributed.

SIGNS AND EFFECTS OF CO-EFFICIENTS A, B, C, D, and E.

Co-efficient A represents a constant deviation of the same nature and amount on all points of the Compass; + A signifying easterly, and — A, westerly deviation.

Co-efficient + B represents an attraction towards the ship's head, and causes easterly deviations with ship's head in the eastern semicircle of the Compass, and westerly deviations in the western semicircle, attaining a maximum value on the east and west points, decreasing to zero on north and south points, by Compass.

Co-efficient — B represents an attraction towards the ship's stern, and causes easterly deviations with ship's head in the western semicircle, and westerly deviations with the ship's head in the eastern semicircle, with a maximum value on the east and west points, decreasing to zero on the north and south points, by Compass.

Co-efficient + C represents an attraction towards the starboard side of the ship, and causes easterly deviations with ship's head in the northern semicircle, and westerly deviations in the southern semicircle, attaining a maximum value on the north and south points, decreasing to zero on the east and west points, by Compass.

Co-efficient — C represents an attraction towards the port side of the ship, and causes westerly deviations with ship's head in the northern semicircle, and easterly in the southern semicircle, attaining a maximum value on the north and south points, decreasing to zero on the east and west points, by Compass.

Co-efficient + D gives easterly deviations with ship's head between N. and E. and S. and W.; and westerly deviations between S. and E. and N. and W.

Co-efficient — D gives results exactly the reverse to + D.

Note.—Both + D and — D have a maximum value on the four quadrantal points, and become zero on the cardinal points by Compass.

Co-efficient + E gives easterly deviations with ship's head between N.E. and N.W. and S.E. and S.W.; and westerly deviations between N.E. and S.E. and N.W. and S.W.

Co-efficient — E gives results exactly the reverse to + E.

Note.—Both + E and — E have a maximum value on the cardinal points, and become zero on the four quadrantal points, but are usually very small in amount in Compasses placed in the middle line of the ship.

Heeling Error.—The heeling error arises partly from vertical induction in transverse iron, and iron vertical to the ship's deck, and partly from the vertical component of the sub-permanent magnetism of the ship. In the Northern Hemisphere in the majority of cases the N. point of the Compass needle is drawn to windward or the high side of the ship, with, as a rule, a maximum heeling error on N. and S. points, and zero on E. and W. points by Compass. If the Compass is not properly placed in the ship, there may be a sensible heeling deviation on E. and W. courses.

TENTATIVE CORRECTIONS.

To correct co-efficient C.—With ship's head north or south (magnetic) place a bar magnet (or more than one if necessary) horizontally and exactly athwartship, either on the deck or on any convenient platform, with its centre on the fore and aft line passing through the centre of the Compass card, placing its red or marked end to starboard if the N. point of the needle deviates to the starboard side, or to port if it deviates to the port side of the ship, moving the magnet to or from the Compass until it points correctly.

Note.—The deviation represented by co-efficient C varies inversely as the earth's horizontal force, providing the iron is symmetrically arranged on each side of the Compass.

To correct co-efficient B.—With ship's head east or west (magnetic) place a bar magnet (or more than one if necessary) horizontally and exactly parallel to the fore and aft midship line of the ship, either on the deck or on any convenient platform, with its centre on the athwartship line passing through the centre of the Compass, the red or marked end of the magnet being directed aft if the N. point of the Compass needle deviates towards the stern, or forward if it deviates towards the bow, moving the magnet to or from the Compass until it points correctly.

Note.—The co-efficient B consists of two parts; one is due to the permanent magnetism of the ship, which varies inversely as the earth's horizontal force; the other to vertical induction in soft iron, which varies as the tangent of the dip. As ships in the merchant service are rarely built with a view of providing a satisfactory position for the standard Compasses, it is very difficult in many ships to find a position for it where it will not be affected by vertical iron. It follows, therefore, that if this deviation be compensated, as is customary, by a fore and aft permanent magnet instead of by a vertical soft iron bar, the poles of the magnet may in some cases require to be reversed in high southern latitudes.

To correct co-efficient + D.—With ship's head on one of the quadrantal points (magnetic) the + D is generally corrected by boxes of small chain, cylinders of soft iron, or soft iron globes, placed athwartships on the same level, and at equal distances, on the port and starboard sides of the Compass, with the centre of their mass on a level with the Compass needle, move them to or from the Compass till the needle points correctly.

To correct co-efficient - D.—Co-efficient - D, which is of very rare occurrence, is corrected by placing the above correctors on the fore and aft sides of the Compass.

Note.—When once the co-efficient D is properly corrected by soft iron, it is correct for all magnetic latitudes, provided the distribution of the iron in the ship is not materially changed, and provided the magnetism of the soft iron has not been affected by the Compass needles. With short needles having small magnetic power, such, for instance, as Sir Wm. Thomson's, there will probably be no change; but when the needles are long and powerful, one-half the original D may be expected to return when approaching the magnetic equator. See Admiralty Manual, 1882, page 96, as follows:—"When a compass with long and powerful needles is employed, soft iron correctors placed very near it become magnetised by induction according to the power of the needles, and the resulting correction will not remain strictly perfect in all latitudes."

To correct Heeling Error.—The heeling error is corrected for any given magnetic latitude by placing a vertical magnet exactly under the centre of the Compass card, with its N. or red pole uppermost if the heeling error is to windward or to the high side of ship, or its S. or blue end uppermost if to leeward or to the low side of ship, moving the magnet to or from the Compass until the heeling error is corrected.

Note.—The heeling error due to the permanent part of the magnetism varies inversely as the earth's horizontal force, and consequently is greatest in high latitudes, diminishes as the ship approaches the magnetic equator and increases again, still retaining the same name as the ship recedes from the magnetic equator in the Southern Hemisphere. The heeling error due to transverse and vertical soft iron decreases as the ship approaches the magnetic equator, where it is zero, and is of a contrary name in the Southern Hemisphere. It is probable that the poles of the vertical magnet may require to be reversed in high southern latitudes.

A divided scale should be marked or fitted outside the tube or some other convenient place, so as to show the proper position for the correcting magnet as found in any given magnetic latitude, and the same recorded as a guide for approximately placing the magnet in position on any subsequent voyage in the same locality, and especially on the return of the ship to the United Kingdom.

Candidates should understand that the object of tentative adjustment is to bring the deviations within manageable limits, and also to equalise the directive force of the needle so far as is practicable on all courses; but no system of adjustment whatever is sufficiently reliable in character to absolve the navigator from the necessity of using every precaution, and especially of ascertaining the deviation on every available opportunity by observations of the sun by day and the other heavenly bodies by night.

APPENDIX L.

SYLLABUS of EXAMINATION in the LAWS of the DEVIATION of the COMPASSES of an IRON SHIP, and in the Means of compensating or correcting it.

From the 1st of May 1895, the following Syllabus will be substituted for the one at present in use in the examination of all candidates for the voluntary examination in Compass Deviation, and for Extra Master's Certificates. Candidates will be required to give correct written answers to at least 40 of the questions; these will be marked by a cross by the Examiner. They will also be required to prove by "Beall's Compass Deviascope"—(1) their knowledge of the Tentative method of Compass Adjustment, and (2) that they really possess a good knowledge of what they have written, by showing on the Deviascope that they are acquainted with the practical application of the same, or of any other questions in the Syllabus that the Examiner in the course of the examination may think proper to touch upon. Questions 81, 61, 62, 69, 70, 72, and 92 will be marked by the Examiner in all cases. The other questions will be constantly varied:—

1. Describe an artificial magnet, and how a steel bar or needle is usually magnetized.
2. Which end of the compass needle, or a magnet, is commonly termed the red, and which the blue pole?
3. Which is the red magnetic pole of the earth, and which the blue; and give their geographical positions?
4. What effect has the pole of one magnet of either name on the pole of the same name of another magnet, and what would be the consequence of the pole of one magnet of either name being brought near enough to affect the pole of contrary name, if in those cases both magnets were freely suspended?
5. By applying this law to all magnets, natural as well as artificial, describe what would be the result on a magnetic bar or needle, freely suspended, but by weight or by the nature of its mounting constrained to preserve a horizontal position; and what would be the result, if so mounted, but free to move in every direction; the earth being regarded as a natural magnet?
6. What is the cause of the variation of the compass?
7. What is meant by the deviation of the compass?
8. What is meant by the term "local attraction;" under what circumstances have ships' compasses, from recent careful investigation, been found to be affected by it, and name some of the localities in different parts of the world where this disturbance is to be found, and consequently where increased vigilance is necessary [see Appendix, "Evan's Elementary Manual," 1888].
9. What do you understand by the term "soft" iron; and what are its properties as regards acquiring and retaining magnetism?
10. What do you understand by the term "hard" iron; and what are its properties as regards acquiring and retaining magnetism?
11. Describe the meaning of the term "horizontal force" of the earth; where is it the greatest, and where the least; and what effect has it in respect to the increase or decrease of the directive force of the compass needle?
12. Does the magnetic equator coincide with the geographical equator; if not, state clearly how it is situated?
13. Where can the values of the magnetic dip, the earth's horizontal force, and the variation, be found?
14. State in what parts of the globe lying in the usual tracks of navigation the variation changes very rapidly, and what special precautions should be observed when navigating these localities, also why a "variation" chart is then very useful.
15. Why is a knowledge of the magnetic dip and the earth's horizontal force important in dealing with compass deviations?
16. Describe the meaning of the term "vertical force" of the earth; where is it the greatest and where the least?
17. Would you expect a compass to be the more seriously affected by any given disturbing force when near the magnetic equator, or near the poles? and state the reason.
18. State briefly (a) the essentials of an efficient compass; and (b) what you would consider a good arrangement of the needles (that is, whether long or short, single or double, &c.) with the view to good compensation.
19. In stowing away spare compass cards or magnets, how would you place them with regard to each other, or what might be the probable consequence?

61. Having taken the following equi-distant compass bearings of a distant object, find the object's magnetic bearings, and thence the deviations:—

(a) MAGNETIC BEARING REQUIRED:—

Ship's Head by Standard Compass.	Bearing of distant object by Standard Compass.	Deviation required.	Ship's Head by Standard Compass.	Bearing of distant object by Standard Compass.	Deviation required.
1	2	3	4	5	6
North.	S. 75° W.		South.	S. 34° W.
N.E.	S. 65° W.		S.W.	S. 31° W.
East.	S. 55° W.		West.	S. 40° W.
S.E.	S. 50° W.		N.W.	S. 71° W.

(b) Construct a curve of deviations on a Napier's diagram with the deviations as above, and give the courses you would steer by the Standard Compass to make the following courses, correct magnetic:—

Magnetic courses—N.N.W., S.S.E., W.N.W., E.S.E.
Compass courses required.

(c) Supposing you have steered the following courses by the Standard Compass, find the correct magnetic courses made from the above curve of deviations:—

Compass courses—N.N.E., E.N.E., S.S.W., W.S.W.
Magnetic courses required.

(d) You have taken the following bearings of two distant objects by your Standard Compass as above; with the ship's head at N.E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E., find the bearings, correct magnetic:—

Compass bearings—S.E. by S. and N.N.W.
Magnetic bearings required.

62. Assuming the deviations observed with ship's head by compass to be as follow [or as in question 61, whichever may be given], determine the value of the co-efficients A, B, C, D, and E, and from them construct a complete table of deviations (or for as many points as the Examiner may direct).

Deviation at North	[]	South	[]
N. E.	[]	S. W.	[]
East	[]	West	[]
S. E.	[]	N. W.	[]

63. When swinging your ship, if it be required to construct Deviation Tables for two or more compasses situated in different parts of the vessel, describe the process, and how you would employ the Napier's diagram for this purpose.

64. State your rule for determining whether deviation is easterly or westerly.

65. Is a knowledge of the value of the various co-efficients of any advantage? If so, state why?

66. Describe (a) what is commonly known by the term "retentive" or "retained" magnetism, and how the ship acquires it when in port and at sea; (b) its effect on the compass needle whilst ship's head continues in the same direction; (c) the immediate consequence when the direction of the ship's head is altered, and (d) the special precautions to be invariably observed at sea on the alteration of the ship's course.

67. Describe a "Dumb-card" or "Pelorus," and its use (a) in compensating a compass, (b) in determining the deviation.

68. If you determine the deviation by an azimuth or an amplitude of a heavenly body, it is then combined with variation, which together is sometimes called the correction for the compass. State when the deviation is the difference between the variation and the correction, and when the sum; and when it is of the same name as that of the correction, and when of the contrary name.

69. In observing azimuths of heavenly bodies, the best method is by "time azimuths," since these can be observed without an altitude when the ship is in port, or when the horizon cannot be defined from any cause. Given the sun's declination, the hour of the day, and the latitude, to find the true bearing of the sun.*

70. By night, if it be desirable to observe the correction of the compass. Given the day of the year, and time at ship, also the latitude of the place, to determine what stars will be in good position for this purpose.

71. If your correcting magnets are so mounted that their positions can be altered, describe the process by which on open sea you can place the ship's head correct magnetic N. (or S.), and correct magnetic E. (or W.), and can make the correction perfect.

* The process of finding time azimuths by the ordinary formulae of spherical trigonometry is tedious, and since on board an iron ship these observations should be often repeated, the Candidate will be allowed to use any table or graphic or linear method that will solve the problem within a half of a degree, the altitude of the heavenly body not being given.

72. Given the name of a star, the time, the place of ship, the variation of the compass, and the bearing of the star by compass. Determine the deviation, and name it east or west.

73. Would you expect any change to be caused in the error of your compass by the ship heeling over either from the effect of the wind or the cargo?

74. Describe clearly the three principal causes of the heeling error on board an iron ship.

75. Towards which side of the ship would that part of magnetism induced in continuous transverse iron (which was horizontal while ship was upright) help to draw the North point of the needle when ship heels over (a) in the Northern hemisphere, (b) in the Southern hemisphere?

76. Supposing the compass were placed between the two parts of a divided beam or other athwartship iron, towards which side of the ship would iron so situated help to draw the North point of the needle when ship heels over (a) in the Northern hemisphere, (b) in the Southern hemisphere?

77. Would you expect that part of the magnetism induced in iron exactly perpendicular to the ship's deck, such as stanchions, bulkheads, &c., if below the compass, to cause any part of the heeling error when ship heels over, and if so, towards which side of the ship (a) in the Northern hemisphere, (b) in the Southern hemisphere?

78. If an ordinary standard compass placed higher than the iron top sides be compensated whilst the ship is upright, what co-efficient will be affected by heeling?

79. Under what conditions (that is, as regards position whilst building and the arrangement of iron in the ship) is the North point of the Compass needle usually drawn to windward, or the high side of the ship, in the Northern hemisphere?

80. Under what conditions, as a rule, is the North point of the Compass needle usually drawn to leeward, or the low side of the ship, in the Northern hemisphere?

81. State to which side of the ship, in the majority of cases, is the North point of the Compass drawn when ship heels over in the Northern hemisphere; and when this is the case, and it is not allowed for, what effect has it on the assumed position of the ship when she is steering on Northerly and also on Southerly courses?

82. On what courses would you keep away, and on what courses would you keep closer to the wind in both the Northern and Southern hemispheres in order to make good a given Compass course (a) when North point of Compass is drawn to windward, or the high side of ship, and (b) when drawn to leeward or the low side?

83. If a ship is beating to windward; when she tacks, under what circumstances will the heeling error retain the same name, and under what circumstances will it take the contrary name?

84. If a ship is placed on the opposite tack by the change of wind, the ship's course being the same by compass, will the heeling error change its name?

85. In which direction of the ship's head does the heeling error attain its maximum value, and in which direction does it generally vanish?

86. Explain clearly how that part of the heeling error due to the permanent part of the magnetism of the ship varies as the ship changes her geographical position, and what is the reason of this?

87. Explain clearly how that part of the heeling error due to the induction in transverse iron (which was horizontal when ship was upright), and iron vertical to the ship's deck, varies as the ship changes her geographical position.

88. What, then, would be the probable nature of the heeling error, that is, whether to high or low side of the ship, and whether the error would be equal to the sum or difference, &c., of the forces given (1) in high North Latitudes, (2) on magnetic equator, (3) in high South Latitudes? Assuming the polarity of the sub-permanent magnetism of the ship under, and affecting, the Compass, to be as given below; the vertical induction in soft iron, of course, obeying the ordinary laws in the above geographical positions (1), (2), (3)—

- (a) In cases where the effect of red vertical sub-permanent magnetism is equal to that of the vertical induction in the soft iron of the ship.
- (b) Where the effect of red vertical sub-permanent magnetism is greater than that of the vertical induction in the soft iron.
- (c) Where the effect of red vertical sub-permanent magnetism is less than that of the vertical induction in the soft iron.
- (d) Where the effect of blue vertical sub-permanent magnetism is equal to that of the vertical induction in the soft iron.
- (e) Where the effect of blue vertical sub-permanent magnetism is greater than that of the vertical induction in the soft iron.
- (f) Where the effect of blue vertical sub-permanent magnetism is less than that of the vertical induction in the soft iron.

89. Can the heeling error be compensated? If so, state the means to be employed, and how the compensation may be effected.

90. Can the compensation of the heeling error be depended on in every latitude? If not, state the reason.

91. Do the soft iron correctors used for compensating the co-efficient + D have any effect on the compass needle when the ship heels over, and if so, do they draw the needle towards the low or the high side of the ship, and do they counteract, or otherwise, the effect

20. State briefly the chief points to be considered when selecting a position for your compass on board ship, and what should be particularly guarded against.

21. What is meant by transient induced magnetism?

22. Which is the red and which the blue pole of a mass of soft vertical iron (or indeed of any soft iron not in a horizontal position) by induction, and what effect would the upper and lower ends of it have on a compass needle in the Northern hemisphere?

23. Which is the red and which the blue pole of a mass of soft vertical iron by induction, and what effect would the upper and lower ends of it have on the compass needle in the Southern hemisphere?

24. What effect would a bar of soft vertical iron have on the compass needle on the magnetic equator?

25. Describe what is usually termed the sub-permanent* magnetism of an iron ship, and state when and how it is acquired, and which is the sub-permanent red and which is the blue pole, and why it is called sub-permanent magnetism.

26. What is meant by "the composition of forces" and "the parallelogram of forces," and show how the knowledge of these is valuable in ascertaining and compensating the sub-permanent magnetism of an iron ship?

27. Describe the nature of the co-efficients B and C plus (+) and minus (—), and the different magnetic forces they represent; also why they are said to produce semicircular deviations.

28. Can semicircular deviations be produced by any other force than the sub-permanent magnetism of the ship? If so, by what?

29. On what points by compass bearings of the ship's head does +B give westerly deviation, and on what points does it give easterly; also on what points does —B give westerly, and on what points easterly?

30. On what points does +C give westerly deviation, and on what points easterly; also on what points does —C give westerly, and on what points easterly deviation?

31. The value of either co-efficient B or C being given, also the magnetic direction of the ship's head while she was being built, determine by the traverse tables the approximate value of the other co-efficient C or B; and the value of both these co-efficients being given, determine approximately the direction by compass of the ship's head whilst being built, assuming, of course, that these co-efficients resulted altogether from sub-permanent magnetism.

32. Would you expect the greatest disturbance of the needle from the effects of sub-permanent magnetism alone to take place when ship's head is in same direction as when building, or when her head is at right angles to that direction, and in what direction of the ship's head would you expect to find the least disturbance?

33. Describe quadrantal deviation, and state what co-efficients represent it; also on what points of the ship's head, by compass, each of these co-efficients gives the greatest amount of deviation, and why it is called quadrantal deviation?

34. On what points of the compass will each of the co-efficients, D and E, + and —, give easterly, and on what points westerly deviation?

35. What conditions of the iron of a ship will produce +D and what —D?

36. State clearly, then, which end of horizontal iron running athwartship (such as beams, &c.), and of horizontal iron running fore and aft of a ship, acquires red and which blue polarity, by induction, when ship's head is at N.E., S.E., S.W., and N.W., respectively.

37. Describe the nature of the deviation represented by co-efficients +A and —A, and describe the errors in the construction of the compass, and other causes, that frequently produce it.

38. What is the object of compensating the compass by magnets, &c., and what are the general advantages of a compensated compass over an uncompensated one?

39. Before adjusting the compass of an iron ship, what is it desirable to do with the view to eliminating, as far as possible, what may be termed the unstable part of the magnetism of the ship?

40. Describe clearly the tentative method of compass adjustment (that is, the compensation of co-efficients B, C, and D, with ship upright) as generally practised by compass adjusters in ships of the mercantile marine.

41. State at what distance, as a general rule, the magnets and soft iron correctors should be placed from the compass needles, and what will be the consequence if they are placed too near the needles.

* The term "sub-permanent" magnetism in the Syllabus is used in the original sense, as proposed by the late Sir G. B. Airy, to denote the character of the permanent magnetism of an iron ship as distinguished from the permanent magnetism of a magnetised steel bar. The terms "sub-permanent" and "permanent" throughout the Syllabus may therefore be considered as synonymous.

42. Is it necessary that the magnets used for compensating co-efficients B and C should be placed on the deck? If not, state where they may also be placed, and the rules to be observed in placing them into position.

43. Does the B found on board ship usually arise altogether from sub-permanent magnetism, or does part of it usually arise from some other cause or causes?

44. If the part of B due to induced magnetism in vertical soft iron, as well as the part due to sub-permanent magnetism, are corrected by a magnet alone, as is generally the case, what is frequently the consequence on the ship changing her magnetic latitude and hemisphere?

45. How should each of these two parts of B, then, strictly speaking, be compensated?

46. Assuming, for the sake of clearness, that your steering compass is unavoidably placed very near to the head of the sternpost (and other vertical iron at the stern), thereby causing a very large—B from induced magnetism; describe briefly any method by which the approximate position for the compensating vertical iron bar (Flinder's or Rundell's) could be estimated in order to reduce the error; describe also how you would proceed, in order to improve, if not, to perfect, its position after observations have been made on the magnetic equator.

47. State if standard compasses, as well as steering compasses, are generally subject to this disturbance from induced magnetism in vertical iron; also whether the attraction in all cases is found to be towards the stern; and if not, state the conditions under which it might be towards the bow, and how the compensating soft iron bar should then be placed.

48. Generally speaking, does the magnetism induced in vertical iron usually have any effect in producing the co-efficient C, ship upright, or is it generally produced by sub-permanent magnetism alone? State also your reasons for saying so.

49. Provided the needles of your compass are not so long and powerful, and so near, as to cause the soft iron correctors to become magnetised by induction, would the co-efficient D if properly compensated as you have described (Ans. 40) be likely to remain so in all latitudes and both hemispheres? If so, state the reason why.

50. Under what circumstances does the character of A and E so change as to render it desirable that these co-efficients should be disregarded or modified?

51. Supposing your compasses were allowed to remain uncompensated, explain clearly what would be the probable changes (ship upright) in the deviations produced separately, by (1) the sub-permanent magnetism of the ship alone, (2) by the induced magnetism in vertical soft iron; (a) on reaching the equator, (b) in the southern hemisphere?

52. Assuming you were able to arrive at the proper proportions to be corrected, and were then to exactly compensate the sub-permanent magnetism of the ship by means of a permanent magnet, and the induced magnetism in vertical iron by a soft iron bar, would you expect any deviation to take place in your compass as the ship changed her latitude and hemisphere? And state your reasons for saying so.

53. Supposing the co-efficient D from horizontal soft iron were allowed to remain uncompensated, would you, or would you not, expect the D to differ in name or amount on the ship changing her magnetic latitude and hemisphere? And state the reason.

54. Describe how you would determine the deviation of your compass (1) by reciprocal bearings, (2) by figures on the dock walls, (3) by bearings of a distant object.

55. Describe, in detail, how you would determine the deviation of your compass by the bearings of the sun. Also by a star or planet.

56. Describe the uses to which the Napier's diagram can be applied, and its special advantages.

57. Describe clearly how the Napier's diagram is constructed.

58. For accuracy, what is the least number of points to which the ship's head should be brought for constructing a complete curve of deviations, or a complete table of deviations?

59. Nearing land, and being anxious to check your deviations on a few courses you may probably require to steer, what is the least number of points it would be necessary to steady the ship's head upon, if making use of a Napier's diagram, in order to ascertain the deviation on each of the points, say in a quadrant of the compass, and describe clearly how you would do this at sea?

60. Supposing you have no means of ascertaining the magnetic bearing of the distant object when swinging your ship for deviations, how could you find it, approximately, from equi-distant compass bearings; and how far, as a rule, should the object be from the ship when swinging or steaming round?

produced by the vertical induction in the soft iron; (a) in the Northern hemisphere, (b) in the Southern hemisphere; and what is the reason of this?

93. Given the heel, the direction of the ship's head by compass, and the heeling error observed, to find the approximate heeling error, with a greater or less given heel, and with the ship's head on some other named point of the compass, the ship's magnetic latitude being in both cases the same.

93. Describe any instrument to show the ship's heel (generally called a clinometer), and state how and where it should be fixed.

94. Should the Clinometer be observed when the ship is swung to determine the deviation when the ship is upright? If so, state the reason why.

95. Would you expect the Table of Deviations supplied by the compass adjuster from observations made in swinging the ship to remain good during the voyage, or would you expect the deviations to change? If so, state under what circumstances.

96. Is it desirable that a record of your observations for deviations should be kept as a guide for any subsequent voyage in case the ship should be in the same locality, or for further correction of the compass? If so, describe some suitable form for keeping such record.

97. Would you under any circumstances consider it a safe and proper procedure to place implicit confidence in your compasses, however skilfully they may have been adjusted? If not, what precautions is it your duty to take at all times?

APPENDIX M.

DEVIATION OF THE COMPASS.

(FOR MASTERS' CERTIFICATES FOR HOME TRADE PASSENGER SHIPS.)

[The Applicant must answer in writing, on paper given him by the Examiner, all the following questions, numbering his answers to correspond with the numbers of the questions.]

1. When taking a Meridian Altitude, how do you know when the sun is on the meridian; or, in other words, when it is noon?
2. How does the sun bear (true) when on the meridian of an observer in these latitudes (Home Trade Limits)?
3. What do you mean by deviation of the Compass, and how is it caused?
4. Having determined the deviation, how do you know when it is easterly, and when westerly?
5. Supposing the sun when on the meridian bore by your Compass _____ what would be the deviation of that Compass for the direction of the ship's head at the time, the variation given on the Chart being _____?
6. How could you find the deviation of your Compass when in port, or when sailing along a coast?
7. Name some suitable objects by which you could readily obtain the deviation of your Compass, when sailing along the coasts of the Channel you have been accustomed to use?
8. The bearing of two objects when in a line with each other was found on the Chart to be _____ magnetic, but when brought in a line on board they bore _____ by your Compass; required the deviation of your Compass for the direction of the ship's head at the time?
9. What means are there for checking the deviation of your Compass by night?
10. Supposing the North Star (Polaris) bore _____ by your Compass, what would be the deviation (approximately) of that Compass for the direction of the ship's head at the time, supposing the variation given on the Chart to be _____?
11. Do you expect the deviation to change? If so, state under what circumstances.
12. What is meant by variation of the Compass, and what is the cause of it?

APPENDIX N.

PARTICULARS OF EXAMINATION IN SUMNER'S METHOD BY PROJECTION.

Candidates are required to compute their longitudes by chronometer worked with two assumed latitudes.

They are to mark off on the chart the two positions ascertained by the first altitude, and are then to connect them with a straight line, termed the line of position, or the line of equal altitude which will show the bearing of any land it may intersect.

They will then be required to correct the first line of position for the ship's change of station, in the interval between the two observations, to project the line of position corresponding to the second observation on the chart, showing by its intersection with the first line of position, as corrected for change of station, the position of the ship at the time of the second observation.

The longitudes corresponding to the two latitudes by the second observation are no longer furnished by the Examiners. The Candidates are consequently required to work out the whole of the problem for themselves (in place of the explanation recently required), and must be prepared to find the sun's true bearing by projection at the time of taking either the first or second observation; and when necessary, to produce the lines of positions on the chart in order to make them cut one another, should the position of the ship happen to be outside the parallels of the two assumed latitudes given in the question. Outline charts, extending from 46° to 49° and from 49° to 52° of latitude respectively, are furnished by the Board of Trade to the different Examiners for this purpose.

APPENDIX O.

EXAMINATION OF A MASTER OR MATE IN STEAM.

The regulations under which these examinations are conducted are printed at pages 26 to 28.

A Candidate for this examination is required to have a thorough grasp of the construction of the steam-engine and boiler, to enable him to understand the nature and importance of any defect which may be reported to him by the engineer, and work in harmony with the engineer in affording time and facilities for disconnections, inspections, adjustments, and repairs.

To have a looking-on knowledge of what the principal repairs are which are needed in engines and boilers and pipes, and how these repairs are accomplished.

To be able to form an independent opinion as to a breakdown and the consequent propriety or impropriety of proceeding under steam with temporarily repaired or defective machinery. To understand how to estimate approximately the reduction of fuel required for reduced speed, and consequently to sanction such reduction of speed as may seem to him to be warranted by the report of the engineer, and to satisfy himself before leaving port that there is sufficient coal for the voyage.

To have an intelligent grasp of the general run of pipes and connexions in the engine-room, the marking of cocks, the opening and closing of cocks and valves, how mistakes of importance may be made in the confusion of an accident, and how best to guard against such mistakes.

To be capable of being left in charge of the feeding of a set of boilers, to understand the working of the water-gauge, and to be able to guard against being misled by false indications of the gauge-glass.

To understand about blowing down and surfacing, the reasons for doing so, and the danger which may result from the neglect of these under certain circumstances. A master or mate presenting himself for examination in steam must be understood to have made up for his want of practical experience by reading up about the steam-engine. He ought, therefore, to show that he has given his mind to intelligently understanding the rational of the action of the steam-engine. Under this head he should, therefore, be able to state approximately the quantity of heat required in the formation of steam, the remarkable relation of "latent" heat to "sensible" heat, how much steam can be raised by the combustion of one pound of coal, what horse-power measure is, what indicated horse-power is, what is the action of the slide-valve, the course of the steam through the engine, and the advantage of working expansively, and how the expansive action is shown by the indicator diagram.

The Candidate has to answer in writing 16 out of 20 questions selected from the book of Elementary Questions.* Selections for this examination are given on the alphabetic sheet for "Steam." Generally, these answers are given by Candidates as learned by rote from a book; the Candidate should therefore be asked such bird voice questions as will necessitate his giving his answers in different words, so as to discover whether he has the root of the matter in him.

The principal part of the bird voice is the examination on board a steamer, preferably one with which he is unacquainted. He is told to look about and try to find out the run of the machinery without the assistance of any one; the Examiner to be in the engine-room to see that this independent examination is properly carried out. When the Candidate reports that he thinks he knows the whole arrangement of the machinery, the Examiner will then question him on the uses of the parts, get him to point out the different cylinders, pumps, valves, condenser, &c. He must show that he understands the run of the pipes in the bilges, not necessarily that he has gone over every one of them, but he ought to be directed to trace, at least, one important range of pipes, and to thoroughly satisfy the Examiner that he could be safely trusted to manipulate the valves or cocks in connection therewith. It will not often be practicable for the candidate to be asked to actually work engines under steam, but he must satisfy the Examiner that he knows how to do so, and that he is aware what precautions have to be taken in regard to water in the cylinder, &c. It is most important that a Candidate should show that, in the event of an accident depriving him of the assistance of engineers, he knows what to do to safely take his vessel to an anchorage, or to stop the engine and proceed under sail alone.

The examination of a mate in steam is the same as that of a master. The knowledge required has no reference to the mate's position. A mate may be examined, but such examination implies that the mate will one day be a master, when the possession of the knowledge will be an advantage to him in the discharge of his duties as master.

APPENDIX P.

SOUND SIGNALS.

1. The Examiners already understand that they are to be very careful (in examining all applicants for Certificates of Competency) to satisfy themselves that the applicants understand the Rule of the Road at Sea, and should decline to pass every applicant who does not understand it.

2. As a serious misapprehension, however, arises in cases in which Sound Signals are made by a steamer under way in thick weather, contrary to the express wording of Articles 12a and 19 of the Regulations, it is more than ever incumbent on Examiners not to pass any applicant unless the Examiner is satisfied that the applicant understands that the Signals named in Article 19 are purely optional, and are only allowed to be made in cases in which the weather is so clear that the ship making them has the other vessel in sight.

3. Any Master using these optional Sound Signals, even when the other vessel is in sight, does so in every case on his own responsibility; but if he uses them when the other vessel is not in sight, he commits a very serious act of disobedience to the Regulations, and must abide the consequence of his illegal act.

4. Applicants must be made to understand that the compulsory Sound Signal which must be made by a steamer under way in a fog is a prolonged blast under Article 12a, and no other Sound Signal.

5. In examining an applicant on the application of Articles 12 and 13, the Examiner should, by answers to questions, ascertain that the applicant understands that it is his duty to go at a moderate speed in fog, while, as regards Article 24, the Examiner should impress on the applicant that an "ordinary precaution" to be observed in the navigation of a steam-ship in a fog, is to get the way off his own vessel immediately he hears the Sound Signal of another steamer, and then he should go ahead very slowly, blowing the "prolonged blast" at intervals, and feeling his way until all danger of collision is passed.

APPENDIX T.

FORM VISION, COLOUR VISION, AND COLOUR IGNORANCE TESTS.

The following are the Rules relating to the Form Vision and Colour Tests:—

- (1) Examinations for Form Vision, Colour Vision, and Colour Ignorance are open to all persons serving or intending to serve in the Mercantile Marine, and all such persons are recommended to take the earliest opportunity of ascertaining by means of these examinations whether their vision is such as to qualify them for service in that profession.
- (2) The examination consists of three parts:—
 - (a) Form Vision Test (see Note A).
 - (b) Colour Vision Test (see Note B).
 - (c) Colour Ignorance Test (see Note C).

No candidate will be examined in the Colour Vision Test until he has passed the Form Vision Test, or in the Colour Ignorance Test until he has passed the Colour Vision Test.

- (3) Any person serving or intending to serve in the Mercantile Marine, if desirous of undergoing the Form Vision, Colour Vision, and Colour Ignorance Tests only, must make application to the Superintendent of a Mercantile Marine Office on the Form Exn. 2A, and must pay a fee of One Rupee.

This fee will be payable on each occasion upon which a candidate is examined in Form Vision and Colours only.

- (4) Every candidate for a Certificate of Competency who is not already in possession of such a certificate will be required to pass the three tests mentioned in Rule (2) before he can proceed to the examination in Navigation and Seamanship for the certificate which he desires to obtain, even though he may have passed the tests on some previous occasion.
- (5) Every candidate who is already in possession of a Certificate of Competency, and who desires to obtain a certificate of a higher grade, will be required to pass the three tests mentioned in Rule (2) before he can proceed to the examination in Navigation and Seamanship for the Certificate of a higher grade.

That is to say, no candidate will be permitted to proceed with the examination in Navigation and Seamanship for a higher certificate if he fails to pass the three tests.

- (6) If a candidate fails to pass any of the three tests, a note of the fact of his having done so will be written across the face of the certificate which he already possesses before the certificate is returned to him.
- (7) If a candidate who undergoes the Form Vision, Colour Vision, and Colour Ignorance Tests only (See Rule (3)) is in possession of a Certificate of Competency, he must hand in his certificate before the examination commences, and if he fails to pass any of the three tests, a statement of his failure will be written on the certificate before it is returned to him.
- (8) Candidates who fail to pass the Form Vision Test or Colour Ignorance Test can be re-examined at intervals of three months, but candidates who fail to pass the Colour Vision Test cannot be re-examined. It is open, however, to any candidate who has failed to pass that test to appeal to the Government, who may, if they think fit, remit the case to a special examiner or body of examiners for final decision.
- (9) The expenses of candidates who are examined by the special examiners, and are reported by them to have passed the three tests, will, under certain circumstances, be paid by the Government, at a rate which will be notified to the candidate; but no payment whatever will be made towards the expenses of candidates who upon their own application are examined by the special examiners and are reported by them to have failed. The special examinations will be held in Calcutta only.
- (10) When a Candidate fails to pass the Colour Test, the examiner will point out to him the conditions under which he can appeal. Appeals are to be made through the examiner, and forwarded to the Government with the examiner's remarks.
- (11) The holder of a certificate which bears on it a statement of failure in the first test (Form Vision) or in the third test (Colour Ignorance) can have the statement removed by passing after the prescribed interval the test to which it refers, but the instruction in the last paragraph of Rule (2) must be followed.
- (12) The fee paid for examination for a Certificate of Competency includes the fee of One Rupee for examination in Form Vision, Colour Vision, and Colour Ignorance, and if the candidate fails to pass those tests, will, with the exception of One Rupee, be returned to him.
- (13) Only examiners who have themselves passed the Colour Test are to undertake these examinations.

NOTE A.

FORM VISION TEST.

(1) The test for Form Vision is the first test which the candidate is required to undergo, and until he has passed this test he cannot be allowed to proceed further with the examination. (See Rule 2.)

(2) The tests to be used are Snellen's Letter test for candidates who can read, and the "Dot" tests for those who cannot read.

The sets of tests which have been supplied to the examiners consist respectively of eight sheets of Snellen's letters and two sheets of dots.

(3) The chief object of the tests for Form Vision is to show whether the candidate possesses eyesight of sufficient strength and range, or in other words they are means of discovering whether the candidate has good or bad sight.

They also afford a means of detecting whether a candidate is suffering from that form of colour-blindness which is caused by the excessive use of tobacco, and by illness or similar affections. All candidates who are suffering from colour-blindness arising from causes of that nature will be found to be incapable of passing the tests for Form Vision.

(4) Candidates may use both eyes or either eye when being tested, but they must not be allowed to use spectacles or glasses of any kind.

The set of tests is to be hung on the wall, in a good light, at a height of about five or six feet from the ground.

(5) If the candidate can read, he should be placed at a distance of 16 feet from the Letter Test sheets, and exactly opposite them. The distance should be carefully measured, and the candidate should not be allowed to approach within 16 feet of the test sheets.

One of the eight sheets of letters should then be exposed, and the candidate should be asked to read the letters, beginning at the top and going downwards. If he can read correctly three of the five letters in the fifth line from the top (third from the bottom), or four of the letters in either of the two lines below, he may be considered to have passed the test. If he cannot do so he should be treated as having failed. Candidates should be tested with at least two of the sheets of letters, and the same two sheets should not be used for all candidates.

Test for Form Vision to be passed first.

Tests to be used.

Object of the tests.

General conduct of the tests.

Conduct of the Letter Test.

Meaning of the numbers on the Letter Test sheets.	(6) The number printed over each row of letters shows the distance in feet at which a person possessing ordinary sight should be able to read the letters in the row.
Conduct of the Dot Test.	(7) If the candidate cannot read, he must be tested with the sheets of dots. For this test he is to be placed at a distance of precisely eight feet from the test sheets, and exactly opposite them. One of the sheets of dots is then to be exposed, and the candidate should be asked to name the number of dots in one or two of the lines or groups. Lines and groups of dots can be formed by holding a piece of white paper over part of the sheet, but care must be taken that when this is being done the candidate's view is not obstructed, or the light on the test sheet in any way obscured. The examiner must make sure that the candidate understands what he is required to do. If the candidate answers the questions put to him by the examiner with complete or very nearly complete accuracy, he should be treated as having passed. If he does not answer with very nearly complete accuracy, he should be treated as having failed.
Tests to be varied.	(8) The examiner must take care, by varying the tests in Form Vision, and by every other means, to guard against the possibility of any deception on the part of the candidates.
Result of tests to be reported.	(9) The result of every test in Form Vision is to be reported to the Government, on the Form Exn. 2, and to the Port Officer on the Form Exn. 14, when the candidate is up for examination for a Certificate of Competency, and to the Government on the Form Exn. 2a, when the candidate is up for examination in colours only. All cases of failure to pass the test are also to be reported to the Port Officer on Form Exn. 17b.

NOTE B.

COLOUR VISION TEST.

Nature of the tests.	(1) The Colour Vision of candidates is to be tested by means of Holmgren's wools. The wools are always to be kept in the tins provided for the purpose, except when in use at an examination, in order that they may not become faded or dirty. Each set contains about 135 skeins of wool.
General instructions.	(2) Before the examination commences the skeins should be separated from one another, but each separate skein should be kept tied up as when first received. The three test skeins are labelled respectively I. (light green), IIa. (pink or light purple), and IIb. (red), and they are always to be used in the order mentioned. Care must be taken that the labels do not get detached. The Colour Vision Test should be held only by daylight. If a good natural light is not obtainable and artificial light has to be used, the test must be postponed. When the weather is dark or foggy, and a candidate cannot be examined in colours before his examination in Navigation commences, he may be allowed to proceed with the examination in Navigation, provided he is examined in colours on the first available opportunity.*
Course to be followed if incorrect selections are made by candidates.	Full instructions as to the conduct of the examination will be found on pages 10 to 21. (3) The examiner, as the examination proceeds, should carefully place on one side the skeins, the selection of which by the candidate seems to indicate a defect in Colour Vision, taking care to discriminate between those selected as matching the first test skein, those selected as matching the second test skein, and those selected as matching the third test skein. The skeins, which have been correctly selected, should be returned to the general heap on the completion of each of the three tests.
Pieces of the wools incorrectly selected by a candidate who fails are to be sent to the Principal Examiner of Masters and Mates.	(4) In every case in which the examiner rejects a candidate, or is in doubt as to whether he should reject him or not, he is, when the examination is finished, to cut a small piece (say, an inch) off every one of the actual skeins incorrectly selected by the candidate, and to stitch the pieces cut off on to Form Exn. 17c, keeping the pieces cut off the skeins selected as matches to the first test skein in one line, the pieces cut off the skeins selected as matches to the second test skein in another line, and the pieces cut off the skeins selected as matches to the third test skein in a third line on the Form. The Form (Form Exn. 17c), with the pieces of wool attached to it, is then to be forwarded to the Port Officer, with the examiner's report, on Form Exn. 17b. The greatest care must be taken that the pieces forwarded are cut off the actual skeins selected by the candidate, in order that there may be a reliable record of the actual selections made by the candidate if any question should subsequently arise. Pieces need not be cut off the test skeins, but only off the skeins incorrectly selected by the candidate.

* When the examination in Navigation precedes the Colour Tests the candidate should be informed that the examination in Navigation will count for nothing if they should fail to pass the Colour Tests.

(5) In cases in which the candidate passes the test, pieces need not be cut off the skeins he has selected.

If the candidate passes, pieces of the wools need not be cut off.

(6) When the candidate makes incorrect matches the examiner should, after each of the three tests, hold up the skeins selected, and ask the candidate if he is satisfied that they all match the test skein. If he is not satisfied he may be allowed to withdraw any of the skeins he pleases.

Candidates should be given the opportunity of correcting their mistakes.

(7) During the test for colour-blindness the examiner should avoid naming the colours of any of the wools, and should explain to the candidate that he does not require them to be named to him.

Candidates are not required to name the colours of the wools.

In the test for colour ignorance the candidate has to name three colours. (See Note C.)

(8) As soon as any skein becomes discoloured, or unduly reduced in size (say by one-third), owing to pieces having been cut off it, the matter should be reported to the Government.

Course to be taken when the skeins of wool become reduced in size or discoloured. Examiners are not required to decide from what form of colour blindness an unsuccessful candidate is suffering.

(9) In the remarks which follow, reference is made to different kinds of colour-blindness (red-blindness and green-blindness), but the examiner is not required to form any conclusion as to the kind of colour-blindness from which the candidate suffers, and should not offer the candidate any opinion on this point.

All that is required is that the examiner shall conduct the examination according to the rules laid down, and from the wools selected judge whether the candidate is or is not colour-blind, the nature of his colour-blindness being immaterial.

(10) The result of every test should be reported to the Government on the Form Exn. 2, and to the Port Officer on the Form Exn. 14, when the candidate is up for examination for a Certificate of Competency, and to the Government on the Form Exn. 2a, when the candidate is up for examination in colours only.

Result of tests to be reported.

All cases of failure should also be reported to the Port Officer on Form Exn. 17a, to which should be attached Form Exn. 17c, containing the pieces of the wools incorrectly selected by the candidate. (See paragraph 4.)

HOLMGREN'S METHOD OF TESTING FOR COLOUR.

The method of testing consists in asking the candidate to select from variously coloured objects those which appear of the same colour as one which the examiner selects. The most suitable objects and at the same time the most readily obtainable are skeins of wool, which can be procured of almost every desired hue and tone. An advantage of skeins of wool, besides their portability, is that, owing to their want of gloss, they appear of approximately the same tone from whichever side they are viewed. The colours of the skeins to be selected include reds, oranges, yellows, yellowish-greens, pure greens, blue-greens, blues, violets, purples, pinks, browns, and greys. Several shades of each colour, with at least five gradations of each tint, are provided, from the deepest to the lightest greens and greys. Varieties of pinks, blues, and violets, and of light grey, together with shades of brown, yellow, red, and pink, are well represented. The test skeins with which the examinees are to compare the other skeins are three in number:—(1) a light green; (2) a pink or pale purple; and (3) a bright red. These three colours will suffice to indicate approximately the amount and kind of colour-blindness which may exist. The light green skein, which is a tolerably pure green mixed with a large proportion of white, is chosen as the colour which closely matches the spectrum colour which the red and green-blind distinguish as white or grey. It is chosen of a pale tint, as it then becomes puzzling to the colour-blind to distinguish its colour by luminosity. A light grey or drab skein will present the same brightness to him that this pale colour does, and although he may be trained to distinguish bright colours by their relative luminosities, in the case of these pale varieties he will be unable to do so. The pink or light purple is chosen for similar reasons, and in fact it is nearly a complementary colour to the green. The purple is, according to the Young-Helmholtz theory, a mixture of two fundamental colours, the blue and the red, and as in the green-blind it excites both the blue and red sensations, it may be confused with grey or with a green. In the red colour-blind it excites in excess the blue sensations mixed with what they call white. A blue or violet may therefore be matched with it.

The method of examination is as follows:—

Method of Examination and Diagnosis.

The wools are placed in a heap on a large table covered by a white cloth or white paper, and in broad daylight. The first test skein is taken from the pile, and laid far enough away from the others not to be confounded with them during the examination. The person examined is requested to look carefully at the test skein and then to select other skeins from the pile most nearly resembling it in colour, and to place them by the side of the sample. At the outset, it is necessary that he should thoroughly understand that he is required to search the heap for the skeins which make an impression on his chromatic sense or sense of colour, similar to that made by the test-skein, and quite independently of any name he may give the colour. The examiner should explain that resemblance in every respect is not necessary; that there are no two specimens exactly alike; that the only question is the resemblance of the colour; and that, consequently, the candidate must endeavour to find something similar in shade and something lighter and something darker of the same colour. If the person examined cannot succeed in understanding this by a verbal explanation, resort must be had to action. The examiner should himself pick out the skeins, thereby showing in a practical manner what is meant by a shade, and then restore the whole to the pile, except the sample skein. As it would require too much time to examine every individual in this way, it is advisable, when examining large numbers, to instruct them all at once, and to ask them to attentively observe the examination of those preceding them so as to become more familiar themselves with the process. This saves time, and there is no loss of security, for no one with a defective chromatic sense will be able to find the correct skeins in the heap the more easily from having a moment before seen others looking for and arranging them. He will make the same characteristic mistakes; but the normal observer, on the other hand, will generally accomplish his task much better and more quickly after having seen how it has to be done.

The coloured plate shows the test colours and some of the mistakes likely to be made by colour-blind people. The colours in the plate are of two characters:

1st. The colours for samples (test colours); that is, those which the examiner presents to the persons examined; and

2nd. The "confusion colours"; that is to say, those which the colour-blind may select as matches with the sample.

The first are shown on the Plate as horizontal bands, and are distinguished by Roman numerals (I, IIa, and IIb), the second as vertical bands, under the test colours, and are distinguished by Arabic figures (1, 2, 3, &c.).

As to the similarity between the confusion colours of the Plate and the wools which the colour-blind take from the heap, reliance must be placed simply on the hue, and not on their brightness or degree of colour saturation. The confusion colours shown in the Plate are only to illustrate the mistakes which the colour-blind may make, and for this purpose they serve perfectly. Having made this explanation, we can pass directly to the test itself. The following are the directions for conducting it, and for making a diagnosis from the results:—

TEST I.—The green test skein which is labelled Test No. I. in the bundle is exhibited to the candidate. This sample is the palest shade (the lightest) of very pure green, which is neither a yellow-green nor a blue-green to the normal eye, but fairly intermediate between the two, or at least not verging upon yellowish-green.

Rule.—The examination must continue until the examinee has placed near the test skein several other skeins of the same colour, or else, with those or separately, one or more skeins of the class of "confusion colours" such as 1 to 5 in the Plate, or until he has sufficiently proved that he can easily and unerringly distinguish the confusion colours, or else has given unmistakable proof of a difficulty in accomplishing it.

Diagnosis.—An examinee who places with the test skein "confusion colours," such as 1 to 5—that is to say, finds that they resemble the "test colour"—is colour-blind, whilst if he evinces a manifest disposition to do so, though he does not absolutely do so, he has a feeble chromatic sense, or sense of colour.

Remark.—We might have taken more than five colours for "confusion"; but we must remember that we are not taking into consideration every kind of defective colour sense.

TEST II.—The pink or light purple skein, which is labelled No. IIa, is shown to the examinee. The colour is midway between the lightest and darkest. It only approaches that given as IIa of the Plate, as the colour of the wool is much more brilliant and saturated and bluer.

Rule.—The trial must be continued until the examinee has placed all or the greater part of the skeins of the same colour near the test skein, or else, together or separately, several skeins of the "confusion colours," such as 6-9. If he is colour-blind he will probably select either the light or deep shades of blue and violet, especially the deep (6 and 7), or the light or deep shades of one kind of green or grey inclining to blue (8 and 9).

TEST III.—The red skein labelled No. IIb is presented to the examinee. It is necessary to have a vivid red colour, like the red flag used as signals on railways. The colour should be that of IIb of the Plate, rather towards yellowish-red.

Rule.—This test should be continued until the person examined has placed beside the test skein the greater part of the skeins belonging to this hue, or else several "confusion colours" (10-13).

Remark.—Every case of comparatively complete colour-blindness does not always give precisely the same mistakes. Instances occur of persons who are not completely colour-blind, or of completely colour-blind persons who have been practised in the colours of signals, and who endeavour not to be discovered. They usually confound at least green and brown, but even this does not always happen.

Monochromatic Vision.—The absence of every colour sensation, except one, will be recognized by the confusion of all the hues, which will appear to be of the same intensity of light or brightness.

Dr. Joy Jyffries, in his book on colour-blindness, gives a translation of Holmgren's special directions for conducting the examinations. The examinations to which Holmgren refers were for employés on the Swedish railways, but the remarks which follow are applicable to examinations for officers and seamen in the Mercantile Marine.

Special Directions for Conducting the Test.

The method plays an important part in an examination of this kind, not only from the principles upon which it rests, but also from the manner in which it is used. The best plan for directing how to proceed is by oral instructions and de visu, but here we are obliged to accomplish this by description. Now, this is always defective in some respects, especially if we wish to be brief. What has been said would evidently suffice for an intelligent and experienced physician; but it may not be superfluous to enter still further into detail to provide against any possible difficulties and loss of time. The object of the examination is to discover the nature of a person's chromatic sense, or sense of colour. Now, as the fate of the candidate and that of others depend upon the correctness of the judgment pronounced by the examiner, and as this judgment should be based upon the manner in which the candidate stands the trial, it is of importance that this trial should be truly what it ought to be, a trial of the nature of the chromatic sense, and nothing else; an end that will be gained if our directions are strictly followed. It is not only necessary that the examiner should carefully observe them—which does not seem to us difficult—but that he also should take care that the individual examined does thoroughly what is required of him. This is not always as easy as one might suppose. If it were only required to examine people familiar with practical occupations and especially with colours, and with no other interest connected with the issue of the examination than to know whether they are colour-blind or not, the examination would be uniform and mechanical, but it is required to examine people of various degrees of culture, all of whom, besides, have a personal interest in the issue of the examination. Different people act very differently during the examination for many reasons. Some submit to it without the least suspicion of their defect; others are convinced that they possess a normal sense. A few only have a consciousness, or at least some suspicion, of their defect. These last can often be recognized before examination. They will keep behind the others, and attentively follow the progress of the trial, and, if allowed, will willingly remain to the last. Some are quick, others slow. The former approach unconcernedly and boldly, the latter with over anxiety and a certain dread. Some have been, perhaps, already tested and have practised in preparation for the trial; others have never been familiar with colours. Among those already tested some may be colour-blind. Some of these latter are uncertain about their Colour Vision, and act with great care, whilst others, again, having been practised in distinguishing signals, conclude that their colour sense is perfect. They make the trial quickly and without thought, of course regularly making the mistakes characteristic of their special form of colour-blindness.

The majority, however, desire to perform their task as well as possible, that is, to do what the normal-eyed does. This, of course assists in testing them, provided it does not lead to too great care, as then the testing is more difficult, the trouble being that much time is wasted.

Only a very small part have a contrary desire, namely, to pass for colour-blind, though normal-eyed. We will speak of those later, and now only concern ourselves with those who stand the test in good faith with the desire to appear normal, though perhaps they are colour-blind.

The trial generally goes on rapidly and regularly. We will only mention those hindrances and peculiarities which most frequently occur. The examiner must watch that no mistake is made from not understanding. The names of the colour need never be used, except to ascertain if the name hides the subjective colour sensation, or to find the relation between the name the colour-blind employs and his colour perception.

The person examined who thinks more of names than the test itself (this being generally a sign of school learning) selects not only the words of the same hues—that is, those of the same colour to his eye—but all which generally have the name of this colour; for instance, in the first test, I, not only the green like the sample, but all that are green; and with the second test, not only the purple (and what are generally called red), but all which look reddish, scarlet, cinnamon, or sealing-wax red. This is of no importance, for those who only do this have scarcely such defective chromatic sense as that with which we are concerned.

Under any circumstance it is better to correct the mistakes just mentioned, when arising from misunderstanding, and it is even necessary, in reference to the mistakes we explained might occur with the first test. It might be said that it was sufficient if the examined confounded the test colour with green only; that it was indifferent whether he distinguishes carefully between the various kinds of green. But, in fact, this is not so unimportant. We must give full weight as to whether the confusion arises from misunderstanding, or lack of practice with colours, or, finally, from a true chromatic defect. To include all that is green would render the test tedious and unpractical. In fact, no little judgment has been exercised in the selection of the very lightest shade of the green proposed as a test colour, for it is exactly what the colour-blind most readily confounds with the colours (1-5) of the Plate. If the examinee were allowed to depart from the narrow limits, every shade of green could be included, the result of which would be that he would prefer to select all the vivid shades, and thus avoid the dangerous ground where his defect would certainly be discovered. This is why it is necessary to oblige him to keep within certain limits, confining him to pure green specimens, and, for greater security, to recommend him to select especially the lightest shades; for, if he keeps to the darker shades, as many try to do, he readily passes to other tones, and loses himself on foreign ground, to the great loss of time and of the certainty of the test. What we have just said of green applies also, of course, to purple. (Test IIa.)

The principle of our method is to force the examiner to reveal, by an act of his own, the nature of his chromatic sense.

Now, as this act must be kept within certain limits, it is evident that the examiner must direct him to some extent. This may present, in certain cases, some difficulty, as he will not always be guided, and does either too much or too little. In both cases the examiner should use his influence, in order to save time and gain certainty, and this is usually very easily done. This intervention is, of course, intended to put the examinee in the true path, and is accomplished in many ways according to the case in point.

We will here mention some of the expedients we have found useful:—

(A) Interfering when the Candidate selects too many Colours.

It is not always easy to confine the candidate within the proper limits. In the first test he easily slips a yellow-green or blue-green skein among the others, and, as soon as there is one, others follow usually; and it thus happens that in a few moments he has a whole handful of yellow-green, a second of blue-green, a third of both these shades at the same time. Our procedure has assisted us in more than one case of this kind.

(a) When the person examined has begun to select shades of one or several other colours than those of the sample, his ardour is arrested by taking from him the handful of skeins he has collected and asking him whether his eye does not tell him there are some which do not match the others, in which case he is told he may restore them to the pile. He then generally proceeds in one of the following manners:

1. He rejects, one after the other, the incorrect skeins, so that only the correct remain, which is often only the sample skein. He is shown what mistake he has made, and he is told only to select skeins of the same hue as the specimen, although they may be lighter or darker. If his first error arose only from a misconception or want of practice in handling colours, he begins generally to understand what he has to do, and to do properly what is required of him.

2. Or else he selects and rejects immediately the test skein itself. This proves that he sees the difference of colour. He is then shown the test skein as the only correct one, and is asked to repeat the trial in a more correct manner. He is again put on the right track as just before, and the trial proceeds rightly, unless the error arose from a defect in colour sense. Many seem, however, to experience a natural difficulty in distinguishing between yellow-green and blue-green, or the dull shades of green and blue. This difficulty is, however, more apparent than real, and is corrected usually by direct comparison. If the method requiring the name of the colour to be given is used, a number of mistakes may be the result. If a skein of light green and light blue alone are presented to him, and he is asked to name them, he will often call blue green and green blue. But, if in the first case, a blue skein is immediately shown him, he corrects his mistake by saying "this is blue" and "that green." In the last case the same thing happens mutatis mutandis. This is not the place for an explanation. It must suffice to say that the error is corrected by a direct comparison between the two colours.

(b) Another Process.—If the candidate place by the side of the sample a shade, for instance, of yellow-green, the examiner places near this another shade, in which there is more yellow, or even a pure yellow, remarking at the same time that if the first suit the last must also. The candidate usually dissents from this. He is then shown, by selecting and classing the intermediate shades, that there is a gradation, which will diverge widely if logically carried out as he has begun. The same course is followed with colours of the blue shades, if the blue-green were first selected. He sees the successive gradations, and goes through with this test perfectly if his chromatic sense is correct.

To ascertain further whether he notices the tints of yellow and blue in the green, we can ourselves take the yellow-green and blue-green and ask him if he sees any difference in colour between them. We can judge by his answer of his sense with regard to these shades, and the object of this investigation is accomplished.

It results from all this that many who are finally considered to have a normal chromatic sense may occasionally cause embarrassment. In the main, the normal observer of this kind causes greater loss of time than the colour-blind. It is astonishing to see with what rapidity the colour-blind betray their defect. At least it is found, in the majority of the cases examined by us, that the first skein of wool selected from the pile by the colour-blind in the first test was one of the "colours of confusion."

(B) Interfering when the Candidate selects too few Wools.

Those who evince too great slowness also require the interference of the examiner in another manner. We can lay aside here those cases in which, at the sight of the complex colours of the heap of wool, the candidate finds it difficult to select a skein resembling the sample in a collection where all the particular colours seem to differ from each other, and in consequence declares immediately that he can find none resembling the specimen. He is then told that an absolute resemblance is not demanded, and that no one asks impossibilities; that time is limited, many are waiting, &c. But there are people who—from natural slowness, from being unaccustomed to such business, from fear of making mistakes, especially if they have been previously examined and been suspected of colour-blindness, or from many other motives—proceed with the greatest caution. They do not even wish to touch the wool; or they search, select, and replace with the greatest care all the possible skeins without finding one corresponding with the sample, or that they wish to place beside it. Here, then, are two cases: on one hand, too much action with the fingers, without result; on the other, too little action. The examiner is forced to interfere in both cases.

(a) In the case of too much manual action, without corresponding practical result, the examiner must be careful that the eye and hand of the candidate act simultaneously for the accomplishment of the desired end.

Some people forget that the hands should be subservient to the eye in this trial, and not act independently. Thus they are often seen to fix their eyes on one side while their hands are engaged on the other. This should be corrected, so as to save time and avoid further labour. The candidate should be told to cross his hands behind his back, to step back a pace, and quietly consider all the skeins, and, as soon as his eye has met one of those for which he is looking, to extend his hand and take it. The best plan is to advise him to look first at the sample, and then at the pile, and to repeat this manœuvre until his eyes find what he is looking for.

This plan generally succeeds when nervousness from over anxiety causes his hands to tremble; but it is not always easy to induce him to keep his hands behind his back until the moment for taking the skein in question.

(b) In cases of great caution, the trial is hastened if the examiner come to the assistance of the candidate, by holding above the pile one skein after the other, and requesting him to say whether it resembles the colour of the sample or not.

In cases where any one suspected of colour-blindness has remained some time to see the trial of others, and where, as often happens, he has remarked the skeins belonging to a required shade, he may of course profit by it in his own trial. But this can be prevented by shuffling the skeins.

It may be regarded as an advantage of this method that it has at command a great variety of resources. We have by no means mentioned all; and yet many who have only read this description will probably reproach us with having devoted ourselves too much to details which seems to them puerile. But we believe that those who have examined the colour sense of a great number of persons, and acquired thereby considerable experience, will think differently.

We are convinced that time is saved by the means we have described and a more certain result obtained; whilst a practised surgeon, who has become to a certain degree a virtuoso, will accomplish his object quicker and surer by such means than one who neglects them. Recent experience fully confirms this. All those who have familiarized themselves with this method, and have had experience with colour-blindness, and of whose competence there can be no doubt, report, without exception, that it is to be fully depended on—the most practical and the best.

An advantage of the method was shown to be that those who were to be examined could be present and see each individual tested, without this interfering in the least with the certainty of the result. The individual test is even hastened thereby. The colour-blind, and even the normal-eyed who are not familiar with colours, are generally rather shy about being tested, in whatever way it is done. As the method, however, is carried out, they have more confidence. The majority are even amused. The old adage holds true here, that it is easier to find fault than to do it yourself. The surgeon, who watches not only the examined, but also those around, can often see from their faces how closely the latter observe the person being tested, when he takes out the wrong colours, as also when he neglects the right ones under his eye. This gives those looking on confidence and assurance, till their turn comes, when they appear as uncertain as before they were confident. There is something attractive in the process, stimulating the interest, and not without benefit.

From this we see that our judgment of a person's colour sense is made, not only by the material result of the examination—the character of the wools selected—but often also by the way the examined acts during the test. We should mention a very common manner of persons on trial, which, in many cases, is of great value in diagnosis. Often, in searching for the right colour, they suddenly seize a skein to lay it with the sample, but then notice it does not correspond, and put it back in the heap. This is very characteristic; and if an examiner has often seen it, he can readily recognize and be assured that it is an expression of difficulty in distinguishing the differences in the colours. We frequently see this in the first test, with shades of greenish-blue and bluish-green. Here it means nothing important; but it is quite the reverse, however, when it concerns the grey or one of the confusion colours (1-5). Uncertainty and hesitation as to these colours, which the colour-blind do not distinguish from the test colour, even when directly comparing them, is positive proof of mistake, implying defective chromatic vision of the complete colour-blind type. No doubt the form of chromatic defect which we have called incomplete colour-blindness exists in several kinds and degrees. This is not the place to further discuss our experience on this point; and, for the practical purpose we have in view, it is not necessary. As we have explained, there are, among this class, forms of colour-blindness gradually approaching normal colour sense. How they are distinguished has been described. We designated them as possessing feeble colour sense.

It is, perhaps, not easy to detect these special forms by any other method, or even by our own; we therefore give the following as a means of so doing. The only way of getting at it is by determining at what distance the candidate can distinguish a small coloured surface. We have to deal, in fact, with a feeble colour sense, which does not prevent the colours from being distinguished, but only renders it difficult. We may suppose, in comparison to the normal that the feeble colour sense is due either to a weaker response to the stimulation of the colour-perceptive organs of the retina, or else to a stimulation of a relatively smaller number of these organs. In either case this method would give us the same result, judging from our experience in testing the eccentric portions of the field of vision with the perimeter.

The method we here speak of shows us also the effect of habit and practice on the colour perception, and it is worth while to dwell on this point. It not unfrequently happens that a person who by test No. 1 has been noted "incomplete colour-blind," after they know of their mistake and have practised themselves in distinguishing colours, will so comport themselves at a second trial that we have to simply mark them as of "feeble colour sense." The same will sometimes happen with test No. II, and it is explainable by what we have said, namely, that between the complete lack of some one colour sense and the incomplete there is a series of gradations, and that in such cases practice would affect the result of examinations.

All the examples given prove that many seeming trifles and plans are of value in making the examination—amongst others the keeping the sample a little way off from the heap of worsteds, as also the removal of everything which can cause the examined doubt and uncertainty. We must not therefore let them do what many want to do, namely, hold a number of the worsteds in the hand at once. We must make the person being examined place each skein, as he takes it up, either with the sample or else back on the heap. Many who are not clear whether the skein is like the sample or not, instinctively put the shades most resembling the test sample at the side of the heap towards it, and thus gradually form a little bridge, but which for correctness they will not vouch for. No such half measures must, however, be allowed.

NOTE C.

CLOUR IGNORANCE TEST.

Object of test for colour ignorance.

Manner in which the test is to be conducted.

Grounds in which candidates should be treated as having passed or failed.

Result of test to be reported.

(1) The object of this test is simply to ascertain whether the candidate knows the names of the three colours—red, green, and white—which it is important of every seaman to be acquainted with, and the test is to be confined to naming those colours.

(2) One or two of the purest red and green skeins should be selected from the set of wools, and the candidate should be required to name their colours. He should also be required to name the colour of any white object, such as a piece of white paper.

(3) If he answers correctly, he could be considered to have passed the test. If he makes any mistake, he should be tried with the lantern which was formerly used for colour test, the plain glass, and the standard red, and the green glasses being employed for the purpose. If he does not name these glasses correctly, he should be reported as having failed to pass the test.

(4) The result of every test should be reported to the Government on Form Exn. 2, and to the Port Officer on the Form. Exn. 14, when the candidate is up for examination for a Certificate of Competency, and to the Government on the Form Exn. 2a, when the candidate is up for examination in colours only.

All cases of failure should be reported to the Port Officer on Form Exn. 17b.

Shoals northward of Banjak islands and near Pulo Simalu (Babi).

THE British Admiralty has given notice (No. 77 of 1895) of the existence of the under-mentioned shoals:—

1. A breaker was seen from H.N.M.S. Benkoelen in about lat. 2° 36' N., long. 97° 17' E., northward of Banjak islands.

2. A bank, with a depth of 10 fathoms on it, hard bottom, lies in approximately lat. 2° 34' N., long. 96° 45' E.; depths of 17 to 20 fathoms were obtained about half a mile westward of this bank.

KOREA, WEST COAST—CHEMULPHO APPROACH.

Amended particulars of Nine-foot rock westward of White rock.

WITH reference to Notice to Mariners, No. 19, dated 2nd February last, issued by this Office, the British Admiralty has given further notice (No. 81 of 1895) that the Master of the steam-vessel Shinanogawa Maru reports having discovered a rock, with a depth of 1½ fathoms on it at low water, and 5 to 7 fathoms close around, lying with White rock beacon, bearing N.E. by E. ¼ E. (N. 62° E.), distant 3½ cables; and summit of Humann island, N. by W. (N. 11° W.).

Approximate position, lat. $37^{\circ} 18' 30''$ N., long. $126^{\circ} 23' 55''$ E.

This is in all probability the rock on which the French gun-vessel Inconstant struck, as the position was not accurately determined at the time, but was assumed to be with White rock beacon bearing, E. by N. ($N. 79^{\circ} E.$), distant $1\frac{1}{2}$ cables. This latter has therefore been removed from Admiralty Charts.

NOTE.—Mariners are recommended, as stated in China Sea Directory, vol. IV, 1894, page 63, to pass eastward of White rock.

THE British Admiralty has given notice (No. 84 of 1895) that a Time Signal has been established on the Signal tower, Wickham terrace, Brisbane:—

Brisbane Time Signal consists of a ball, which will be dropped daily, except on Sundays and public holidays, being hoisted half-way up at 0h. 55m., close up at 0h. 57m., and dropped by electricity from the Survey Office Observatory at 1h. 0m. 0s., mean time of the meridian of $150^{\circ} E.$, equivalent to 15h. 0m. 0s. Greenwich mean time, or 1h. 12m. 64s. local mean time.

Should the signal fail in accuracy, the ball will be hoisted half-way up at once, close up at 1h. 57m., and dropped at 2h. 0m. 0s., mean time of the meridian of $150^{\circ} E.$

Should the ball fail to drop, it will be gradually lowered, and be dropped at 2h. 0m. 0s. mean time of the meridian $150^{\circ} E.$

5. A green light above, and a green light below, the white light:—Bar safe for vessels of 14 feet draught.

The signals to take the bar will be shown from the signal flagstaff on the west breakwater.

Masters of vessels of more than 10 feet draught are requested to signal their draught of water, when arriving off the harbour entrance after half ebb; and of 10 feet draught or less, when arriving at low water.

The two fixed red lights, previously situated at the coal staithes, have been moved to the inner part of the western breakwater, and do not become visible to vessels entering until they are well inside the breakwaters.

Amended particulars of Nine-foot rock westward of White rock.

WITH reference to Notice to Mariners, No. 19, dated 2nd February last, issued by this Office, the British Admiralty has given further notice (No. 81 of 1895) that the Master of the steam-vessel Shinanogawa Maru reports having discovered a rock, with a depth of $1\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms on it at low water, and 5 to 7 fathoms close around, lying with White rock beacon, bearing N.E. by E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E. (N. 62° E.), distant $3\frac{1}{2}$ cables; and summit of Humann island, N. by W. (N. 11° W.).

Approximate position, lat. $37^{\circ} 18' 30''$ N., long. $126^{\circ} 23' 55''$ E.

This is in all probability the rock on which the French gun-vessel Inconstant struck, as the position was not accurately determined at the time, but was assumed to be with White rock beacon bearing, E. by N. (N. 79° E.), distant $1\frac{1}{2}$ cables. This latter has therefore been removed from Admiralty Charts.

NOTE.—Mariners are recommended, as stated in China Sea Directory, vol. IV, 1894, page 63, to pass eastward of White rock.

Dec. 13th	72	8vo rl	1st...	10,000	ditto ...	0 1 9	ditto ...	Contains an article reviewing the condition of Bengal under English rule. The writer takes a very desponding view of the effect of that rule on the physical, moral and intellectual development of the Bengali nation. According to him, English rule is slowly but surely stifling national life in Bengal, and preparing the way for the extinction of Bengalis as a race. The political condition of the people under the English is compared with that of the hero in the coils of the serpent in the Laocoon. Articles on the economic products of India from the pen of Mr. T. N. Mukharji form an important feature of this journal, and the present number contains an article by him on the cultivation of silk cocoons in Bengal and Assam.	3612

Nov. 5, 6, 7, and 8 of this journal contain a detailed criticism on the Sanitary Drainage Bill, which, in the opinion of the writer of the articles, is unnecessary and uncalled for. And the Hindus must be prepared for this treatment at the hands of Government, so long as they can not show, by their conduct and behaviour, that they are not going to take injustice quietly. 3638

The Calcutta Gazette.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL—MARINE DEPARTMENT.

NOTICE TO MARINERS—No. 98.

[First Publication.]

SOUTH AUSTRALIA—GULF ST. VINCENT.

Port Adelaide river—Disappearance of No. 12 beacon light.

THE President, Marine Board, Port Adelaide, has given notice (No. 2 of 1895) that the above-mentioned leading light beacon has disappeared, and that pending its re-erection a temporary light will be exhibited from a barge in the same position. As the light may not be exactly on the line at all times of the tide, the red light ought to be kept bearing N.E. by E. inwards, or S.W. by W. outwards.

This affects Admiralty chart No. 2389A.

Buoy placed southward of Piége (Beef Barrels) rocks.

THE British Admiralty has given notice (No. 280 of 1893) that a survey has recently been made of the vicinity of Piége (Beef Barrels) rocks, with the undermentioned result:—

1. A rock, with less than 6 feet water on it, lies W. by S. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. (S. 69° W.), distant $1\frac{1}{4}$ cables, from the largest (northern) Piége rock; there are depths of 6 to 9 fathoms half-a-cable westward of this rock.
2. A rock, with less than 6 feet water on it, lies S.W. by S. (S. 34° W.), distant $2\frac{1}{4}$ cables, from the largest Piége rock; there are depths less than 5 fathoms for a cable south-westward of this rock, deepening to 10 fathoms beyond, and shallow water between it and the Piége rocks.
3. Foul ground, with depths of 2 to $4\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms on it, extends 3 cables S.E. by S., and nearly $2\frac{1}{2}$ cables eastward, from the largest Piége rock; the 5 fathoms line is about a cable to the northward of the Piége rock; to the north-westward the limit of shoal water has not been determined, but there are rocks with less than 6 feet water on them for about $1\frac{1}{2}$ cables in that direction.

In bad weather the sea breaks on all the above rocks, most heavily on those stretching to the south-westward.

A red buoy has been moored with the largest Piége rock bearing N. $\frac{1}{2}$ W., distant $2\frac{1}{4}$ cables; and Hole in rock point E. $\frac{1}{2}$ N.

Approximate position, buoy, lat. 40° 57' 50" S., long. 173° 47' 50" E.
